Block hits Congress on Farm Bill progress

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block has thrown down the gauntlet to Congress, and promised not to accept interim measures if the legislators fail to pass a farm program by the time current legislation expires Oct. 1.

"Why keep something that is losing markets for farmers, driving up food costs without really addressing the problem?" Block said in a telephone news conference with agriculture editors this week

Block listed a number of provisions in the "working versions" of the House and Senate bills that were not acceptable to the Administration. Right at the top of the list was the dairy title passed by the House Agriculture Committee:

"The House dairy diversion program is unacceptable It would impose a cruel compulsory assessment, a tax on dairymen that would take $1 billion to $2 billion out of dairy farmers' pockets.

"It would incur surpluses through higher price supports, going up to around $13, it appears, by the year 1990. And it would distort relationships between areas of the country.

"It would cost the taxpayers $1 billion a year, and, within five years, it would raise consumer milk prices 18 cents a gallon, cheese prices by 36 cents a pound, and butter by 31 cents a pound.

Block said he found the Senate version, on the other hand, much easier to live with.

"The Administration likes the form, direction and design of the Senate plan," said Block "However, in the Senate plan, to really get the job done, there should be a cut in price support in 1986.

"To waste the whole year of 1986 and do nothing, when we're spending $2 billion a year taking on product, is really unacceptable So we need a cut in '86, but the way they're doing it makes sense "

The complete farm package under consideration in the House and Senate, Block said, would cost more than $50 billion over the next three years.

"Those are budget-busting figures, exceeding the $35 billion in the budget resolution substantially."

Block did credit the work of Senators Robert Dole and Jesse Helms, and Congressman Kika de la Garza in attempting to resolve the impasse over farm policy

The USDA secretary also said the administration would not accept mandatory controls on production, or the fashionable marketing loan concept that has caught the fancy of many on Capitol Hill.

"The budget exposure would be tremendous with a program that would allow farmers to take out loans at one price and pay off the loan at the market price," Block said "Marketing loan programs effectively tend to funnel all the grain through the loan program That's not a good idea either, if we're trying to move government away "

Block also said the Administration would not accept price supports based on a cost of production formula.

"Everyone says, 'well that makes sense, why not?" Everyone's cost of production is different Costs between regions, for instance. And in this type of program, supports are based on the higher range of costs, which would encourage surpluses.

"We need to price our products to sell. Price them with the market, not with some economist's plan figuring out cost of produc-

Experts paint gloomy picture at dairy outlook meeting

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

LANCASTER — Lower prices. Increased competition for the consumer's food dollar. Surpluses for the foreseeable future. New production-boosting technology.

The laundry list of potential problems for the dairy industry seems long indeed.

And the likelihood of immediate improvement in any of those areas seems remote, a panel of experts told about 200 dairymen this week at the second of two "dairy outlook" meetings in Lancaster

The meeting was sponsored by Penn State Extension Service; Dairymen, Inc.; Eastern Milk Producers; Inter-State Milk Producers; Kreider Dairy Farms; and Lehigh Valley Farmers. Unfortunately it provided little good news .. and a lot of bad.

Summarized Penn State professor Jack Kirkland, "some people are going to go out of business."

The reasons for the gloomy outlook are virtually the same as they've been for about six months. But the increasing likelihood of a tough new dairy policy and the growing gap between production and "commercial disappearance" means the situation is rapidly reaching the critical stage

Inter-State economist James Fraher lead off the discussion by citing the statistics. Production, he said, has jumped back quickly from the slightly lowered levels of the dairy diversion program.

Milk output in May, for instance, was higher than any May on record, and June production was the greatest since 1947.

In the current year, he noted, it is estimated that the federal government will purchase 11 billion pounds of milk equivalent, fully seven percent of U S production

The large purchases, and the large amount of uncommitted inventory the federal government now holds, will have "quite a negative impact on prices," he said

Politically, added Eastern economist Joseph Mathis, the huge jump in production has hurt the cause of dairymen as the U.S. Congress debates the dairy policy sections of the 1985 Farm Bill.

Currently, Mathis noted, the House and Senate versions of the Farm Bill take separate approaches in their dairy titles. The House version, he said, keeps prices at a constant level, while creating incentives to curtail production.

The Senate Bill, on the other hand, would employ a drop in prices to reduce production.

Neither is really good news for the dairy industry Though the House Bill would maintain prices, it would fund a stand-by diversion plan and excessive government purchases with a producer assessment.

So farmers looking for more money in their milk checks will have a long wait indeed.

Neither proposal will pass as is, Mathis noted, and both will undergo substantial compromise before have a chance to be enacted. A compromise proposal drafted by Rep. Jim Jeffords, senior Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, has some potential, he said.

The Jeffords bill, he explained, would freeze the current price for two years, then allow some price adjustment in 1988. It would also create a whole-herd buyout program and provide discretionary diversion authority.

The only positive factor the dairy industry has on its side at the time, Mathis said, is Congress' reluctance to take more stringent measures at the height of the overall crisis in farming.

Pat Wolff, a legislative aide for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, added that the failure of both House and Senate to meet budget guidelines for the agriculture package means "everything's going to be up for discussion again."

Ms. Wolff, who admitted that the American Farm Bureau feels more closely aligned to the Senate's version, commented that the proposed diversion package in the House bill "shifts the cost of the program to producers."

The Farm Bureau (of which PFA is a member) has estimated that the various provisions of the bill could result in an assessment of more that $1 — and closer to $1.50.

Earl Fink, executive vice president of the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers, said

Ag output in 1984 sets Lancaster record

LANCASTER — Lancaster County had a record year of agricultural production in 1984, despite problems with avian influenza, pseudorabies and low prices.

The value of ag products produced in the county rose to $709,644,680, or about $126,000 more than the previous record, set in 1981, and $18 million more than the output in drought-stricken 1983.

All of the increase in 1984 resulted from an outstanding yield in crops, especially corn, which averaged a phenomenal 130 bushels per acre throughout the county, according to county Extention Director Jay W Irwin.

"The record crop year is what made it," Irwin said. "I'm not sure we can surpass it this year."

Production in the county's No. 1 farm industry, dairying, was off slightly in 1984, an apparent reflection of the political and economic forces at work to curb the large dairy surpluses nationwide.

Value of dairy products in 1984 was $211,347,000, down about $488,000 from 1983 and $432,000 from 1982. Cow numbers and production per cow remained almost identical to previous years, said Irwin, adding that the drop in sales was caused mostly by the 50-cent assessment to finance the national dairy diversion program.

Even the county's poultry industry, hard hit by avian influenza, remained the largest in the state. Though the production of broilers, for instance, was down 4.3 million to 39.6 million, the value of the product increased more than $3 million to $53.6 million, apparently reflecting a more favorable price caused by the spread of the virus

Layers and eggs also were up more than $4 million in value, to $102.4 million, even though units were down more than a million to 6.4 million.

Cattle and hog production continued to remain the best in the Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, August 8
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged to higher. Cartoned egg movement was irregular but fairly good overall. Floor stocks were in uneven balance but were generally adequate on extra large and large. Mediums were increasing in availability, but were in generally good balance. Ungraded offerings were light, particularly heavy weight class 1's, which were under a moderately active packer interest. Undertone was cautiously firm.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door:

A Extra Large .63-.67; A Large .62-.66; A Medium .52-.55.

Pennfield Guarantees

An important ingredient in every batch of feed we make at Pennfield is quality control. It's all part of our full service laboratory, located at our company headquarters in Lancaster.

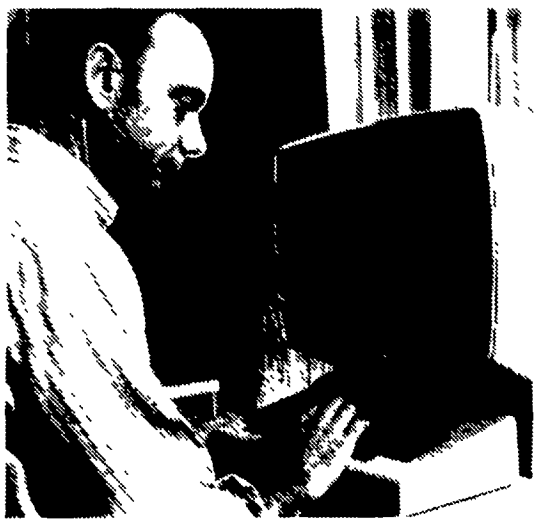
We start with ingredient testing and go all the way to finished feeds. We draw samples from each truck and rail car carrying ingredients to the mill.

the Best Quality Control Program Possible

And we conduct a continuous process of checking and rechecking to be sure that the calculations we're using to make our feeds are based on the actual nutrient content of the ingredients.

As part of our committment to provide the most complete customer service, we have recently expanded our laboratory to include residue monitoring, and we've earned USDA's certification as one of their accredited laboratories for pesticide testing and PCB analysis.

We guarantee you the best quality control program possible. That means accuracy and quick attention to your needs. You might not see it in your feed, but you'll see it in your results.



Computerized Nutritional Programs for Dairy, Hog and Poultry.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 12-18, 1985

A wild sky, things will fly.

Indian leader King Philip killed in Assowamset Swamp Fight, Aug 12 1676 New moon Aug 16 (Fri) President Franklin Roosevelt signed Social Security Act, Aug 14, 1935 Average length of days for the week 13 hours, 55 minutes Vermont militiamen, led by New Hampshire's Gen John Stark defeated British forces at the Battle of Bennington, Aug 16, 1777 The fairest rose is soonest fading

Ask the Old Farmer: A history of a small town in Vermont mentions an ashery having been built in 1831 Can you tell me what an ashery was? FN, Watsonville Calif

Pearl ash, the anhydrous form of potash obtained by processing wood ashes, was a valuable export at times No doubt this was the place where local folks brought their ashes to sell

Home Hints To make a basic marinade for meat or vegetables mix 3 parts oil to 1 part acid (vinegar, wine etc) then season for flavor

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Beginning of week partly cloudy and pleasant, midweek rainy and cool, then warming, end of week continuing rain, warm

Greater New York-New Jersey Week begins with mild temperatures and thundershowers, midweek clear and warm, end of week more thunderstorms

Middle Atlantic Coastal Beginning of week showers, midweek clearing, end of week rainy, warm, possible flooding east

NOW IS THE TIME

To Plan For Fall Wheat Seeding

The time is fast approaching for our wheat growers to be making plans for their fall seeding. Some of the local wheat may not be satisfactory due to the wheat seeds found in some fields this year. If you use local wheat, be sure you know the source and have it cleaned and treated for disease. Also, if you had a scab problem this year, do not plant seed in the same field this fall; the fungus can remain in the soil.

Certified seed would be the best route to take if you experienced any problem with scab or powdery mildew this year. the extra cost for certified seed is well worth it to help insure a good crop next summer.

Plan your seed needs now so you are ready to plant when the conditions are right.

To Check Silo Size

How much silage or high moisture corn must you feed each day to keep ahead of spoilage in the silo? The amount will vary considerably from cold days to hot days. Can your herd consume this much feed? The answer to these questions depends on the diameter of the silo, how well the feed was processed and packed when it was ensiled, herd size, feeding program, season of the year and type of storage structure.

If you are ensiling high moisture ground shelled corn in an upright conventional silo, you'll need to remove at least two inches of grain a day in warmer weather to keep ahead of spoilage. For a 14 foot silo, that is 1,400 pounds or more of corn per day — 24 pounds per cow in a 60 cow herd. If you are ensiling whole shelled corn or ground ear corn, the material does not pack as tightly, and up to four inches may have to be removed daily. Four inches of this material in a 14 foot silo is 2,456 pounds — 41 pounds per cow in a 60 cow herd!

In the latter situation, a 10 foot silo would require 21 pounds of corn be fed. If a limited oxygen storage unit is used, sizing is less critical.

To Renovate Old Pasture

Late August and early September are good times to establish a new pasture, or renovate an old one. In fact, this is a good time of the year to make any pasture or lawn seeding. The old sod should be destroyed by cultivation or by a herbicide. After the soil has been treated with lime and fertilizer, according to a complete soil test, it can be seeded and should produce good grazing for next summer.

The advantage of a fall seeding is to permit time for the new plants to become established before the 1986 hot weather arrives. The cool, moist fall months should give the plants a good start. The Agronomy Guide lists some good seeding recommendations.

To Stay In Touch With Creditors

Maintaining a close relationship with your creditors and telling them about your financial status won't likely ease your debts, but will ease your creditors' mind. Creditors get concerned when someone owes a sizeable bill and they never see him. By staying close to your creditors, you may be able to write another payment plan. Some bankers will renegotiate the payment schedule and add a year or two, thus cutting down the monthly or annual payments.

You may also need to visit about refinancing. In most cases you will be paying a higher rate of interest and it won't do that much good, but it still deserves a look. Sometimes by refinancing through another source you can often obtain a lower rate of interest. It's worth the effort and time to visit with your creditors.

UNINEVITABLE INEVITABILITIES

August 11, 1985

Background Scripture:
Zechariah 1:1-6,2:1-12;8.
Devotional Reading:
Zechariah 8:9-19.

Reading the prophets of the Old Testament, it is easy to pick-up an overwhelming sense of doom. Tragedy and destruction seem inevitable. Yet, if we read carefully we will discover that there is nothing quite so uninevitable as that which seems inevitable. In other words: none of this HAS to be.

In fact, the purpose of prophecy is not to pronounce doom, but to prevent it. As Zechariah says, "But he will turn again and favor you if only you return to him" (1:2). The prophets do not pronounce what will happen, but only what will happen if the people do not change the direction in which they are moving. Doom comes, therefore, not because it is inevitable, but because the people hear the prophecies and still do not change their ways. "Don't be like your fathers were," says Zechariah, "The earlier prophets pled in vain with them to turn from all their evil ways" (1:4).

GOD'S WORD ENDURES

There is a lesson to be learned from both the Bible and the history of the world. That lesson, says Zechariah is that "God's word endures." The commandments he gives to us do not pass away with time as does everything else. The warnings he gives us stay in force until either change or suffer the consequences of our [illegible] Speaking of God's word which endures, Zechariah says, "It caught up with them and punished them. Then at last they repented." Then, at last the people were moved to realize, "He has done just what he warned us he would."

So the most important part of any prophecy is not the recital of terrible things that are going to happen, but the invitation to "Come, return to me." If we heed this invitation, we can learn to avoid the calamities which are inevitable only when we are unresponsive to his warnings. The purpose of prophecy, then, is to bring about repentance.

SING AND REJOICE

Actually, prophecy can bring us hope instead of despair, for it is based upon God's plan and purpose for the world. And that plan and purpose is not destruction, but a fulfillment that is happy for both God and his children—"And the Lord answered the angel who stood beside me, speaking words of comfort and assurance" (1:13).

The fulfillment of God's purpose--only that is truly inevitable.

Northeast DHI services combined

ITHACA, NY — On Aug. 1, Connecticut DHI began receiving all its management and laboratory services from New York DHI.

Connecticut DHI has signed a three-year contract with New York DHI to manage services to its members. Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine will follow in six to nine months.

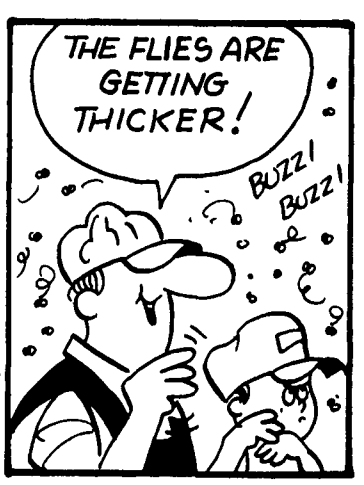
These contracts are the first step toward a Northeast regional DHI cooperative, which would be centered at the present New York DHI office in Ithaca, New York.

For now, these states have only contracted for New York services, as New Jersey now does, with a 6-cent-per-cow surcharge over New York member rates. A merger for a Northeast cooperative is still pending the approval of the New York delegates.

Sandra Blakeslee, of Lebanon, Conn., was hired as New York DHI's new region manager for Connecticut. Blakeslee was a supervisor for Connecticut DHI for eight years. Most of Connecticut DHI's field staff will be hired by New York DHI.

One of the major advantages of the proposed merger is the potential ability to accomplish more together than could be accomplished as separate units, says New York General Manager Nelvin Empet.

The larger size of the merged cooperative will allow it to better meet the members' needs by staying competitive with new services and products, a faster turnaround and a well-trained, professionally supported supervisor on every farm every month, Empet says.



Breeding a brighter future!

Stop By Our Booth At AG PROGRESS DAYS

A panel of dairy industry leaders and economists spoke about the problems facing the dairy industry at a meeting this week at the Farm and Home Center. Participants, from left, were State Rep. John Barley; dairy farmers John Howard and John Brubaker; Earl Fink, executive vice president of the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers; James Fraher, economist for Eastern Milk Producers; and John Collins, manager of Dairymen, Inc.'s Middle Atlantic Division.

Pat Wolff, a legislative aide for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, addresses the dairy outlook session at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

his group also did not support a diversion plan, which, he said, could be costly and could result in shortages in some areas, as it did in the previous diversion program.

Noting the possible impact of bovine growth hormone, John Collins, manager of Dairymen, Inc.'s Middle Atlantic Division, estimated that the new technology could increase production 10 percent, with only minor offsetting increases in feed costs.

Monsanto, he said, has already had a hormone approved, and Eastman Kodak is readying its version.

Introduction of the hormone, he noted, could result in another price reduction — probably in the three- to four-percent range.

During the panel discussion, Fraher noted that the health of the industry requires that supply more closely match demand.

"When markets are in better balance, the price will improve," he noted.

All concluded, however, that the dairy industry must have a high degree of cooperation from the entire industry. The recent advertising and promotional effort, they said, is a first step in the right direction.

"I think dairymen are beginning to realize that we have to sell our own products," said Kirkland. "I think the dairy industry is finally waking up."

state, with cattle and calves dropping slightly to 267,000 cattle sold for a value of $153.5 million. Hogs were up slightly in value, to $24 million, while numbers were off 36,000 to 304,000.

It was the county's crop year, however, which drew the most attention from Irwin.

The county's corn crop more than doubled the yield from 1983 and surpassed the previous yield record, set in 1982, by ten bushels.

Irwin attributed some of the increase to the failure of 1983 plants to fully utilize all the nutrients in the soil, thus giving the 1984 crop "a shot in the arm."

Soybeans, with an average yield of 42 bushels an acre, reached $2.3 million, while hay, with an outstanding yield of four tons an acre, totaled $29.6 million.

Tobacco, an extremely drought resistant crop, remained almost identical to 1983 totals, with sales of $18.9 million on 10,800 acres in production.

Wheat, barley and oats all were up slightly in value, to $2.9 million, $1.1 million and $231,660, respectively.

"I think it's significant that 1984 was a record year through all the hardships like A.I. and pseudorabies," concluded Irwin. "Lancaster County is still a very strong agricultural county, and I think we've got to look at the good things."

NEW!

David and Benjamin Ginder

The new Plasson Cage Cup has proven itself in extensive testing and is now available to egg producers

David and Benjamin Ginder, Ginder Brothers, Mt. Joy, Pa. say "We just knew the new Plasson Cage Cup was a good one when we saw how it was engineered. It's just a fool-proof cage waterer. Since the easy and economical installation, the Cup has been virtually trouble-free for us, no leakage, and the Plasson Cage Cup makes it easier for our birds to get water."

Plasson Cage Cup Features are • unique valve design ensures dependable, uninterrupted leak-proof operation • water in the cup not in the manure pit • the main water line can be shut off at night • no syphoning air lock or over flow • easy, economical installation and cleaning • constructed of high impact polypropylene resistant to various types of chemicals and medications • available in saddle or screw-type models • thoroughly tested and proven to be efficient and economical • The Plasson Cup is fool-proof and trouble free you'll increase your profits and your production

Penn State prof receives $27,000 Dairy Board grant

STATE COLLEGE – Paul S. Dimick, professor of food science at The Pennsylvania State University, was awarded a two-year, $27,000 research grant by the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board.

Dr. Dimick will use the funding to study the nutrient and flavor quality of vitamin A-fortified skim and low-fat milks exposed to fluorescent light during commercial distribution and sales.

"Under regular pasteurization, there is little or no destruction to vitamin A in milk," Dr. Dimick explains. "But when fats are removed for the production of low fat and skim milks, vitamin A is also removed. Therefore, processors may fortify these milks to bring vitamin A back to its normal levels.

Most vitamin A is added to milk through suplements in vegetable oil or butterfat, and some is also added in a water form. But vitamin A supplements are less stable under fluorescent lights than vitamin A found naturally in milk, and may give milk a medicinal flavor. That's where Dimick's research comes in.

"Our objective is to evaluate the off-flavors created by the photo-breakdown of vitamin A," he says. "We also want to determine the nature of vitamin A normally present in milk and attempt to understand the protective principles of this vitamin form as compared with supplemental forms of vitamin A."

Studies have found that a 60 percent loss of vitamin A can occur if fortified milk is exposed to fluorescent light for more than three hours, compared to only a 20 percent loss of vitamin A in whole milk in the same time period. Since the stability of vitamin A is related to milk flavor, the greater the breakdown in vitamin A, the more pronounced the medicinal flavor. Sales may be affected.

"We hope to find out how to protect vitamin A to make fortified milk more attractive to the consumer," Dimick says. "Consumers should include milk in their diets for the calcium, riboflavin and high quality protein."

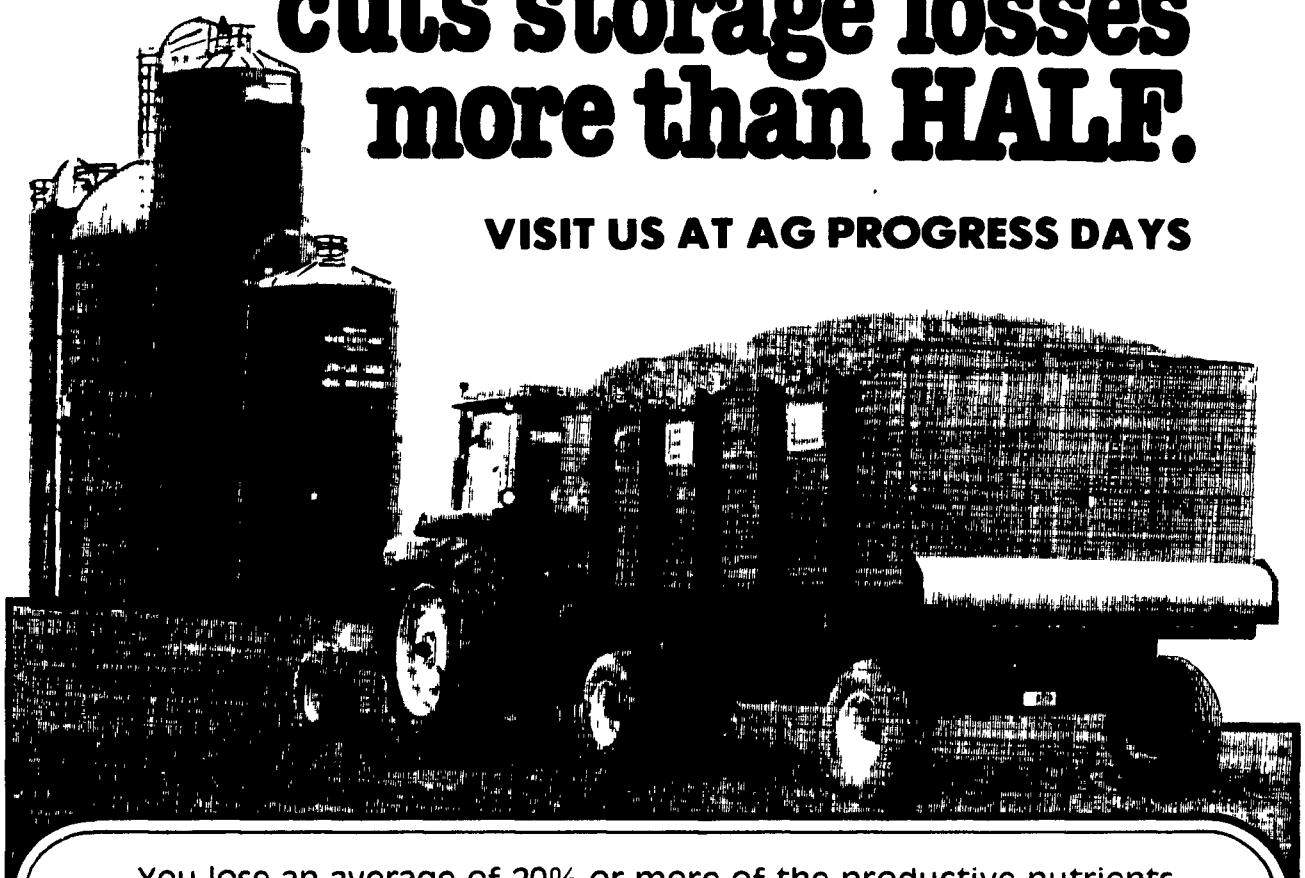
Heather Losee and Rose Fellman, two graduate students in food science, will work with Dimick on the project.

Increase your silage yield from your silo...

Silo Guard® II

cuts storage losses more than HALF.

VISIT US AT AG PROGRESS DAYS



You lose an average of 20% or more of the productive nutrients present in stored fresh-cut forage through the silage fermentation process. It has been proven that silage treated with SILO GUARD II saves up to 50% of these valuable nutrients.

This year more than ever, protect your stored corn silage and high moisture corn from fermentation losses and avoid the added expense of grain and feed costs. The improved formula of SILO GUARD II out performs the orginal product and all others with proven results, both in University research programs and in the field.

SILO GUARD II treated silage represents more milk production or weight gain from each ton of silage stored and fed . . . earning you greater profits!

The Best by Test and Performance.

- Silo Guard II reduced ensiling temperature degree days by 88%
- Silo Guard II increased beneficial acid production by 4%
- Silo Guard II improved protein utilization of the silage by 12%
- Silo Guard II improved "Bunk life" of the silage by 21%

Financial stress reported by 13 percent of farmers

WASHINGTON — About 13 percent of farmers responding to a new U.S. Department of Agriculture survey of 1985 farm financial conditions reported financial stress due to a combination of a high debt load and an inability to generate enough cash to pay their bills.

However, more than four-fifths of U.S. farms were found to be in relatively sound financial condition, according to the survey report, "Financial Characteristics of U.S. Farms, January 1985," released today by USDA's Economic Research Service.

ERS Administrator John Lee said more than half of the 214,000 farmers reporting financial stress have annual sales of at least $40,000.

These data were gathered by USDA's Farm Costs and Returns Survey, which provides financial details on about 1.7 million U.S. farms, Lee said. The survey, conducted this spring, reflects the financial status of farms as of Jan. 1, 1985.

Lee said the degree of financial stress is based on two measures — a farm's debt/asset ratio and its estimated cash flow.

The debt/asset ratio compares the amount owed to creditors with the value of farm assets and indicates a farm's overall financial soundness. When the debt/asset ratio rises to 40 percent, a farm is considered to be highly leveraged and susceptible to financial problems.

The farm's cash flow position indicates the ability of the farm business and household to generate income from farm or nonfarm sources to meet production expenses, repay debt installments on principal and interest, and provide for family living expenses.

The survey indicated that nearly one-third of all farms with annual sales over $40,000 face some form of financial difficulty. About 20 percent of farms with $40,000 or more in sales show financial stress because of both high debt load and negative cash flow. An additional 10 percent are considered at risk of developing financial problems because of high debt loads, despite positive cash flow last year.

Lee said these developments are critical because farms with more than $40,000 in annual sales — while only 34 percent of all farms — account for 90 percent of all farm sales. Only 9 percent of the smaller farms with annual farm sales less than $40,000 are financially stressed.

A large proportion of farm debt is owed by highly leveraged farm operators. The survey showed that as of Jan. 1, 1985, 29 percent of the farm debt was owed by farmers with debt/asset ratios over 70 percent, and that another 33 percent was owed by farmers with debt/asset ratios of 40-70 percent The Southwest, Southern Plains, Pacific, and Corn Belt regions have the largest share of debt owed by farmers with debt/asset ratios over 70 percent. Two-thirds of the debt owed by farmers with debt/asset ratios over 70 percent is owed by farmers with sales of more than $100,000 per year.

Study finds soybean price not manipulated in '84

ST. LOUIS — There is no evidence that market manipulation was a factor in the collapse of soybean prices in early 1984, according to an independent study just released by a farmer task force of the American Soybean Association (ASA).

Roy Smith, a soybean farmer from Nebraska and Chairman of ASA's Futures Advisory Committee, says that while there continues to be concern about "unethical business practices" related to soybean futures trading and attempts to "bully" the market by certain individuals and/or firms, the results of the year-long investigation indicate soybean price action during the period studied was a true reflection of supply/demand conditions.

The study was initiated as a result of farmer concern early in 1984 that sharp market declines were brought on by systematic manipulation by a few large trading firms.

The Soybean Association report is based on statistical analysis of trading history and information gathered in interviews with representatives of the grain merchandising industry and futures industry officials.

The report was the conclusion of several ASA actions in response to farmer concern over futures trading activity. In April of 1984, ASA officially expressed its concerns to the Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) and the Commodities Futures Trading Commission (CFTC). ASA urged the CBOT to take immediate action to restore farmer confidence in futures trading. ASA also requested that the CFTC initiate a special inquiry into soybean futures trading to determine if illegal activities had occurred. At the same time a special ASA Futures Advisory Committee was established to conduct ASA's own independent investigation.

According to Smith, Soybean Association actions over the last two years have produced several beneficial results for farmers. Most important, the CBOT established an Agricultural Advisory Committee made up of farmer commodity representatives who review and monitor trading activities. The CFTC also responded favorably to ASA's concerns by initiating its own study of CBOT futures trading, and establishing an advisory committee of commodity organization representatives.

"We hope these actions and the study will encourage greater confidence among ASA members and farmers at large in the future market," says Smith.

In its formal report, the committee listed the following conclusions:

- Price levels achieved during the 1983/84 period reflected the true value of soybeans compared to periods of similar supply/demand fundamentals in the past.
- Soybean prices are more volatile now than 10 or 15 years ago, but the increase in volatility is related to higher price levels and changes in supply/demand factors.
- On the average, price volatility within a trading day during the time studied appears relatively evenly distributed, with only slight increases during the opening and close.
- Changes in commodity tax laws in 1981 have decreased trading volume in further out contract months.
- Soybean futures trading volume has not diminished because of increases in trading in other commodities.
- Computer and other forms of technical trading do not impact the long term economic value of soybeans.
- Volume in the soybean futures market in relation to crop size has increased sharply in recent years.

Penn State gets grant to link ag, liberal arts

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Pennsylvania State University has received a $100,355 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan, to establish an educational program linking agriculture and the liberal arts.

The Food, Agriculture, and Society program, developed by Penn State's College of Agriculture in cooperation with the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Human Development and the Science, Technology and Society Program, will focus on issues facing agriculture and society.

"We need to develop an informed public," says Dr. Dorothy Blair, assistant professor of nutrition and agriculture and director of the new program. "As fewer people are directly involved in agricultural production, fewer are aware of the agricultural issues facing our society. The agricultural industry and agricultural researchers can no longer assume the voting public understands the problems facing agriculture today. A liberal education must include studies about our agricultural heritage and about the effects agricultural sciences and technology have on our environment and on our economy," she says.

"Penn State is very fortunate to receive this grant. Both the economy and security of this country have been built upon agricultural productivity. Agriculture is a natural resource, which must be preserved for future generations. The Kellogg project will contribute significantly to the achievement of this goal," says Dr. Gene M. Love, associate dean for the College of Agriculture.

The Kellogg grant will support program development over a two-year period. In addition, Penn State has made a continuing commitment to support faculty involvement and to fund a colloquium series as well as a conference on agriculture and society.

According to Dr. Rustum Roy, director of Penn State's Science, Technology, and Society program, director of the Materials Research Laboratory and member of the program executive committee, "The Kellogg effort is an excellent example of the STS approach to integrative education. It brings central aspects of our technological culture, namely food production, into a humanist perspective."

Dr. Love, Dr. Herbert Cole Jr., professor of plant pathology, and Dr. John J. Romano, associate dean for the College of Liberal Arts, are other members of the executive committee who will continue to work with Dr. Blair in program development.

Core courses will put agricultural practice and rural life into historical and ecological perspective and stress the relationship between agricultural production and society. Courses also will investigate food policy and the use of food as a political and economic tool.

Three courses, World Food Production Systems in Historical and Ecological Perspective; the American Food System; History, Technology and Culture; and Agriculture, Politics, and Public Policy will be offered in 1986. They will be taught in conjunction with two practical courses in integrated agriculture offered at the Circleville Farm, a student demonstration farm supported by the College of Agriculture and a grant from the Pennsylvania state legislature.

"The Food, Agriculture and Society program is supportive of the major educational objectives of the College of Agriculture, particularly of its commitment toward increasing student abilities in communications and problem solving and toward student involvement in the moral and ethical issues surrounding world agriculture, food, and nutrition," says Dr. Love.

The Kellogg Foundation first provided support for programming to introduce agriculture into the liberal arts in 1976. Since then grants have been awarded to more than 20 projects. Representatives of the first 11 colleges gathered at a conference at the University of Florida, Gainesville, to share with other universities and colleges project experiences to help them in establishing similar programs to integrate liberal arts and agriculture.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation, established in 1930 to "help people help themselves," has distributed more than $768 million in support of programs in agriculture, education, and health. Areas of emphasis within those broad fields include adult continuing education; betterment of health; communitywide, coordinated, cost-effective health services; a wholesome food supply; and broadening leadership capacity of individuals. In Michigan only, projects are supported for economic development and opportunities for youth. The Foundation is today among the largest private philathropic organizations in the nation. It supports programs in the United States, Latin America and the Caribbean as well as international fellowship programs in other countries.

Cultivating Agricultural Literacy: Challenge for the Liberal Arts was recently published by the Kellogg Foundation. The book looks at the long-range effects that uniformed decisionmaking has on America's food supply. It also details 11 pacesetting foundation-assisted projects that showed it is feasible and desirable to introduce data about food, agriculture, and agribusiness into the liberal arts curriculum. Copies of the book can be ordered free of charge from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation Communications Office, 400 North Avenue, Battle Creek, Michigan 49016.

Crawford Holstein breeders triumph in Western Championship

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

NEW CASTLE — Queens Manor Holsteins, owned by the Ed Doeberiener family, Jamestown, led the Crawford County Holstein breeders to the winners' circle at last week's Western Pennsylvania Championship Holstein Show.

Doeberieners, together with Morrell Farms and Vel-Rus Farms, both of Cochranton, captured all the major awards in the championship show, held at the Lawrence County Fairgrounds.

Six-year-old Leadfield Telstar Linda - ET won the grand championship for the Queens Manor exhibitors. Showing her tremendous size and frame, and fresh just three weeks, Linda earned first place with best udder in the aged cow class and then went on to be named senior and grand champion of the show.

The Leadfield entry also earned the best-bred-and-owned award of the show.

Ebe-Tide Mona Maria captured the reserve grand honors for Morrell Farms. She edged out the well-known C Cala Hill Kelly Ned-Red, a Queens Manor entry, in the five-year-old class, and then went on to earn the reserve senior and reserve grand championships.

Maria also received the award for best udder of the show and led her stable-mates to a first-place win as best three females.

Morrell Farms also showed the top senior yearling to the junior championship Merrillea Pete Marny is a September 1983, Straight-Pine Elevation Pete daughter.

Ten-year-old Michele Freyermuth, also of Cochranton, showed a double winner in the youth and open competition. Her Spring-Lake-Vu-Commlady Camero, a junior yearling sired by Wauk-A-Way Fond Reliance, was named reserve junior champion in the open competition and junior champion among the junior exhibitors.

The title of champion bull was awarded to Leadfield Priority - ET, a December 1983, Leadfield Columbus - ET son out of the grand champion cow.

Paul and Sharon Fox, Rockwood, followed with the reserve champion bull, a junior yearling born March 1984, and also sired by the Columbus bull.

Queens Manor was named the premier exhibitor of the western championship show, while Vel-Rus Farms, operated by the Ernest Oakes family, received the premier breeder banner.

Judge Ron Long, of Select Sires, Plain City, Ohio, commented that the show was superb, with good cows shown throughout the day. A count of 179 head passed before Long during the day's show.

In junior division competition, it was "like father, like son". Justin Doeberiener led four-year-old Conrid Astrostar Lynn to the grand championship. The Leadfield Stardom - ET daughter was also a first-place winner in the open show and was second best udder.

The reserve grand championship was placed on five-year-old Vel-Rus Cairo Design Seven-Up, exhibited by Ernest Ray Oakes II. Seven-Up is sired by Kanzabrook Matt Carlo and was bred by Oakes' parents

Crop conditions good

HARRISBURG — Picking of snap beans and sweet corn highlighted activities for the week ending August 4, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The Service noted that, in the state's orchards, 11 percent of the apple crop was reported to be harvested, while 32 percent of the peach crop was harvested.

Statewide, five days were rated suitable for fieldwork. Overall crop conditions remained fair to mostly good. Activities for the week included harvesting hay, haylage, snap beans, sweet corn, potatoes and tomatoes; combining wheat and oats; baling straw, spraying alfalfa; and fall plowing.

Across the state, 58 percent of the corn crop was in the silk stage and nine percent in the dough stage. Overall crop condition was reported as one percent very poor, three percent poor, 12 percent fair, 39 percent good and 45 percent excellent. Northern area reporters indicated one percent of the crop very poor, five percent poor, 19 percent fair, 44 percent good and 31 percent excellent. Central region reporters estimated one percent very poor, one percent poor, 10 percent fair, 25 percent good and 63 percent excellent. Southern region reporters indicate two percent very poor, four percent poor, nine percent fair, 47 percent good and 38 percent excellent.

The wheat crop across the state was reported to be 89 percent harvested, 77 percent was harvested at this time last year. Northern area reporters indicated 76 percent harvested, central and southern area reporters estimated 92 and 95 percent harvested respectively.

The barley crop was reported as 98 percent harvested statewide. Northern reporters estimated 94 percent, central area reporters indicated harvesting virtually complete, and southern area reporters estimated 98 percent of the harvest completed.

Oat harvesting was reported as 56 percent complete throughout the state. In the northern section 24 percent of the harvest was complete, in the central area 63 percent of the crop was harvested, and in the southern region 66 percent of the crop was harvested.

The potato harvest got underway as 16 percent of the crop was reported harvested statewide. North, central and southern reporters indicate 18 percent, 25 percent and 14 percent of the crop harvested respectively.

Second cutting of alfalfa was estimated as 89 percent complete, 30 percent greater than last year's level. The third cutting of alfalfa was reported to be 28 percent harvested compared with six percent in 1984. The second cutting of clo-tim was estimated as 33 percent complete, one percent greater than last year's level. The quality of hay made was considered poor by nine percent of our reporters, fair by 31 percent and excellent by 60 percent of our reporters. The amount of feed being obtained from pastures was rated below average by 22 percent of the reporters, average by 69 percent and above average by nine percent of the reporters.

USDA readies parity-based dairy supports, anticipating expiration of present law

WASHINGTON — In compliance with current law, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is publishing a proposal to increase the support price of milk to 75 percent of parity effective October 1, 1985.

While the proposal will not be implemented if new price support legislation is enacted effective October 1, 1985, it is necessary to publish the proposal, since current law requires that price support for milk be established, as of October 1, 1985, at a level between 75 and 90 percent of parity.

A support price of 75 percent of parity as of October 1, 1985, is projected to be $16.22 per hundredweight for manufacturing milk of national average milkfat content (3.67 percent), an increase of $4.62 from the present level of $11.60 per hundredweight.

Public comment is requested on the level of price support as well as the continuation of the present policies of:

—establishing manufacturing margins (make allowances) at $1.22 per hundredweight for milk used to manufacture butter and nonfat dry milk and $1.37 per hundredweight for milk used to manufacture cheese;

— establishing the purchase price for block cheese with the purchase price for barrel cheese being established at 4.25 cents per pound below the purchase price for block cheese;

— using a single nationwide support purchase price for butter; — allocating a value of 10 cents per hundredweight of milk used to manufacture cheese to whey solids-not-fat in calculating the support purchase price for cheese; and,

— limiting the low moisture premium for cheese purchases by providing that no additional premium is paid for moisture of less than 34 percent.

In addition, it is proposed that any increase in the suppport price for milk which may be adopted effective October 1, 1985, be allocated, when determining butter and nonfat dry milk purchase prices, two-thirds to butter and one-third to nonfat dry milk. It is also proposed that the present Commodity Credit Corporation sales policy with respect to dairy products be continued

Morrison Cove Dairy Show draws record number

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent

MARTINSBURG — The 35th annual Morrison Cove Dairy Show opened last week with a record number of exhibitors. More than 370 contestants came to the Memorial Park grounds to participate in the five-day event.

The Morrison Cove show offered 4-H and FFA members from a five-county area a chance to compete for top honors in the show ring. In addition, adult exhibitors competed in several open colored breed and Holstein shows.

FFA competition

Five breed shows were included in the district FFA dairy contests. In the Ayrshire event, Amy Brant dominated the championships. She swept all the junior, senior, and grand championships, with the exception of the junior championship, which was won by Lynette Diehl of Bedford with her senior calf.

Brant also earned the top junior herd award in the Ayrshire breed and went on to capture the honors for best junior herd of all breeds.

In Brown Swiss competition Richard Chesney of Martinsburg and John Grove of Mount Union dominated all the classes and championships.

In the FFA Guernsey show, the McDonald sisters — Alicia, Melissa, and Angelique — of Imler outshowed their competitors. They are all members of the Chestnut Ridge FFA Chapter.

The FFA Jersey show had several top showman. Jim Kaufman of Boswell won junior and reserve junior champion; James Hardy of Petersburg won senior and grand champion with his 3-year-old; and James Heeter of Shade Gap won the reserve honors and the junior herd award.

In Holstein competition, Luke Bowser of New Enterprise took the junior championship with his intermediate yearling, and Erin Branstetter of Tyrone won the reserve junior championship.

Ken Diebold, Tyrone, won senior and grand champion honors with a stylish senior two-year-old. Paul Carr from Somerset won the reserve honors, while Geary Shade Jr., of Alexandria, won the junior herd class.

Master fitter in FFA competition was Alicia McDonald, and Robin Smith, of Roaring Spring, won master showman.

4-H shows

The 4-H Guernsey exhibitors saw stiff competition in the show ring. Melissa McDonald won the junior champion honors with her junior yearling, and Melissa Morrow won reserve junior champion.

Beth Anne Clark, of Bedford swept the senior and grand Guernsey championships and the junior herd class.

The Hardy family, including James, Janice, and Jerome, dominated the Jersey show by winning all the breed championships.

Dale Pheasant of Martinsburg won the Blair County over-all colored breed championship with his senior two-year-old Jersey.

Holstein competition saw Miriam Kelly of Tyrone win junior champion, reserve senior and reserve grand champion and the junior herd award. Jennifer Frederick won the grand champion honor with her three-year-old.

In 4-H fitting and showing competition, Michele Burket of Martinsburg won the senior master fitter award. Kenneth Diebold won the senior division master showman honors.

Matthew and Clinton Black, brothers from Tyrone, dominated the junior competition, with Clint being named the master fitter and Matt earning the master showman award.

John Smith, retired York county agent, was the type judge, and Richard Little, Montour county agent, judged fitting and showing.

Open Colored Breeds

In the Morrison Cove open competition, Amy Brant repeated her winning performance with her Ayrshires by winning all the champion honors and the group classes. Judge Creedin Cornman, of Carlisle, complimented Brant on her fine group of Ayrshires.

John Grove, another junior exhibitor, also repeated a win by earning the junior championship with his junior calf in the Brown Swiss open show.

But J. Buck and Associates, of East Freedom, dominated much of the Brown Swiss show, winning reserve junior champion, senior and grand champion, produce of dam, and best three females. Joe Stitt showed the reserve grand champion.

The red and white show had only two entries. Wayne Burket, of Martinsburg, was named junior and reserve grand champion with his junior calf, while Susan Mowry received the grand champion rosette with her four-year-old cow.

Beth Anne Clark and her grandfather, Robert Smith of Misty Meadow Farm in Bedford, earned the top honors in the open Guernsey show. They took all the championships except one and showed first place in all the group classes. Only Angelique McDonald managed to take the reserve junior championship away from them.

The open Jersey competition was also dominated by one family. Dennis and Rebecca Hardy and family, owners of Twix Jerseys of Petersburg, walked away with nearly all of the group class awards and the junior and grand champion honors.

Ralaine Jerseys, owned by the Sollenberger family of Everett, won the reserve placings.

Holstein competition

Dennis Wolfe, Holstein breeder from Millville, judged the Holstein competition on the final day of the Morrison Cove dairy shows. The Dave Burket family of East Freedom caught Wolfe's eye with their quality entries and earned both the premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners.

But Globe Run Farms of Petersburg, owned by John Foster, and the Baker family's Allenor Holstein Farms of Bedford also

The colas battle it out. But one beverage quietly outsells them both!

Believe it or not, Americans buy more milk than Coke and Pepsi—combined.

No other beverage tastes quite like icy cold milk. Think about it. Milk is uniquely satisfying.

And besides being a great-tasting beverage, milk also happens to be nature's most nearly perfect food.

	Milk % RDA *	Coke or Pepsi % RDA
Protein	27%	0%
Vitamin A	18%	0%
Vitamin B_1	15%	0%
Vitamin B_2	50%	0%
Vitamin B_{12}	44%	0%
Vitamin D	76%	0%
Calcium	55%	0%

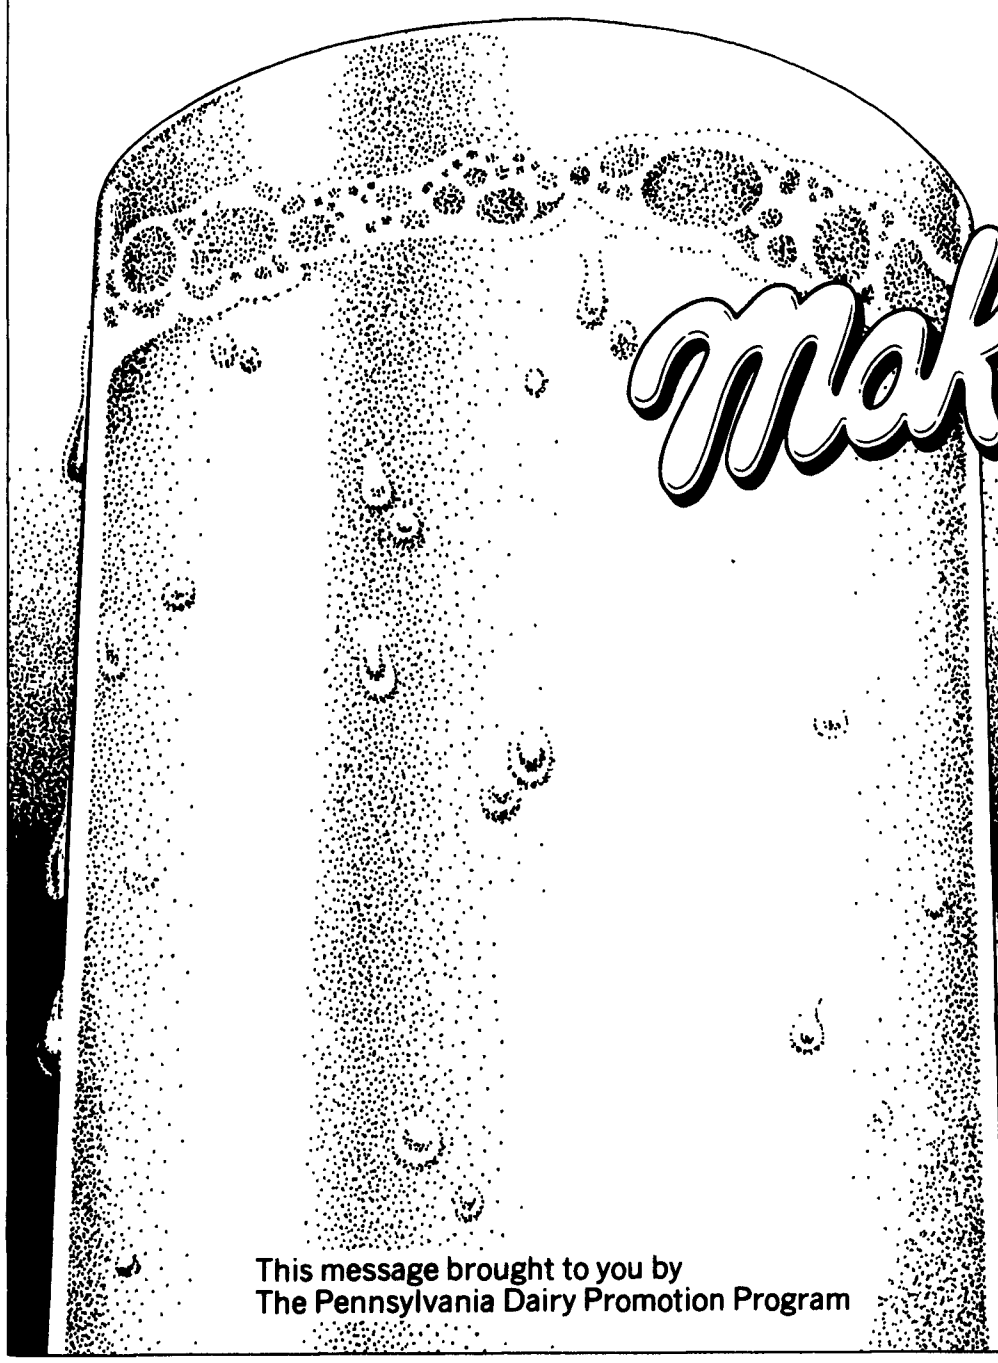
If these numbers don't surprise you, look at the prices.

	Milk	Coke/Pepsi
Price	18.3¢ per 12 oz.*	40.2¢ per 12 oz.*

Milk can cost less than half as much as the leading colas.

Any way you look at it, milk gives you a whole lot more. And you can even buy it for less.

So the next time you want a smooth, ice cold beverage, go for the original...the best-seller...



make it milk SM

were present many times at the top of the line. Globe Run won junior champion and reserve grand champion. Allenor Holsteins earned the reserve junior champion.

Sunnyfour Farms of Bedford won the champion bull award with their senior bull calf. Cindy Showaker won reserve.

Blair County dairy princess Sheila Biddle and Bedford County princess Shawnee Yothers were on hand all week to present ribbons and trophies to the winners.

Judging contest

The week-long activities began with a 4-H and FFA judging competition, with Carl Helsel serving as official judge for the contest.

Senior division (ages 13-21) winners were: 1. Betsy Stitt, 2. Darrell Clapper, 3. Ross Hershberger, 4. Doug Wasson, and 5. Michele Burket.

Winners in the junior division (ages 13 and under) included: 1. Angela Hoover, 2. Kristen Metzger, 3. Lori Smith, 4. Angie McDonald, 5. Matt Greenleaf.

Results from the various dairy shows during the week-long event follow.

W-L Alfalfas. Why grow anything but the Best.

"I've tried the others. W-L is a better, hardier seed. Before I went into W-L heavy, I had tried others. I found that W-L is a better seed to start off with. It germinates better than most of the others. So I've come all the way up to W-L.

It's always done a good job for us—no seed failures, and it goes about four to five years. And W-L has greater disease resistance than the others, not just to one disease, but to several. Yield tests always come up real good, too. W-L Alfalfa is the only one I plant."

Buzzing bee beards attract onlookers to apicultural meeting

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER – Steve Conlon, a homestead farmer and bee hobbyist from West Virginia, and Brad Montgomery, state apiarist from West Virginia, displayed nerves of steel and a talent for "sculpting" to become the winning team in the bee beard contest. The contest was held in conjunction with the 31st annual conference of the Eastern Apicultural Society of North America, Inc. going on at Franklin and Marshall College this week.

The West Virginia duo beat out 11 competitors for the most evenly sculpted beard fashioned from thousands and thousands of bees. Second place team was Dot Harvey and Don Hopkins from New Jersey, and third place team was Richard Vansandt and Max Beck of Florida.

Each group worked with a box of bees, weighing from three to five pounds, with one pound containing about 3,700 bees. The person on whose chin the bees were sculpted had a queen bee in a box tied to his chin.

Once the timing began and the bees were dumped out of their box, the second team member worked with a card, encouraging the bees onto the face and neck of the competitor.

Asked why he entered the contest, Conlon replied, "I had seen Bard do it and I was attracted to the idea of doing something like that. There is not much danger for people who work with bees." Conlon, who was stung on the finger early in the process, said it didn't bother him. He gave all the credit for winning to Montgomery, saying, "It is the skill of the applicator."

Montgomery said he was glad to be the sculptor and not the sculptee, noting, "I knew he had the nerve." He pointed out that the secret of getting a well balanced beard is that bees like to go to the shady side of the face. So once they did, he created shade on the other side with the cardboard which is permitted to hold the bees during the sculpting process.

"I don't want to suggest people try this themselves. There is always a risk," Montgomery cautioned. However, he said there was little danger from these bees because they were well fed prior to being released. He also said that change is what causes them to sting, and noted that if there had been a change in atmospheric pressure during the contest, the bees would not have been so docile.

Montgomery also credited organizers with doing a great job. "The contest here is the best organized bee beard contest I've seen." He complimented them on having a large number of people monitoring the contestants, as well as having professionals available to remove bee stings should the need arise. They also had a vacuum to remove the bees in a hurry if someone got in trouble.

Other smaller but equally important equipment on hand included plenty of rubber bands to close off pant legs and shirt sleeves to prevent bees from stinging under the clothing, and cotton, which contestants stuffed in ears and nostrils prior to the contest.

After the final judging, all the bees were taken off contestants and used to literally cover up Max Bert, who offered to help the group try to grain a place in the Guinness Book of World Records by seeing how many bees they could use to cover him.

The bee beard contest was a small part of the three day conference for the beekeepers, with 670 persons registered from all over the eastern United States and Canada. Prior to the conference a beekeeping short course was offered on the campus.

Throughout the parking lot, bumper stickers extolled the virtues of honey and beekeepers with slogans like, "I'd Rather Bee Keeping," "Bee Keepers Make Better Honeys," and "Bee My Honey." Most of those attending the conference are hobbyists, according to conference officials, but they take their hobby seriously, and enjoy learning more about their favorite sweet.

This contestant in the "bee beard" contest stayed calm and didn't flinch a bit as he coaxed the swarm of bees up over his shoulders to his chin. To attract the bees, a queen bee in a box was tied to his chin.

Do these gents need a trim? Each apiarist used thousands of bees to sculpt a beard on his chin and face.

Dairymen urged to vote in promotion referendum

HARRISBURG – Acting State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb has reminded the state's 15,500 dairy farmers that they have until August 20 to vote in the National Dairy Promotion Program referendum.

Grubb said, "To remain successful in the 1980's, farmers must aggressively market and promote their products. For this reason, in light of the successes through the program to date, the Department is recommending dairy farmers vote yes on the referendum.

"The choice is yours," Grubb said. "The program has funded national, regional and state and local dairy promotion and advertising programs to increase sales of milk and dairy products for the past year. A positive vote in the referendum will enable these programs to comtinue."

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Program was established by federal legislation which authorized a mandatory 15 cents per hundredweight assessment on dairy farmers' milk checks for use in a national dairy promotion program. On a voluntary basis, producers can have ten cents of their assessment channelled into local advertising programs.

Four major regional advertising and promotional efforts are underway in Pennsylvania, including the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, and Federal Orders 2,4 and 36. These programs are funded through producers' voluntary decision to use ten cents for regional marketing efforts.

According to Grubb, Pennsylvania dairy cooperative members have been notified of their cooperative's position. These producers do not have to vote if they support their cooperative's position. Cooperative members wishing to vote contrary to their cooperative's position should have received a ballot from the cooperative.

Independent dairy producers should contact their local ASCS Office for a ballot and mail it in the envelope provided by August 20.

"Dairy producers have become a major force in the market through this program," he noted. "For the first time, all dairy farmers are investing in the future of their product, seeking to expand and develop markets." The National Dairy Board and regional promotion programs are expected to raise as much as $200 million for promotion and advertising in 1985-86.

Grubb said farmers with questions should call the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is administering the referendum, toll free at 1-800-423-7206.

tion. Farmers want price and profits, not government controls and payments.

"We need export-expanding, market-oriented loan levels that will help farmers to compete as in the past, and expand our core of markets.

"Those markets are growing. They'll grow faster in the years ahead. However, under our current policies, we just aren't getting our fair share."

Block said the Administration is meeting with farm groups and is entertaining suggestions and new approaches from legislators and interested groups.

But, he concluded, "the Administration will put its foot down in certain places and certain issues."

Potter 4-H/FFA Horse Show

MILLIGRT Thirty two Potter County 4-H'ers and one FFA member participated in the 4-H and FFA Horse Show, last week, at the Potter County Fairgrounds.

Tim Hoppe, Harrison Valley, received a blue ribbon in the tack class for junior members, while Valery Barnett, Mike Bova, Sarah Shatz, Coudersport RD; Candy Hunt, Genesee; Candy Hoppe, Harrison Valley; Mike Hyde, Jackie Perkins, and Todd Wheaton; Shinglehouse, Bridgette Vetter, Mills, and Amy Watson, Struthers, Ohio all won blue ribbons in the tack class.

This year four horses were entered in production classes. Kelly Lehman, Harrison Valley, took a blue ribbon with his yearling colt grade pony. Marie Erway also took a blue ribbon with her first year filly Belgian. Judy Erway took a blue ribbon for her FFA project a 2-year-old filly Belgian, while Bridgette Vetter picked up a blue ribbon with a 3-year-old futurity horse.

In showmanship and grooming for junior exhibitors under age 14, first place went to Candy Hoppe on Shesa Golden Babe, while Mike Bova took second place with Dill's Kit Cat and Jim Bob Klesa, third, with Dial A Princess.

Showmanship and grooming honors for senior exhibitors went to Valery Barnett, first place on Eternal Solo; Bridgette Vetter, second, with Silver Dollar Skip and Allen Hyde, Shinglehouse, third, with Sue B.

In junior member showmanship and grooming Tim Hoppe finished first, Heidi Shatz, Coudersport RD, second, and Melinda McCaslin, Genesee, RD, third.

John Lehman, Genesee RD, took a blue ribbon in pleasure pony driving.

In open trail riding for ponies 13.2 hands and under, Jackie Perkins, Shinglehouse, on Cricket took first place. Cristel Nicastro, Shinglehouse, on Princess was second, and Toby Bova on Thunder was third.

In open trail, over 13.2 hands, first place went to Rick Higley, Shinglehouse, on Mountain Fawn, while Todd Wheaton, also from Shinglehouse, took second place on Al-Ro-Wa. Bridgette Vetter on Silver Dollar Skip was third.

First place in pleasure pairs class went to Darla Tormey, Harrison Valley on Tieko 76ER and Chyrie Wheaton, Shinglehouse, on Narada.

In junior division stock seat equitation first place went to Sarah Shatz with Misty, while Mike Bova on Dill's Kit Cat was second, and Chyrie Wheaton on Narada, third.

In stock seat equitation, walk-trot only, for junior members, Melinda McCaslin finished first with Golden Lace, while Eric Fuller with Beau and Brian Fuller with Cindy took second and third, respectively. The Fullers are from Shinglehouse.

In the senior division, Bridgette Vetter on Silver Dollar Skip took first place, Allen Hyde on Sue B took second, and Rick Higley on Mountain Farm was third.

In the western pleasure ponies (12.2 hands and under) class, first place went to Jackie Perkins and second to Cristel Nicastro.

Chyrie Wheaton took first place in western pleasure ponies (12.2 hands to 14.0 hands) with Narada, Sarah Shatz was second, and Toby Bova, third.

First in western pleasure horses was Mike Bova on Dill's Kit Cat, with Bridgette Vetter, second, on Silver Dollar Skip, and Allen Hyde, third, on Sue B.

In the Western Riding Contest first place went to Todd Wheaton on Al-Ro-Wa, second to Rick Higley on Mountain Fawn and third to Bridgette Vetter with Silver Dollar Skip.

In the pole bending race Jenny Rathmell finished in 33.6 seconds, with Jackie Perkins on Cricket finishing in 34.8 seconds, and Mary Fuller on Cindy at 43.7.

In pole bending over 13.2 hands, Rick Higley on Mountain Farm was clocked at 26.5 seconds, while Darla Tormey on Tieko 76ER came in at 34.7 and Mike Bova on Dill's Kit Cat at 43.4.

Top winner in the clover leaf barrel race for ponies 13.2 hands and under was Jackie Perkins in 24.4 seconds. Close behind her was Jenny Rathmell in 24.8 seconds.

Rick Higley had a time of 19.8 seconds in the clover leaf barrel race over 13.2 hands. Todd Wheaton on Al-Ro-Wa was second in 22.7 seconds and Kelby Fuller on Beau, third, in 30.2 seconds.

In raised-box keyhole race for 13.2 hands and under Jackie Perkins on Cricket and Jenny Rathmell finished in a dead heat at 12.5 seconds. In a face off Jenny was the winner at 11.1 seconds. Third place went to Cristel Nicastro at 19.6 seconds.

The raised-box keyhole over 13.2 hands was also nip and tuck when Rick Higley and Mountain Fawn finished at 9.9 seconds, just one tenth of a second ahead of Todd Wheaton on Al-Ro-Wa at 10.0. Third place went to Kelby Fuller at 14.4.

In hunter seat equitation (not to jump) Candy Hoppe took first place and a red ribbon in the junior division, while Valery Barnett on Eternal Solo took a first place blue.

Mike Hyde took a blue ribbon in hunter seat equitation over jumps and also a blue ribbon in hunter ponies 14.2 hands and under, while Valery Barnett took a first place blue in hunter horses over 14.2 hands. Candy Hoppe on Shesa Golden Babe finished second.

Mike Hyde on No April Fooling PL took a first place blue ribbon in working hunter ponies.

Fifteen 4-H'ers will be competing in the district horse show.

Dairymen, Inc. holds district meeting

Fred Butler (right), president of the board of directors of the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc., greets Albert Mellinger at the District 14 annual meeting of Dairymen, held Thursday evening in Gordonville. Mellinger, along with Phares Hurst, Leola, serve as district directors of the dairy cooperative.

Division manager John I. Collins Jr. was also on hand at the meeting and reported that Dairymen has "done a lot of things to meet the upcoming challenges in the dairy industry." He predicted a bright future for the cooperative and an increase in Dairymen production and membership back to 1983 levels.

Also during the meeting, district fieldman Eugene Frey explained the cooperative's equity program to the attending producers and reminded them that Dairymen is the only dairy cooperative in the U.S. that pays back on a five-year schedule.

Dairymen, Inc. serves farmers in 17 states and has a $1.2 billion annual business.

Lancaster Holstein Field Day

A judging contest highlighted events at the Lancaster County Holstein Field Day, held Thursday at the farm of Nelson Wenger, Manheim.

Contestants judged heifers, three-year-olds, and aged cows, while Atlantic's Dale Olver served as official judge. First-place winners were (from left): Dorothy Ranck, women; Tom Wiker, youth; and Clifford Gibble, men.

Other activities at the field day included a buffet lunch and brief reports from Lancaster county agent Glenn Shirk, dairy princess Janae Martin, and state director Mowery Frey.

USDA perfecting vaccine for bluetongue in sheep

WASHINGTON — U S Department of Agriculture researchers have had 100 percent success in tests of two experimental vaccines to protect sheep against costly bluetongue disease, a USDA scientist said.

Charles H. Campbell of USDA's Agricultural Research Service said the vaccines immunized 12 sheep against two of the five bluetongue viruses that are in this country and cost farmers millions of dollars a year. Worldwide, there are 24 types of the virus that strike cattle as well as sheep.

Campbell, a microbiologist, did the vaccine research at the Plum Island Animal Disease Center off Long Island, N.Y., and veterinarian T Lynwood Barber undertook the testing at the agency's Arthropod-borne Animal Diseases Laboratory, Denver, Colo.

Their research could fill the void for safe vaccines against bluetongue in sheep, according to Dyarl D. King, the research agency's national program director for animal health. A live virus vaccine for one of the viruses, type 10, is approved for sheep, King said, but "live vaccine viruses may revert to a virulent form or cause birth defects if given to pregnant animals."

The new vaccines are safe because they rely on killed viruses, Campbell said. Gamma radiation was used for the first time, he said, to kill bluetongue viruses needed to produce the vaccines

Gamma radiation destroys the interior genes of the virus without harming its protein coat that, in effect, alerts an animal to the bluetongue invading its body. An animal recognizes the coat as a foreign agent and forms antibodies to fight the virus.

Campbell said further tests will be made to confirm the initial success in sheep. Vaccines could be available in five or six years, he said, pending the outcome of the testing and federal approval.

Bluetongue is spread by flying gnats that bite cattle, the main carriers of the virus, and then attack sheep. Infected sheep can die or suffer mouth sores, lameness, abortions and birth defects, while cattle can recover but still carry the virus without showing any signs of the disease.

No vaccine is available, Campbell said, to protect cattle against the disease, which is found in most parts of the country. It occurs primarily in southern and western states.

Record-setting Ram Lamb Sale held at Penn State

BY SALLY DUNMIRE
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — Pennsylvania's 7th Performance Tested Ram Lamb Sale was held Aug. 3, at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center, adjacent to the Penn State campus.

Of the 40 ram lambs on test, 29 qualified for the sale, including 14 Suffolks, two senior Dorsets, nine junior Dorsets, two Hampshires, one Cheviot and one Shropshire. To round out the event, 43 ewes were offered for sale, representing the Suffolk, Dorset, Hampshire, Cheviot, Shropshire, Columbia, Merino and Southdown breeds. A few crossbred females were also offered.

"All the rams were handled identically, then were evaluated and tested on a number of criteria," said Glenn Eberly, the center's director.

During the initial seven-day adjustment period, the animals were allowed to settle into their new surroundings, were wormed and introduced to their feed before the test began. The 84-day test period ended July 16.

During the test, the sheep were self-fed a ration of cracked corn, rolled oats, linseed oil meal pellets, soybean oil meal, Selenium premix, Bovatec 68 premix, wheat middlings, high zinc salts, potassium chloride, limestone, vitamins and antibiotics, plus a small amount of hay.

Each ram was then performance rated over the test period for average daily gain, daily gain ratio, weight per day of age, weight per day of age ratio, fat and fat ratio, loin and loin ratio (done ultrasonically), height and scrotal circumference. All rams were then evaluated against each other using an index ratio derived from the above traits.

Thomas Hopkins and daughter Penny pose with their newly acquired Suffolk ram, purchased from Lynn Laudenslager.

Top selling ram honors went to a Penn State Suffolk ram, Penn State 8526, a twin born Jan. 24, 1985, to a Penn State sire and dam. Beginning the test on April 23, at 112 pounds, the top ram finished at 205 pounds, for an average daily gain of 1.11 pounds and a gain ratio of 106 percent. Patrick Flynn of Silver Springs, Md., was high bidder at $525.

Two more Suffolks also tied for second highest selling honors at $500. The first of these was another Penn State ram, Penn State 8533, born Jan. 25, that registered an average daily gain of 1.15 pounds and a final index of 108. This ram went home with John Scott Jr., of Princeton, W.Va.

Thomas Hopkins of Georgetown, Pa., also paid $500 for his ram, consigned by Lynn Laudenslager of Dalmatia. Born Jan. 2, to a Narrow Lanes sire and an Arlo Farms dam, he registered an average daily gain of 1.01 pounds and a final index of 97 percent. Hopkins also purchased four ewes at the sale.

In the senior Dorset division, the top selling ram, consigned by Peter J. Levan of Bellefonte, logged an ADG of .73 pounds and a final index of 104 percent. The ram went to Dean C. Morey of Huntingdon Valley for $400. A commercial producer who runs 180 ewes plus 80 replacements, Morey also bought two other rams at the sale.

"We grow for the meat market and prefer Suffolks and Dorsets," Morey said. "We crossbreed them to improve their vigor."

The top selling junior Dorset was a Nix Besser Farms, Narvon, consignment that produced a final index of 114 percent. This ram went to Delaware Valley College in Doylestown for $400.

In the Hampshire division, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brubaker of Lancaster sold their Blu-Acre 85-13 ram to Welty Keenan of Hunker for $460. The top selling Hamp posted an index ratio of 112 percent.

The sale's top-selling Dorset ram in the senior division was consigned by Peter Levan (pictured). Buyer, at $400, was Dean Morey, Huntingdon Valley.

The sale's only Shropshire ram, sold by Shober-Calvert Farm of Mercer, brought a bid of $350 from Audrey Garmire, Huntingdon. This ram posted the sale's top index ratio of 116 percent.

Robert S. Burry, Jr., Elwood City, had the sale's only Cheviot. Indexing 100 percent, Burry's Rojo 234 ram was purchased by Tom Delanev. Centre Hall, for $90.

The sale's 29 rams grossed $8,830 for a record-setting sale average of $304.48. "It was just an excellent sale, and very consistent throughout," commented Eberly, noting that this year's sale average bested the previous record, set in 1979, by nearly $100.

Sale gross receipts and averages by breed are listed below.

Breed	Total Receipts	Average
	RAMS
Suffolk	$5,230	$375.57
Dorset (Jr.)	$2,490	$226.36

Crafts, canines, crops highlight Sheep Field Day

BY SALLY DUNMIRE
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Ag Arena was the festive scene of the first annual Sheep Field Day and Craft Show, on Aug. 2 and 3, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association, the Pennsylvania State University, and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Breeders, wool crafters and fencers were on hand for the many educational and fun demonstrations that included lamb cooking, dying wool with kool-aid, a sheep shearing contest, lamb cutting and the Thompson Highlanders. A sheep-to-shawl demonstration began Saturday morning and the resulting wool shawl was raffled off at the end of the day. The lucky raffle winner was Nancy Guilford of Emporium.

Both days, 29 exhibitors of sheep products, as well as those selling sheep necessities such as fencing, pens and shears, were on hand to display their wares.

Of special interest to flock owners, were Saturday's workshops that featured fencing, sheep forage pasture of brassicas, working herd and guard dogs, and an Apple IIE computer.

Nigel Wall, originally hailing from New Zealand and now based in the State College area, does custom fencing through his company, Fenceline. He demonstrated how to properly install a double-braced, eight-high tensile smooth wire fence suitable for sheep. According to Wall, "If you do a good job on the bracing system, the rest will probably survive - so pay close attention to the bracing."

To compute the materials needed and the cost for a high tensile fence, an Apple IIE computer software program was on display, developed by the PSU's Department of Agricultural Engineering. Using input data for a 10-acre pasture with two gates and an electrified fence, the computer program quickly determined the cost ($1,557) and printed out the list of materials needed to construct the fence. This software is available free from

"Perky," a Border collie owned by Walt Jagger, is put through his paces for an interested crowd during the working sheepdog demonstation.

Dr. Sid Bosworth (center) discussed the merits of Brassicas as a sheep pasture forage.

Sheep Field Day

PSU's Dept. of Ag Engineering to any Ag Extension office with an Apple IIE computer.

Another highly informative demonstration was on sheep pasture forage, featuring the brassicas. According to Dr. Sid Bosworth, Extension Agronomy expert, brassicas - namely turnips, kale, swede, and rape - are so tasty to sheep that you have to "force them to eat tall fescue grass." Recommended varieties of brassicas include Green Globe turnip, York Globe turnip, Sirius trunip, Rangi rape, Fora rape, Wairoa rape, Tyfon rape, Calder swede, Sensation swede, Marrowstem kale and Gruner kale.

Specific planting and cultural notes were available at the demonstration or can be obtained from local Extension offices.

Dr. Gerold Jung, of the U.S. Regional Pasture Research Laboratory, states there is just "one problem with these, they are too good. Brassicas are loaded with protein, sugar and starch, but don't have much fiber." He recommends that, to avoid any digestive problems, pasture grass or hay should be fed along with brassica forage.

Brassicas are suitable for dairy, sheep, and beef animals.

A very popular event with the public were the working dog events, held Friday and Saturday. On Saturday, border collies named Perky, Tiny, and Kim demonstrated their natural herding abilities on both flocks of sheep and ducks, heeding the verbal commands and whistles of their trainers/owners Walt Jagger and his daughter Cheryl. Jagger is a Dorset breeder and sheep dog trainer at Sheepy Hollow Farm, Hop Bottom, Pa.

According to Jagger, when his four children grew up and left home he decided to "get herd dogs to chase after the sheep so I didn't have to. Each herd dog is as valuable as 10 good men", in his estimation. He demonstrated, that a properly trained herd dog can move sheep without abusing them. "See, the sheep aren't even breathing hard," he pointed out.

To round out the two-day event, the Pennsylvania 7th annual Performance Tested Ram Lamb and Invitational Ewe Sale was held Saturday evening, adjacent to the Ag Aréna at the Pa. Dept. off Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

Bomgardners take premier breeder, exhibitor at Lebanon

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LEBANON — The John Bomgardner family of Lebanon captured both the prestigious premier breeder and exhibitor awards for the second consecutive year in the Open Holstein Show at the Lebanon Fair Thursday.

But while the Bomgardners showed a number of cows to the top of their classes and walked away with a junior champion, they failed to take home the grand champion ribbon.

That coveted award went to Daryl Balmer, Lebanon, and his four-year-old Latuch Elevation Pete Crystal. The grand champion, bred by Latuch Brothers, Rockwood, and sired by Straight-Pine Elevation Pete, had the best udder in the Holstein show and was named senior champion. During her second lactation, she produced 23,500 pounds milk and 810 pounds fat.

The reserve grand and reserve senior championships belonged to Sharon Martin, Myerstown. Martin took the honor with her nine-year-old dry cow, C Midland Mardi Judy, sired by Little River Mardi Gras. Out of Midland Starchief Jan, the cow was bred by Bliss Johnson, Norton.

Kynel Bomgardner showed his junior yearling heifer to the junior championship in the Holstein division, while the reserve junior championship went to Troy Vincent Getz, Myerstown, and his senior heifer calf.

In the Ayrshire Show Dale Maulfair edged out showring veteran Heather Hernley for the senior and grand championships. Maulfair's home-bred aged cow, Maulfair Acres Jewel Dana, was sired by Selwood Greta's Jewel and gave 14,500 pounds milk on last lactation. Judge Earl Keefer, Millersburg, noted the cow's dairy character and outstanding udder in naming his Ayrshire champion.

Heather Hernley, Lebanon, ended her 10-year 4-H career by taking the reserve and reserve senior champions with her junior two-year-old, Green Brae Jamie. Out of Green Brae Mere Babs, the two-year-old was sired by Meredith Star Bright and bred by John H. Stick, Lebanon.

Hernley had to settle for reserve champions at the youth show as well, where she exhibited both the 4-H and FFA reserve champions.

The junior championship in the Ayrshire Show went to Dale Maulfair and the reserve junior championship to Pattie Maulfair, both of Jonestown.

Gary Mase, Lebanon, captured both the grand and reserve grand championships in the Brown Swiss Show. He took the grand championship with Amy Marauder Annie, a home-bred aged cow out of Kay Alaric Amy. Reserve grand went to Mase's three-year-old, Meadow Hill Kayle Aggie, a home-bred animal out of the same dam.

Mase also took home the junior champion, while the reserve junior champion went to Judy Mase. In the youth competition, Judy showed both the grand and reserve grand Brown Swiss entries.

Only two animals were entered in the Guernsey show, with grand champion going to Karen Heilinger of Newmanstown. Heilinger captured the award with her home-bred junior yearling heifer, KBH Choice Flower Flame, out of Liseter Jules Flower. Heilinger also took home the grand championship in the youth show.

Thomas Hostetter, a first-year 4-H'er, grabbed the reserve championship with his junior heifer calf, a Dutch Mill Telestars Fayette daughter bred by Jacob D. Smith and Son of Annville. Hostetter also captured reserve junior and reserve grand championships in the youth show.

The grand championship in the Jersey show went to Blue Mountain Jersey's Inc. Blue Mountain Jersey's also had the senior champion and reserve senior champion.

The champion, shown by Dianne Dice, was an aged cow sired by B.S. Noble Supurb and bred by Stan-El Jerseys, Bedford. Reserve champion went to an intermediate heifer calf owned by Melanie Bushong, Lebanon. The Top-O-Hill Criterion Special daughter, also named junior champion, was bred by Mildred Seeds.

Reserve junior champion went to Ellen Hanson, Palmyra. In youth competition Tuesday, Hanson claimed the grand and reserve grand championships.

Results of the open show and the youth show follow:

Top honors in the Brown Swiss open show went to Gary Mase, Lebanon, who took both grand and reserve grand champion. With him are his wife, Patty, holding daughter, Alicia, and son Garrett, holding the champion.

Karen Heilinger and Thomas Hostetter showed the only two animals entered in the open and youth Guernsey shows. Heilinger had the champion, while Hostetter claimed the reserve spot.

House Committee finishes draft, must make it fit budget

WASHINGTON — The House Agriculture Committee has completed its first round of work in drafting the 1985 omnibus farm bill and will move next to a review of whatever revisions may be needed to bring its package into line with Congressional budget guidelines, Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., announced.

The Committee voted to resume drafting sessions on September 4 with a September 10 deadline for completing action.

"This bill, as it stands now, is a responsible, bipartisan effort to find new and more effective ways to deal with an economic crisis in American agriculture," de la Garza said. "But it clearly falls outside the budget limits which Congress has now established. We must now try to see what can be done to solve the budget problems without damaging the basic safety net we want to preserve for farm income."

De la Garza added that "whatever we finally come up with will cost more than the drastic proposals we originally got from the administration, and I make no apology for that in view of the critical situation in agriculture today. But we also have to face up to the new Congressional Budget Resolution — and that is important to farmers as well, because progress in reducing the overall federal deficit may be as important to the future of agriculture as anything we do in this farm bill."

The Committee bill in its current form provides that for four crop years beginning with 1986, market prices of major crops like wheat and corn would be made more competitive by authority to link commodity price support rates more closely to market conditions, and by several export expansion programs. At the same time, however, the actual income return to farmers who cooperate with strengthened federal surplus-control programs will be protected by retaining a system of target prices and providing that these targets cannot be cut from current levels for at least two years and probably for four years, de la Garza added.

The Secretary of Agriculture, under the tentative bill, would be given discretionary authority to use either of two alternate price support loan systems for wheat and feed grains, de la Garza said. Both plans are designed to allow American grains to sell competitively on world markets. One is a traditional "non-recourse" loan program, and the second is a new "marketing loan" system. Under the marketing loan plan, eligible farmers could get support loans based on the basic formula proposed in the bill's basic program, but they would repay the loans in cash at rates tied to current open-market prices.

The target price provisions of the bill would operate in conjunction with whichever support loan system was used.

In addition to programs for stabilizing farm income and production, de la Garza noted, the omnibus bill includes major new provisions and extensions of existing programs in fields including trade expansion, conservation, agricultural credit, domestic and foreign food assistance, and research.

Major provisions of the bill in its tentative form include:

Wheat, Feed Grains, Cotton, Rice

The bill would adopt a market-oreinted system for setting price support loans at levels that would make American crops competitive in international markets.

Basic preliminary loan rates for wheat and corn, for example, would be set each year on the basis of formulas using average market prices of recent years (with any declines limited to 5 percent a year).

After determining the basic initial rate, the Secretary would then choose one of two alternate methods of operating the grain programs for the forthcoming year.

If he chose to retain the traditional "non-recourse" loan system, he would have authority to reduce each year's basic wheat and feed grain loan rates by up to 20 percent if needed to compete on world markets.

Alternatively, if he chose the marketing loan system for any year, the Secretary would keep wheat and feed grain loan rates at the basic formula level, require repayment of the loans in cash, and allow repayment at market-price levels.

Basic loan rates for cotton and rice would also be set by a formula using recent open market price averages with any declines limited to 5 percent a year and with authority for the Secretary to reduce each year's rate by up to 20 percent if necessary to meet world competition.

Target prices for grains, cotton and rice, which protect farmers' income with direct payments when market prices are below the target rate, would be frozen at current levels through 1987 to prevent any reductions in returns to farmers.

For 1988 and 1989, the bill sets up a formula which would permit declines of no more than 5 percent a year in target prices, but no cut could be made unless the Secretary of Agriculture first certified that farm costs for the crop involved had declined by 5 percent from the previous year.

When commodity surpluses are above designated levels, producers who want price supports would be required to comply with acreage control programs including a 30 percent reduction for 1986 wheat and a 20 percent cut for 1986 feed grains (although producers who have to plant 1986 crops before official program announcements are made would get diversion payments for 10 percent of the cutback).

To make those programs work more effectively, the bill includes a permanent new system for establishing acreage bases and yields. Also, the bill includes discretionary authority for export certificates to help promote sales of grains and standby provision for use of export payments in kind for cotton and rice if world market prices fall below domestic support rates.

Dairy

The bill links future government supports to changes in market demand and dairy farm production costs, and it also provides a farmer-funded surplus reduction program for use when heavy surpluses are predicted. (To protect livestock producers in case of heavy dairy cow sales into the meat market because of a milk diversion program, the bill provides for additional government purchases of red meat for domestic donation and includes new authority for farmer-funded beef and pork promotion. In a related area, the bill requires that imported meats and poultry comply with American standards and residue regulations.)

Soybeans

The bill extends without change the existing market-oriented price support system. This sets each year's support at 75 percent of the average of market prices for three of the past five years, with a floor of $5.02 a bushel. The program allows further cuts (of up to 10 percent and not below $4.50) in any year following a season in which market prices failed to rise past 105 percent of the loan level. No target price or acreage control mechanisms are provided.

Payment Limits

The bill include a $50,000 annual per producer ceiling for target price payments (except those required to offset discretionary support loan cuts), and a $250,000 per producer limit on non-recourse support loans for wheat, feed grains, soybeans, tobacco and peanuts.

Trade

The bill authorizes a payment-in-kind bonus export promotion program designed to make American commodities fully competitive in world markets where they have been undersold by other exporters in recent years.

The legislation also broadens government export credit programs and extends and expands the Food for Peace program and other overseas food assistance. Among other features, it also includes language that restricts use of a cargo preference regulation — which requires shipments of designated exports on American vessels — to the same category of government-program exports which has been affected by the rule in the past.

Conservation

The conservation section includes a two-phase plan to protect fragile soils for future generations and move a substantial amount of such land into less intensive use.

For highly erodible land which has not been cultivated since 1980, the bill provides a "sodbuster" program to discourage plowing up fragile soils. If a farmer planted a crop on fragile land in violation of the terms of the bill, he would lose price supports and other farm benefits for all of his crops. A companion "swampbuster" provision would deny farm benefits to producers who convert wetlands to crop use in the future.

For highly erodible soils which are already in crop use, the bill provides a long-term Conservation Reserve program under which farmers would contract to return up to 25 million of such acres to less-intensive uses such as grass or trees.

Also, the bill includes an extension of the Resources Conservation Act, requiring the Agriculture Department to produce assessments of soil and water resources in 1995 and again in 2005 to help policymakers develop long-term plans for protecting those vital national resources.

Credit

The bill reauthorizes and in some cases revises federal farm credit and rural development programs and also includes discretionary authority for a program of planting-season advance commodity loans to farmers beginning in 1986. It also includes a provision designed to give buyers of farm products "clear title" to their purchases while still allowing lenders to protect their liens on farm products.

House ag committee

Also the Agriculture Department would be ordered to observe a number of new restritctions on the way it handles farmland acquired by the government in future foreclosures of FmHA loans. Among other provisions, USDA would be forbidden to sell such land if the sales would depress local farmland values, and any sales made would have to be — as far as practicable — in family-size units. Where the Secretary leases or operates foreclosed land, he would have to make leases on a competitive bid basis, giving priority in leases to former owners of the land, family farmers and beginning farmers.

Research

The research section includes a five-year extension of funding authority for agricultural research and extension programs, a number of new research priority guidelines, and a proposal to spur development of export promotion centers.

Food Assistance

The food programs section of the bill extends the Food Stamp Program for five years, improves some program benefits, and requires all states to set up special employment and training programs to help move jobless stamp recipients into payrolls. The bill also extends for two years, through Fiscal 1987, the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program authorizing distribution of government surplus foods to the needy.

SUPPORT THE MILK REFERENDUM

Right now you have a ballot in your hands. If you don't, you should pick one up at your ASCS office immediately. The ballot is to vote for or against the continuation of the nationwide milk promotion campaign which is financed by your 15-cent-per-hundred contribution.

Pennsylvania milk producers have defeated several milk promotion referendums in the past. I think I have heard nearly every possible reason or excuse for casting negative votes. The biggest alarm was over the widespread headlines calling the mandatory write-off a "Milk Tax". Those who were vehemently opposed to the mandatory write-off of 15 cents used the term to express their negative ideas, and the term became almost a profanity. Perhaps it is time to take a more objective view of what the term really means, and see if it deserves such an ugly reputation.

There were other feelings expressed by producers who opposed the use of their funds to advertise milk. Some felt that milk dealers should do the advertising. They overlook the far-reaching fact that today independent dealers are few and far between, with most of the milk now being marketed by farmer cooperatives. Back in the days when dealers did most of the competitive advertising, they were paying the producers only a small fraction of the price they get today for their milk. They could afford to spend their money for brand advertising, because it was mostly at the producers' expense anyway! We didn't think of it that way, but the effect was the same.

Some people were opposed to the mandatory write-off because they thought it should be a voluntary effort. They were not entirely opposed to advertising milk and dairy products, but felt that someone else should pay for it. Of course, the non-participants could reap the benefits without paying their share of the cost.

Naturally, many producers felt that they just could not afford it. That attitude might easily be excused in light of tight economic conditions, but is very shortsighted when analyzed alongside declining per capita sales.

Many of our Pennsylvania producers feel that too much of their money is going into national advertising. Only about 40 percent of the money collected from Pennsylvania producers goes into the national dairy promotion and research. Actually, up to 10 cents out of the 15 cents contributed by producers can be diverted to local advertising and promotion, as is the case in Federal Orders 2, 4, and 36, covering most of the state.

Have you watched the excellent TV ads that millions of consumers see every day? They are the same high calibre of advertisements that are used by our biggest competitors, and should produce the same impact on the viewers. Look for them, and rejoice that you are in the position to compete with Coke and Sprite and the other high-powered fast-food industries.

WHAT ARE THE CHOICES?

We love to produce, and are working daily to increase production per cow, as well as keeping the stable filled up with cows. Numbers are up, and production per cow is up. The result? Six percent more milk in May than a year ago, and about 80 cents less per hundred for our milk.

There are only two possible choices. Sell more milk, to keep pace with the supply, or reduce the supply to keep pace with the demand. It doesn't look like we are going to voluntarily reduce the supply of milk, so the remaining choice is to do everything we can to increase sales. Our dairy products have so many competitors for the food dollar, that it is only by strenuous efforts that we can retain our share.

The decision is yours to make. Consider carefully the long-term effects of the referendum. Will the dollars you and your fellow producers spend on promoting your products help to win the battle for the food market? Or will you save a few dollars now, while high-powered advertising by other interests destroy your market? Don't lose the battle by default. Send in your ballot before August 20.

Order 4 milk $13.88 for September

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine has announced a Class I milk price of $13.88 per hundredweight for September 1985. This price is down 10 cents from August and is $1.07 below last September's Class I price. The Class I price has declined $1.62 since the beginning of the year.

Mr. Shine announced a Class II milk price of $11.15 per hundredweight for July 1985 and a butterfat differential of 16.3 cents for the month. The Class II price was up 4 cents from the previous month, while the butterfat differential was unchanged.

The September Class I price and the July Class II price are based on the July 1985 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $11.10 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for July was $1.4150 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.8313 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

ADA awards vacations in cheese promotion contest

WILLIAMSPORT — Two lucky Pennsylvania residents will enjoy an expense paid vacation to any location in the United States as a result of their entry in the Great Cheeses of America Contest. The contest, held this past spring, was sponsored locally by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC).

The two local winners were Leonard F. Decker from Allentown and Mary Louise Carlisle from Ebensburg. Both will receive a vacation for two anywhere in the Continental USA. The trip includes round-trip coach air transportation and hotel accommodations for seven nights.

The contest was part of a national consumer supermarket promotion held during the spring months to encourage the consumption of cheese. It is one of four supermarket promotions sponsored each year by ADADC.

ADADC is a dairy producer funded and directed milk promotion agency serving the Federal Order 2 areas of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Penn-Breeze Holsteins win at Central Jersey Show

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Honors were rather evenly distributed at the Central Jersey Holstein Show Aug. 2 on Flemington Fairgrounds. Exhibitors, young and old, shared the top ribbons.

Penn-Breeze Holsteins, owned by Charles Rogers and Family, Raritan Township, emerged with enough points in the overall scoring to take the day's high honors: Premier Breeder and Exhibitor. They had many high-placing animals in the show, and significantly, 3 blue ribbons in heifer and cow classes.

Backacres Farm, William Teets and Family, Clinton Township, had its achievements. Backacres Joyous Dixie, bred and owned by Lucinda Teets Pill, was Grand Champion Female. This was the third year in a row that "Dixie" walked off with the rosette and trophy as "best in show."

Dixie, incidently, was out of a cow that Lucinda had won as top youth award in this show some years back when she was active in 4-H.

The judge for the day-long event was Paul King of Delta, Pa. He is a well-known Holstein judge, recognized by the Holstein Asso. of America. He placed the eighty head in the show and described his reasons for placings to the exhibitors and the ringside.

Reserve Champion rosette went to Penn-Breeze Oriel Persua Sandy, a 3-year-old shown by Sandy Rogers.

In the Junior Division of the show, results were as follows:

Junior Champion - Windy Crest Finest Nina, Gretchen Kuehn.

Senior and Grand Champion - Penn-Breeze Missie Mile Tracey, Janet Rogers.

Reserve Champion - D-V-C Elmer Chief, Tom Holcombe II.

In fitting and showmanship competition, Gretchen Kuehn was First Senior Fitting; Wayne Sutton, First Senior Showmanship. Tally Beatty was First Junior fitting and showmanship.

Overall youth winner was Tracey Beatty, winning a registered Holstein calf, donated by Sandy Rogers. Trista Beatty was second and won a show box.

Fitting and showmanship judge was Tom Smith, King and Queen Farm, Allentown, N.J.

Loan rates announced for flue-cured tobacco

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John Block announced the grade loan rates for the 1985 crop of flue-cured tobacco, based on the price support level of $1.65 per pound.

Block said the loan rates will range from $1.08 to $2.16 per pound.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Producer Association will deduct one cent per pound from the grade loan rates to help defray administrative overhead costs incurred by the association, Block said.

As in the past, loans are unavailable on tobacco graded P5L, P5F, P5G, N1L, N1XL, N1PO, NO-G (no grade), N2 (second quality nondescript), W (doubtful keeping order), U (unsound) or scrap. Marketings of these low grades will be charged against the quotas of the farms on which they were produced.

In addition, Block said, loan rates will be discounted 10 percent for any grade of supported primings that contains more dirt or sand than normal. Tobacco containing excessive sand or dirt will be graded NO-G, no grade.

Tables containing the support rates follow:

Ag Department releases water steps

HARRISBURG — Adequate, accessible supplies of water for livestock and crops is essential to the Commonwealth's farmers, especially in time of drought emergency, according to Acting State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

"Farmers should make every effort to obtain their own temporary water supplies in the event of a drought or other local emergency, but when those efforts are not fruitful, there are several steps the farmer can take," he said.

When confronted with a shortage, farmers should contact the county emergency management agency coordinator in their area. Emergency personnel can make the necessary contact with fire companies, national guard units or other entities most capable of making water available. County emergency management offices are listed under the county government section of the telephone directory.

In groundwater protected areas of the Delaware River Basin, which are currently under drought restrictions, permits are required for farm operations wishing to drill well utilizing 10,000 gallons of water or more per day. The withdrawal limit is based upon a 30-day average use. Counties with portions of their land currently under groundwater protection restrictions include Bucks, Berks, Montgomery, Chester and Lehigh. Emegency permits are available from the Delaware River Basin Commission.

The Department of Agriculture is maintaining a list of certified well drillers for emergency situations, and is making the names available to interested parties on its toll-free hotline. The number is 1-800-247-3662 (AG-PENNA).

"By following these steps, farmers and other agricutural concerns requiring water for their operations can more readily sustain operation in the event of a temporary water shortage emergency," said Grubb.

Questions concerning water quantity should be directed to the Department of Environmental Resources at 717-787-5008.

USDA protects new plants

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued certificates of protection for 16 new varieties of beans, bermudagrass, cauliflower, celery, peas, soybeans and tomatoes. Also, a certificate of protection is being reissued for a variety of safflower.

Kenneth H. Evans, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said developers of the newly protected varieties have the exclusive right to reproduce their products in the United States for 18 years. Certificates of protection are granted after review of the breeder's records and claims that each new variety is novel, uniform and stable.

The following new varities have been issued certificates of protection:

– the Pilgrim variety of bean, developed by Wilbur-Ellis Company Seed Division, Spokane, Wash.

– the Guymon variety of bermudagrass, developed by Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station and USDA's Agricultural Research Service, Stillwater, Okla.

– the Triton and Senator varieties of cauliflower, developed by Rijk Zwaan Zaadeelt en Zaadhandel, B.V., De Lier, Holland.

– the James Abe variety of celery, developed by Bud Antle, Inc., Watsonville, Calif.

– the Envy, Payload, Elegance, Vulcan and Trek varieties of peas, developed by Asgrow Seed Company, Kalamazoo, Mich.

– the A6381, A6242 and A5980 varieties of soybean, developed by Asgrow Seed Company, Minneapolis, Minn.; and the S42-40 variety of soybean, developed by Northrup King Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

– the Rio Colorado variety of tomato, developed by Petoseed Co., Woodland, Calif.; and the Easy Winner variety of tomato, developed by Campbell Soup Company, Campbell Institute for Research & Technology, Napolean, Ohio.

A certificate of protection has been reissued for S-137 safflower, owned by SeedTec International, Inc., Woodland, Calif. The reason for the reissuance is to show that the variety is now being covered under Title V of the Plant Variety Protection Act.

The certificates of protection for Guymon bermudagrass and Pilgrim bean also were issued under Title V, to be sold by variety name only as a class of certified seed.

The plant variety protection program, administered by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, provides marketing protection to developers of new and distinctive seed-reproduced plants ranging from farm crops to flowers.

CCC loan rate at 7¾ percent

WASHINGTON – Commodity loans disbursed in August by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 7¾ percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank.

The new rate, down from 7-7/8 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in July, Rank said.

Wise shoppers need market knowledge

BY DEBBIE STILES-RENZI
Staff Correspondent

Farmers and particularly farm women occupy a unique position in that they are both agricultural producers and consumers. While sometimes this makes for conflicting sentiments over food prices, for the farm homemaker who markets her own products and who also buys food items at the supermarket, knowing the key elements of selection, supply, education, and demand can be helpful in both situations.

To provide her family with varied menus the homemaker must usually supplement homegrown vegetables and fruit with purchased ones. According to Belenda Halsey-Bell, a West Virginia Department of Agriculture home economist, supplies of shipped-in California produce are lower than usual this year, but the supply is steady. The western fires have had little effect on harvests.

Local tomatoes are in ready supply this year. Harrison County Extension home economist Pat Gruber stresses the use of firm, just-ripe tomatoes for canning. The over-ripe tomatoes she recommends be made into juice and then canned.

"Basically, anything coming out of the West is stable," she reports. With the abundance to be found locally at farmers markets, she adds, the consumer has plenty of choices.

One exception this year is peaches. Due to the winter weather there is no West Virginia peach harvest. However, California peaches are available and reasonably priced, featured as a special in many produce sections.

Other good fruit buys to look for are seedless grapes, nectarines, watermelons, and cantaloupe.

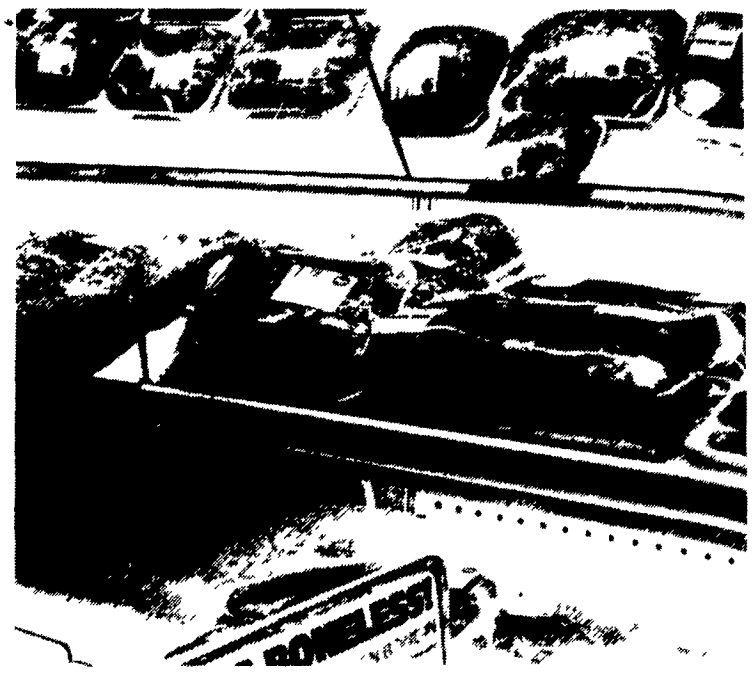
Proper selection of purchased fruits and vegetables is important. In choosing which cantaloupe to buy, Harrison County Extension home economist Pat Gruber says to "...smell the stem end (of the melon). If it smells sweet, how you'd like the fruit to taste, that's how I tell it's ripe." There should be no soft spots on the melon at all, she advises.

Soft spots are taboo in the make-up of most other fruits and vegetables as well. With green peppers, for example, Gruber advises consumers to "...look for firm, fresh, blemish-free peppers."

Green peppers are actually unripe, sweet peppers. For flavorful eating, pick red, ripe ones. Obviously, if they're going to be chopped up for use in a recipe, the pepper's shape isn't important. However, if the pepper will be stuffed or cut into rings, a thick-walled, block-shaped fruit is the best choice.

Right now, peppers are the penny-wise consumer's choice. Home garden harvests are lowering prices in local supermarkets and farmers markets. August is the month for non-gardeners to save money on sweet corn, watermelon, cucumbers, and other locally grown vegetables as well.

For farm families in the grain, fruit, or vegetable growing business, trips to the supermarket meat counter can make one almost wish the entire family would become vegetarians! But economist Bell, who's been with the WVDA for almost four years, says there are good buys in meat, fish and fowl this month. And the word for the season seems to be 'boneless.'



Boneless ground round and London broil are going to be many shoppers' choices during the month of August.

In fact, Bell says, "Every time I've made my calls (to supermarkets across the state to find out what's on special for the following week), I've noticed boneless cuts (primarily beef, and to a lesser extent, pork) have been on special." she says she is pleased to see this trend because boneless cuts, which are generally a good buy, are even better buys when on special.

With boneless items there's less waste, and it's easier to estimate the number of servings a particular cut will provide. Boneless chuck, round steak, sirloin tip roast, London broil, and ground round have all been in the "best bargain" category, according to WVDA.

The pork market has been a little "blah" this summer, says Bell. But the whole pork loins are listed

Seafood available to landlubbers at local markets

BY DEBBIE STILES-RENZI
Staff Correspondent

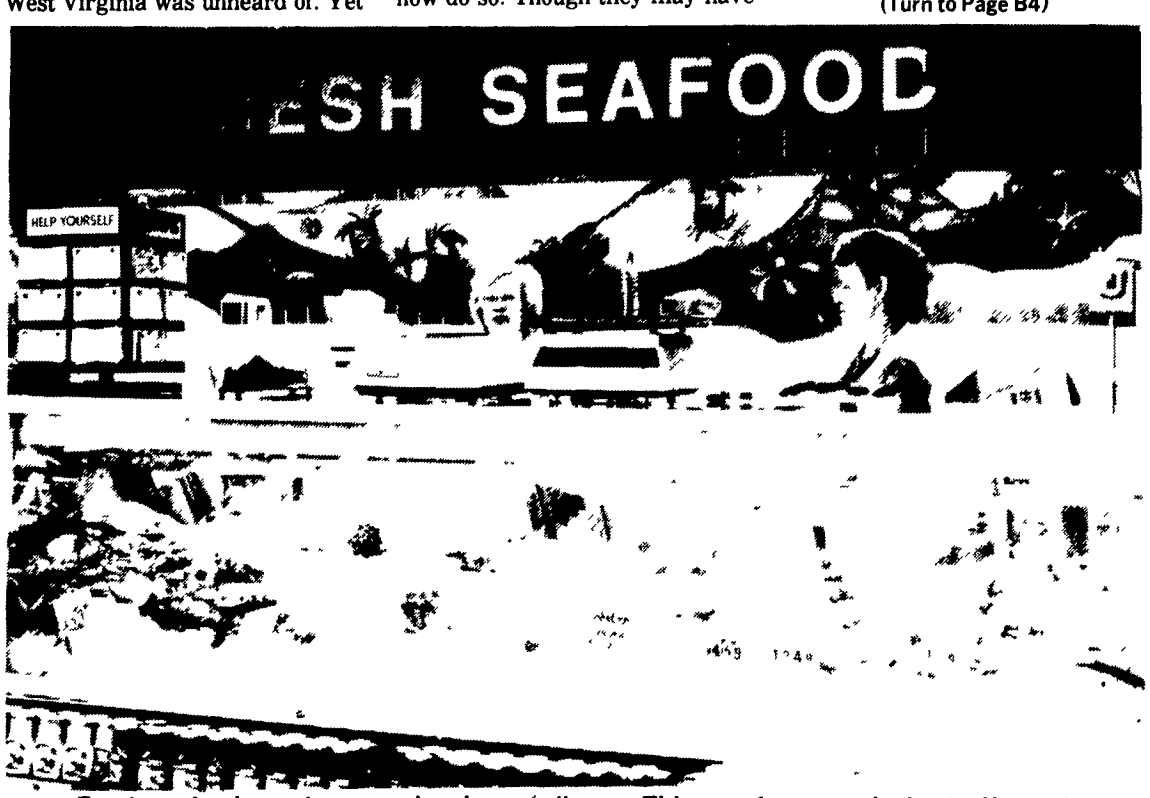
"Fresh fish is being eaten more now because of dietary considerations — protein, lower fat content. And stores are pushing this," West Virginia Department of Agriculture home economist Belenda Halsey-Bell, notes.

A few years ago, a fresh seafood counter in a store in land-locked West Virginia was unheard of. Yet today, that's exactly what is happening in Harrison County, W VA. And Mary Lodge, who supervises the purchase and sale of seafood at Krogers in Bridgeport, says the bulk of questions addressed to her about seafood are along the lines of "Where do I start — what do I do?"

Consumers who have never been able to purchase fresh seafood can now do so. Though they may have tasted a variety of seafood entrees in restaurants some homemakers, farm women included, are a little apprehensive about buying premier-priced items and preparing them at home. But, Mary Lodge contends, "Seafood is so easy to cook!"

Recently, in meeting Pat Gruber of the Harrison County Extension Service, Mary outlined simple

(Turn to Page B4)



Fresh seafood counters are showing up all over. This one, for example, is at a Kroger's store in land-locked northcentral West Virginia.

Surprisingly enough, caviar is not out of reach for most consumers. Mary Lodge, Kroger's head seafood clerk, holds a half-pound of red caviar which sells for about $3.00.

Before you buy a new tractor, ask for a part of it.

Don't make it an easy part either. Choose one that perhaps only a John Deere dealer might have in stock (or have quick access to)...a 20-year-old tractor part, for example...or a hydrostatic ground drive part.

The point is when you buy a piece of equipment as important as a tractor, combine, baler, or a planter, you simply have to have parts and service backup. And you have to have it now...not two days or maybe one week later. That's why John Deere dealers average a fill rate across the counter of nearly 99 percent...within 24 hours or less.

Simply put, this means that when you walk up to a John Deere parts counter, you're not going to get a bunch of "what if's" or "maybe's." We make sure of it.

as a relatively good buy in the August WVDA newsletter.

Another trend this summer is the promotion of the whole chicken, rather than parts packages. Probably the most popular packaged chicken are chicken breasts.

Nell says most of the specials this summer in chicken have been "pick-of-the-chick" -type packages, which are the equivalent of a whole chicken with an additional piece or two. Whole fryers have also been featured.

The good news for lamb producers and consumers is that lamb supply is becoming more regular year-round, and prices are becoming competitive.

"We've been seeing some kind of lamb cut on special every week," reports Bell. "Lamb is usually very seasonal, but this year, we've been getting it every week since March."

Industry figures confirm an increase in demand and consumption of lamb, and an accompanying increase in supply. Bell is concerned, however, that many people aren't buying and eating lamb, because they haven't tried it and believe they won't like it.

Part of her job is to educate the public on planning menus, incorporating new foods, such as lamb, into their diets, and shopping for the best food buys. She cites lamb as a prime example of something people need more information about.

As with all meats, color is a good indication of quality lamb. Consumers should also consider leanness when making their selections. Bell tells newcomers to lamb to prepare lamb as they would pork or veal chops. "You can even cook it in the microwave!" she laughs.

As an economist, Bell tries to persuade consumers to look at the week's best food buys–whether in her WVDA free newsletter, West Virginia Homemaker, or in their supermarket's sale circular–and to plan menus around items on special.

Farm women have an advantage over their sister consumers in the city; they can determine what's ready to eat in the garden or what is in excess in their market gardens. They can then check out the store specials, and finally plan a week's menus using these resources to lower grocery bills.

This same strategy can be used to direct-market produce–know what consumers look for in quality; eat, can or freeze crops that are too low-priced to make a return on; and, if it is necessary, educate the consumer on preparation methods or preservation techniques in order to increase sales.

Seafood markets

Shrimp

At the counter, green shrimp are the uncooked ones. Generally, cooked, and cooked-and-peeled-ready-to-eat shrimp that are a bright crimson or pink color are also offered.

To prepare uncooked shrimp, Lodge says to boil them until the shrimp turn red.

Appropriate seasonings for shrimp, such as Old Bay Seasoning, are usually available at the seafood counter.

Lobster

To prepare lobster, start with a BIG pot of water, Lodge advises. Bring the pot of water to a rolling boil before putting the lobster in, headfirst, so that it drowns as quickly as possible.

Lodge lays to rest one prevailing myth: "You can eat a dead lobster," she says. "There's nothing poisonous about it." But once the lobster has expired, it does deteriorate very rapidly, she explains. Therefore, it is best to keep the lobster alive until it's ready to be cooked.

Crab is another popular item at Lodge's seafood counter. They sell steamed crab and a cooked selection called "sea legs supreme," which is a combination of crab meat and pollock, the latter a very mild-flavored and reasonably-priced fish that picks up the flavor of crab meat readily. The lower cost of the pollock lowers the price of sea legs.

Lodge says selecting good quality seafood is an uncomplicated task. "You should not be able to smell fresh seafood," she advises. Monkfish, she admits, is the solitary exception to this rule; it smells 'fishy' even when fresh. "Look at the color and texture of fish," she recommends. "Meat should be firm, not broken."

Mary Lodge's Scallop Recipe

Boil enough scallops (¼ lb. per person) for 3 minutes. Take out of water and cut up in bite-sized chunks. Place in a greased baking dish. Mix with a can of mushroom soup, some parsley, a little lemon juice, and 1 minced onion. Sprinkle top with a layer of bread crumbs. Bake at 350° for 25 minutes.

Shippensburg Corn Festival set for Aug. 24, 25

SHIPPENSBURG – The fifth annual Corn Festival is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 24 and Sunday, Aug. 25 in Shippensburg. This event was begun to raise funds for restoration projects in Shippensburg, which was recently placed on the National Register of Historic Places. It also focuses attention on one of the largest agricultural crops of the region - corn.

Corn is definitely king in this event, when the streets of downtown Shippensburg are closed to traffic and the area takes on a carnival atmosphere. Over 100 craftsmen, many featuring corn products in their crafts, line the streets on both days of the festival to demonstrate and sell their wares.

On Saturday only, antique dealers will also participate. On Sunday there will be a display of antique and vintage cars.

Foods made from corn are one of the biggest attractions to this festival. There are corn dogs, chicken corn soup, corn fritters, corn chowder, corn-on-the-cob, caramel corn and popcorn. If you get tired of corn, there's lots of other food available as well.

"Corny the Clown" will provide entertainment throughout the festival as will strolling musicians, a petting zoo and free wagon rides.

On Saturday there will be craft and restoration procedures demonstrated, including quilting, chair caning, brick cleaning and porcelain restoration.

A sheep to shawl demonstration and balloon launch will round out Sunday's activities.

Saturday's event is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday the hours are from noon to 5 p.m. A 10 K run will open this year's corn festival. For more information call chairpersons Rose Dillner (717/532-8155) or Becky Myers (717/532-3940).

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

During our vacation this year, we made a trip home to see how everything was going on our dairy farm and also to attend a meeting. After all, we do have a lot invested in our 90 head of dairy animals.

We stopped at a fast food restaurant for our evening meal. There on our table was a nice pair of sunglasses. I picked them up and turned them in to the management. But when I returned to our table, I had another thought. The person who owned them might be miles away before he or she discovered their loss. So I asked people around me if they could identify the persons who were previously at the table. Finally, someone said, "The woman had a bandage on her hand." So, I asked for the glasses again and dashed out into the parking area. There I saw a lady dabbing at a spilled drink in her car — and her hand was bandaged. I returned her glasses and she was grateful.

But that's not the end of the story. Beyond Harrisburg we passed the home of friends who have a summer place in Dauphin County. They are from Pittsburgh and as we seldom see them, we decided to stop and check if they were home. To make a long story short, I left my sunglasses lay on their sofa and did not discover it until we were almost home.

As we were returning the next day, I phoned and said that we'd stop by again. One good thing that came out of this was my finding someone to use the surplus from my garden. I put some sweet corn, cucumbers, cabbage, tomatoes and red raspberries in a bag for them. Garden things keep growing even if you're not there to tend them.

Fill the cookie jar with tasty treats

There must be a secret ingredient in cookies that makes them disapper within 24 hours after removal from the oven. At our house, the few cookies that survive the cooling stage and make it into the pig-shaped jar on the kitchen counter rarely spend more than a few hours in the pig's tummy.

If you've made similar observations at your house, you (or your family's resident cookie monster) will welcome this week's recipes. Sure to please the sneaky snacker, these luscious cookies are perfect anytime of day. Whether you select them for mid-morning coffee break, afternoon tea or midnight snack they'll fill that little empty spot that nothing else can satisfy quite as well.

EASY FILLED COOKIES

1 cup shortening
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs, beaten
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup water

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and mix. Add vanilla to water. Alternate sifted dry ingredients with water and mix. Batter will be light and fluffy.

Filling

¾ box raisins
1 heaping tablespoon flour
½ cup white sugar
1¼ cup boiling water

Cook until thick. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls of batter on greased and floured cookie sheet. Make a small depression in batter and fill. Drop teaspoon of batter on top and smooth over filling to cover. Bake at 375°F. about 12 minutes. Other fillings may be used.

FAMOUS AMOS RAISIN-FILLED CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

2 cups margarine, softened
¾ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon water
2 medium eggs
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups raisins
1 12-ounce package chocolate chips

Beat soft margarine, brown and white sugars, vanilla, water and eggs in large mixer bowl with electric mixer until creamy and thoroughly blended. By hand, stir in flour, soda, and salt until well mixed. Add raisins and chocolate chips. Spoon dough by teaspoonfuls onto cookie sheet. Bake at 375°F. for 8 minutes or until nicely browned.

COCONUT COOKIES

1½ cups flour
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ cup butter

Mix the above ingredients until crumbly and pat in 9x13-inch pan. Sprinkle ½ cup coconut and 1 cup chopped nuts over this.

Mix together 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons flour and 1½ cups brown sugar until smooth and drizzle over the bottom layer, covering it. Bake at 350°F. until golden brown — about 25 minutes. Cut while warm.

CREAM CHEESE COOKIES

¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 egg yolk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1 package yellow or devil's food cake mix

Cream butter and cheese. Blend in egg yolk and vanilla. Add cake mix, ⅓ at a time, mixing well after each addition. (If mixer is used, add last third of cake mix by hand.) Cover and chill 30 minutes.

Heat oven to 375°F. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until light brown. Cool slightly before removing from baking sheet.

1 cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 cup cooked carrots, mashed
2 cups flour (half whole wheat may be used)
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening and sugar; add vanilla and eggs. Beat until fluffy. Add carrots that have been mashed and cooled. Add sifted dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Blend raisins into mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased baking sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake at 375°F. for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe was the winning recipe at the lamb cook-off held during the Sheep Field Day and Craft Show at Penn State last weekend.

This recipe for Luscious Lamb Boats comes from Deborah Yandric of Middletown, and features ground lamb and cheese. Look for more information about the Field Day in this section.

Luscious Lamb Boats

1 pound ground lamb
2 large zucchini squashes, about 1½ pounds each
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped onions
¼ teaspoon salt, divided
¼ teaspoon pepper, divided
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
3 eggs
1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened and cubed
¼ teaspoon basil
½ cup cheddar cheese, shredded
2 teaspoons seasoned bread crumbs, divided
Paprika

Zucchini:

Remove stems. Cut the 2 zucchini squashes in half lengthwise. Carefully hollow out each half, leaving a thin shell. Measure out ¾ cup zucchini pulp. Chop up. Cut four pieces of heavy duty aluminum foil slightly larger than zucchini halves. Mold foil around entire outer surface of each shell, letting about one inch of foil extend past the top of each shell. Set aside.

Lamb:

Melt butter in an electric frying pan over medium heat. Add lamb, onions, ¾ cup chopped zucchini, 1/8 teaspoon salt and pepper and garlic powder. Cook and stir with fork, breaking up lamb, until all pink color disappears from lamb. Remove from pan, draining all fat. Divide lamb mixture into 4 equal parts. Spread one portion of lamb over bottom of each zucchini shell.

Filling:

In a large mixing bowl, beat eggs and cream cheese until blended. Beat in remaining salt, pepper and basil. Stir in cheese. Pour evenly over lamb in each zucchini shell. Place on cooking rack of outdoor grill. Bake with lid closed 25 minutes. Sprinkle each shell with ½ teaspoon bread crumbs. Dust with paprika. Bake 5 more minutes. Place on serving tray garnished with cherry tomatoes and fresh garden vegetables of your choice. Serves 4. Total cooking approximately 40 minutes.

ANSWER - Betty Frantz, Clearfield County, requested recipes for Italian pizza dough and Italian bread. Thanks go to Audrey Nemeth, Mt. Vernon, Me., for her bread recipe and to Cleo Rieinger, York, for her pizzza crust recipe.

Italian Bread

4½ to 5½ cups flour
1 tablespoon sugar
2 packages yeast
1 tablespoon softened margarine
1¾ cups very warm water
Corn meal
1 egg white
1 tablespoon cold water

Mix 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and yeast. Add margarine. Gradually add tap water to dry ingredients. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Scrape bowl occasionally. Add ¾ cup flour. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes. Stir in enough flour to make a stiff dough. Place on floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap and then towel and let rest 20 minutes.

Divide dough in half. Roll each half into oblong shape 15x10 inches. Beginning at wide side, roll up tightly. Pinch seam and seal. Taper ends by rolling back and forth.

Place on greased baking sheep sprinkled with corn meal. Cover loosely with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours

When ready to bake, uncover dough carefully. Let stand at room temperature 10 minutes. Cut 3 to 4 diagonal cuts on top with razor blade. Bake at 425°F. for 15 minutes for rolls, 20 minutes for loaves. Remove from oven, brush with egg white mixed with water. Return to oven for 5 to 10 more minutes.

IMPORTANT - Place cookie sheet on bottom of oven and pour boiling water in it so it steams during baking. It will make a crusty bread.

Makes 2 loaves, 1 large round, or 6 rolls.

Two Pizza Crusts

1 envelope active yeast
1 cup warm water (105 to 115°F)
3½ to 3¾ cups flour
2 teaspoons sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
Oil

Sprinkle yeast over water and stir until dissolved. Stir in 1½ cups flour, the sugar and salt. Add egg and 1 tablespoon oil and stir until smooth and glossy. Stir in 2 cups flour. On lightly floured surface, knead dough until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes (dough should be soft). Place in greased bowl and turn to grease top Cover with towel and let rise in warm place, draft free, until double, about 1 hour. Punch down, chill. Divide in half and pat into 2 greased 12 or 14-inch pizza pans or cookie sheet. Crimp edges and brush with oil.

FRUIT-SLICE COOKIES

1 cup butter, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons vanilla
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
Red, yellow and green food color
1½ teaspoons each grated lemon, lime and orange peel
Yellow, green and orange colored sugar

Mix thoroughly butter, granulated sugar, eggs and vanilla. Blend in flour and salt. Divide dough into 4 parts.

To 1 part, add a few drops yellow food color and the lemon peel. To 1 part, add few drops green food color and the lime peel. To 1 part, add few drops each red and yellow food color and the orange peel. Leave remaining part of dough plain. Work in color and peel with hands. Cover dough; chill 1 hour.

Shape each colored dough into roll, 2 inches in diameter and 4 inches long. Divide plain dough into 3 parts; roll each part into rectangle, 6 x 4 inches. Wrap 1 rectangle around each roll colored dough; press firmly together. Roll in matching colored sugar. Wrap; chill 6 hours.

Heat oven to 400°F. Cut each roll into 1/8-inch slices. Place on ungreased baking sheet; cut each slice in half. Bake 6 to 8 minutes. Immediately remove from baking sheet. Makes about 10 dozen cookies.

OATMEAL-CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

1 cup soft shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
2 unbeaten eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 tablespoons milk
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups rolled oats
½ cup chocolate chips

Put shortening, brown sugar, white sugar, eggs, vanilla and milk into mixing bowl. Mix well. Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt together. Add to creamed mixture. Mix well. Add rolled oats and mix. Stir in chips. Drop onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375°F. for 10 to 12 minutes.

Mrs. Ray Keeny
New Freedom

LEMON-PECAN DAINTIES

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 well-beaten egg
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
Dash salt
1 cup finely chopped pecans

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add egg and lemon juice; beat well. Sift dry ingredients; add to creamed mixture; mix well. Stir in nuts.

Shape in rolls; wrap in waxed paper and chill thoroughly. Slice very thin; bake on greased cookie sheet at 350°F. for 12 to 15 minutes.

Mrs. Ray Keeny
New Freedom

SOFT ORANGE COOKIES

1 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup buttermilk
Juice of 1 orange
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar, add eggs and beat until fluffy. Stir in orange juice and buttermilk. Mix in dry ingredients thoroughly. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake at 375°F. for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 5 dozen. Can be spread with orange or almond-flavored icing when still a little warm.

Lancaster youth get set for 4-H Fair

LANCASTER – It's 4-H Fair time in Lancaster County! Thursday, Aug. 15 is the day when 4-H'ers are recognized for their efforts and the community gets to see just what 4-H offers.

Events open to the public begin at the Farm and Home Center at 1 p.m. with animal fitting demonstrations and club demonstrations featuring skills learned by 4-H'ers. 4-H agent, Zoann Parker, said a new event for this year is the bike rodeo, which offers not only a test of skills, but also a check of bicycles for safety by 4-H Bicycle leaders. 4-H'ers are encouraged to bring their bicycles.

There will be the traditional archery competition which takes place at 5:30 p.m., and a basketball foul shooting contest will be held during the afternoon program.

All 4-H exhibits will be available for viewing from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., according to Parker. Non-perishable exhibits must be entered between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Wednesday night, Aug. 14, and perishable exhibits will be entered from 8 to 9 a.m. Thursday morning. Judging will be completed and ribbons in place by the 1 p.m. opening time. These exhibits will range from baby-sitting to wildlife.

Other special events for the day include hot air balloon rides by WGAL's Sky Skimmer, a craft tent, rocketry shoot, therapeutic riding demonstration, Seeing Eye dog demonstration, as well as a fashion show.

The achievement program, recognizing outstanding 4-H'ers in Lancaster County, begins at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. This program will also feature a talent show with the best of Lancaster County's 4-H'ers.

Food booths, sponsored by County 4-H clubs, will be available from 1 to 6 p.m.

Fountainville youth takes grand championship at Bucks-Montgomery 4-H Swine Roundup

DOYLESTOWN – Karl Bromm, Fountainville, showed the grand champion hog at the Bucks-Montgomery 4-H Swine Show and Sale held recently at the Quakertown Livestock Auction. The Danboro 4-H Club member's 240-pound crossbred pig was bought by Hatfield Packing for $3.70 per pound.

Dan Mentzer of Royersford had the reserve champion hog. It weighed 220 pounds and was also purchased by Hatfield for $2.90 per lb.

In all, 24 4-H members from Bucks and Montgomery Counties showed and sold 84 hogs. The sale averaged 81 cents per pound with the champions included and 62 cents per pound without the champions, about 17 cents per pound above the fat hog market price.

The grand champion 4-H market hog was shown by Richie Powell, Rome. Leona Meats purchased the champion for $3.50 per pound.

In the Pen of Three competition, Dan Cochran of Trappe showed the champion pen and Rick Troxel of Perkasie showed the reserve champion pen. Cochran's pigs were bought by Leidy's Inc. of Souderton for $1 per pound. George's Foodliner of Bethlehem was the high bidder for Troxel's pigs at $1.05 per pound.

Willi Harvey of Pipersville showed the Bucks County reserve champion. It was bought by Leidy's, Inc. for $1.45 per pound. Shawn Mentzer of Phoenixville had the Montgomery County reserve champion. It sold to Hatfield for $1.45 per pound.

The grand champion fitter and showman was Rick Troxel of Pipersville, and Renea Allibach of Harleysville was the reserve champion fitter and showman. Henry Gruber of New Tripoli judged the show.

Other buyers included: Bucks-Montgomery Farm Bureau; Quakertown Livestock Auction; Moyer & Son, Souderton; Southeast Farm Credit, Silverdale; Jo Ann Schade, New Hope.

CCC resumes payments

WASHINGTON – Offices of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have been instructed to resume making program payments, ASCS Administrator Everett Rank announced.

Payments for commodity credit programs were suspended July 17 because USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation had nearly depleted its $25 billion borrowing authority.

Resumption of program payments was authorized by Rank after an emergency $1 billion to sustain the borrowing authority of CCC was provided in legislation passed by Congress and signed by President Reagan.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT

A special exhibit this year will bring together between 50 and 60 pieces of equipment. They will show the history of the Rumely company, later taken over by Allis-Chalmers. The Rumely pieces date from about 1815 until the take-over by Allis-Chalmers in April of 1931. Allis-Chalmers machines up to the 1950s complete the historic circle of restored and running machines. At the appropriate time, most of these units will join in the parade

The Rumely/Allis-Chalmers exhibit will also include the largest Rumely Steam engine ever built, a 140 HP monster from about 1915. Rumely's first steam traction engine was built in 1910 and its largest selling tractor, the 30-60 Model E - a 30 HP unit, was offered from about 1918. Two of these will be on exhibit.

An Aultman-Taylor tractor was the Model E's biggest competition. Rumely's answer to this threat was to buy the company out. A 1924 Aultman-Taylor tractor will be shown. When Allis-Chalmers took over Rumely in 1931 they continued to make a standard tread "Rumely 6" under the Rumely name until all the available parts were used up. The company then replaced it with an Allis-Chalmers unit so close in design to the Rumely 6 that the parts may have been interchangeable. One of these "new" Allis-Chalmers tractors will also be on exhibit.

Wolves aren't so big and bad

Who's afraid of a big bad wolf?

Nobody should be, according to the "Wolfman."

"There has not been one single case of a healthy wolf attacking a human in North America!" says Dr. David Mech, a scientist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Dr. Mech probably knows more about wolves than anybody else. He's been studying wolves for about 25 years, and in fact, invented a radio transmitter collar to track the animals' movements in the forests.

Using the radio transmitter collar Dr. Mech learned that:

- Wolves hunt only for food and may go as long as two weeks between meals.
- There are only two to eight wolves in most packs.
- They hunt mostly deer and moose, and the prey caught are usually the old, the very young, the sick, or the injured.
- When pups grow up, they often stay with their parents as pack members.
- Every wolf in a pack has a "rank" or place, and if a wolf with low rank does not like its place, it may leave to become a lone wolf or find a mate to form a new pack.

Dogs and wolves are very closely related, and pack members act very similar to dogs. For instance, after two pack members have been separated for a while, they rush together, lick each other's faces, and wag their tails.

Despite this similarity to dogs, people are still frightened of wolves, possibly, says Mech, because of fairy tales like "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Peter and the Wolf," which gave the wolf the "bad guy" image.

The only real danger is not to people, but to the wolves' survival. Although there are plenty of timber wolves in Alaska and Canada, there are only about 1,200 left in the "lower 48" states, most of them in Minnesota.

Mech believes that the key to saving the 1,200 wolves in the "lower 48" is to save their habitat.

Stephanie Yost crowned Lancaster Poultry Queen

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Stephanie Yost, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Yost, was selected Lancaster County Poultry Queen during the annual contest held Aug. 2 at the Farm and Home Center. Stephanie will also represent the state as Pennsylvania Poultry Queen.

Throughout the coming year Stephanie will promote the poultry industry by appearing at shopping malls and grocery stores and by participating in various events across the state.

Stephanie credits her knowledge of the industry and the people who stood behind her for her success. "I think I have a pretty good knowledge of the poultry industry," she noted.

While being poultry queen is something Stephanie had considered for a long time, she said it took a nudge of encouragement from her father for her to enter the contest.

A 1985 graduate of Conestoga Valley High School, Stephanie is employed as a secretary at C.B. Hoober, Intercourse. Her parents have 30,000 laying hens and process their own eggs.

In a promotional presentation that was part of the contest, Stephanie explained different ways to prepare eggs and encouraged consumers to "don't delay, buy your eggs today."

Stephanie received her crown from 1984 Lancaster Poultry Queen Gwen (Yoder) Snader and 1984 Pennsylvania Poultry Queen Jackie King of Adams County.

Constance Martin, the 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Martin, Elizabethtown, was selected alternate poultry queen and will assist Stephanie in promoting the poultry industry.

A 1983 graduate of Elizabethtown High School and Mt. Joy Vo-Tech, Connie is a cook at Quality Inn in Centerville. Her father has 98,000 broilers.

During the contest ceremonies, County Commissioner James Huber proclaimed August Poultry Month in Lancaster County. Also making an appearance at the contest was V.I. Peeps, the poultry industry's mascot.

Other contestants for the Poultry Queen title were Denise Mumma, Mt. Joy; Suzanne Groff, Manheim; and Linda Kready, Manheim.

Eighteen-year-old Stephanie Yost is the poultry industry's new representative for the coming year. She was named Lancaster County poultry queen Aug. 2.

Sheila Bender selected Maryland dairy princess

FREDERICK, Md. — Dairy farm families turned out in force to watch as Sheila Bender was crowned Maryland dairy princess during ceremonies at the Sheraton Inn, Frederick.

Also selected "Miss Congeniality" by the other competitors, Sheila will spend the coming year promoting the dairy industry across the state.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Bender of Accident, Md, and was representing Garrett and Alleghany Counties in the competition. She is the first girl from that region to be named state dairy princess.

Having graduated from Northern High School in June, the 17-year-old plans to attend Garrett Community College part time in the fall to study elementary education. She will continue to work on her family's 380-acre dairy farm, where she is raising four Holsteins of her own.

Eventually Sheila would like to work with deaf children or the handicapped. Her concern for the the deaf was evident in her skit, "Bessie the Cow," when at the end she used sign language to remind the audience to drink milk.

Carroll County dairy princess Kristine Eckard was named alternate state dairy princess. Kristine also received an award from the judges for the best skit.

Entitled "Super Cow," the skit pitted a cow hand puppet against the dangers of junk food. Super cow informed the audience about the family of dairy products and reminded them to look for the "REAL" Seal when buying dairy products.

Kristine graduated from Westminster High School in June and plans to attend the University of Maryland to study dairy science, drafting and photography.

She works on a dairy farm and owns two heifers. She was awarded the bronze key for school service and is active in 4-H and FFA.

Also competing for the title were: Washington County dairy princess Jody Forsyth, Hagerstown; Frederick County dairy princess Belinda Offut, Keymar; Baltimore-Harford dairy princess, Kelly Vansant, White Hall; South Central princess Julie Walbert, Ellicott City; and Upper Shore princess Kathy Myers of Centreville.

Georgetown cook wins Del. Egg Cooking Contest

GEORGETOWN, Del. — A Georgetown woman who says she's never before entered a cooking contest has walked off with the top prize in the Delaware Egg Cooking Contest.

Bettye Arnold's "Eggs La Lunch" has earned her $300 in cash from the Delaware Egg Producers and a trip for two to the National Contest in Atlanta, GA courtesy of the American Egg Board.

Arnold says the recipe for Eggs La Lunch, a salad type dish made from items including chopped hard-cooked eggs, peas, diced ham, cheese, onion and celery, resulted from her dislike of boring leftovers and waste. One day she went to the refrigerator, pulled out the leftover ingredients and Eggs La Lunch was created.

"Everybody really liked the concoction," Arnold says, "so I continued to make it. When I heard about the contest, everybody encouraged me to enter it."

So Arnold traveled to Betts Egg Farm in Milton for some fresh eggs, wrote down the recipe for the first time, and nervously entered the contest. The results shocked her.

"I was absolutely shocked," she said after hearing the news. And, although she's never entered a cooking contest before, Arnold has already decided to enter them in the future. "I already have an egg recipe for next years contest!", she says.

Arnold and her husband live on a farm south of Georgetown. They raise chickens for Paramount Poultry.

The 51-year-old Baltimore native is a former actress and singer, and until three years ago she owned Arnold Furniture in Rehoboth Beach, a business her family started 28 years ago.

Arnold is an officer for the Pomona Grange and has been active in the Republican Party.

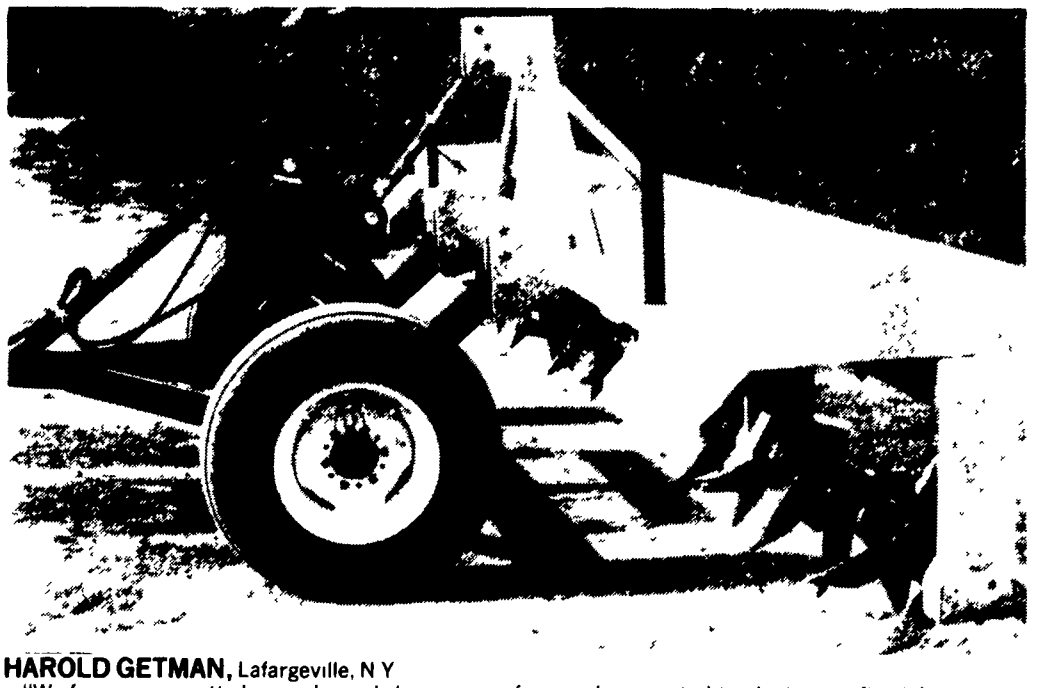
THE BETTER WAY
TO REVITALIZE THE SOIL AND INCREASE YIELD

The AER-WAY is an utility implement that relieves compaction, aerates, cultivates and renovates. It can function as a rotary hoe, a disc, a roller and a harrow. It saves fuel, time and fertilizer. It increases water percolation, bacterial life and root growth. it is an implement for pastureland, grassland, horse paddocks, general field crops, vegetable production, orchards, vineyards and turfgrass. The AER-WAY will increase your profits through lower costs and higher yields.



HAROLD GETMAN, Lafargeville, N Y

"We farm some pretty heavy clay soils here on our farm and we wanted to plant corn after taking winter wheat as silage this spring If it hadn't been for the Aer-way we'd have had a very difficult time getting our 1977 A C no-till planter to place the seed correctly Using the Aer-way we were able to put on the nitrogen from 5000 gallons of liquid manure after the corn was planted It's a beautiful even stand, more than we can say for our minimum tilled corn ground this year "

"Last year at this time I reported on a successful double crop of winter wheat for forage and no-till corn, using the Aer-way as the tillage between the two crops Those two crops together yielded nearly six tons of dry matter per acre For any place that is not bad but for LaFargeville, New York it's unheard of We credit the Aer-way with making our manure, corn planter herbicides and crop rotation come together in a system that really works "

DID YOUR ALFALFA GROW NEW FEEDER ROOTS THIS YEAR?

Managing for Feeder Roots

Alfalfa must produce new feeder roots annually in order to maintain vigorous top growth for top yields Alfalfa will only attempt to grow feeder roots when at least one of the four following conditions are met

1 Bloom occurs
2 Dormancy results from drought stress
3 Dormancy results from cold temperatures
4 Budding occurs at least four times *

*(See chart from Teare and Peet, 1983) The growth of feeder roots annually is the equivalent of growing new mouth parts

"Managing" to trigger the growth of feeder roots will only result in actual growth of roots if the soil is loose enough to permit root elongation (Ala the runting syndrome again)

Each time harvest occurs soils are again compacted Removal of the compaction and management to cause new root development must be coordinated in order to achieve the desired new feeder root development

When to Aerate for Feeder Root Growth

The most obvious time to aerate is in advance of the occurrence of the conditions which would cause the alfalfa plant to inititate new feeder rood development That time varies widely from region to region with climatic conditions Soil conditions will also dictate when use of the AerWay™ is practical Reasonably dry soils with up to 8" of snow-cover have been AerWayed successfully So flexibility is the key to success

Aeration for root development in four (or more) cut systems is very flexible since some root development occurs at the bud stage of each cutting If, however, budding is not permitted then little or no root growth will occur Then it will be necessary to have plants bloom once each year

One bloom period is necessary in three cut regimes The bloom stage has the least protein depressing effect when it occurs in the fall Therefore aeration after second harvest is the best time in three-cut regimes

Bear in mind that in established stands of two years or more, plants will not bloom uniformly throughout the field The "runts" whc are still surviving are not going to achieve the physiological conditions for blooming as quickly as the other plants The longer the bloom period the larger the percentage of plants that will be able to grow new feeder roots

Columbia Co. 4-H'ers exhibit livestock at Achievement Show

BLOOMSBURG – Livestock projects were featured during the first day of the Columbia County 4-H Achievement Show held Aug. 1 and 2 at the Bloomsburg Fair Grounds. Market steers, dairy cattle and rabbits were exhibited by their 4-H owners.

In the market steer classes Eddie Chapman, Benton; and Travis Sweeney, Stillwater, topped the show by receiving blue merit awards for their steers. Other exhibitors were Skip Davison, Stillwater; Ed Miller, Benton; and Sam Creveling, Stillwater.

In the showmanship contest, Skip Davison was first in the junior division while Sam Creveling placed first in the senior division.

In the fitting contest Eddie Chapman and Travis Sweeney placed first in the junior and senior divisions respectively. Judge of the beef show was Charles Porter, Elysburg.

Members of the Columbia County 4-H Dairy Club exhibited four different breeds of cattle. Major exhibits were of the Holstein breed, while smaller numbers of Ayrshire, Jersey, and Guernsey cattle were exhibited.

Ben Wolff of Millville won the Grand champion Holstein award with his senior two-year old, Pen-Col Pete Beth. Reserve grand champion Holstein was won by Sandy Shuman, Mainville, with a three-year-old cow, Tyrbach Elevatier Ninette.

Grand champion Jersey was awarded to a junior yearling Jul-Am Soldiers Pride Lottie shown by Julie Hackett; Julie's sister Amy exhibited the reserve grand champion Jersey, an intermediate yearling, Jul-Am Soldier Boy Annabelle. The Hacketts are from Bloomsburg.

Other top awards went to Rebecca Fairchild, Berwick for junior champion Holstein and to Corey Wolff, Millville for reserve junior champion Holstein. Amy Hackett and Kristin Kriebel, Benton were named champion junior showman and fitter respectively.

The 4-H Rabbit project showed a growing interest with many rabbits exhibited. Top awards were: Blue merit awards to Eddie Miller, Benton, and Corey Sweeney, Stillwater, in the lightweight division. Blue merit awards to Lois Laudermilch, Bloomsburg, Eddie Chapman, and Elsie Hower, Catawissa, in the heavyweight division.

These sturdy doll accessories come in kit form from Greever & Walsh. Each piece can be assembled in about an hour and left unfinished or painted, stained or varnished.

Wooden doll furniture that you can make

By Wendie R. Blanchard
Copley News Service

When our first Greever & Walsh doll furniture kit arrived, it looked perfect for a Cabbage Patch Doll™, but a little too complicated for a beginner's woodworking project.

However, after reading through the instructions and looking over the precut pieces, I realized that my 3-year-old and I could assemble the rocking chair in less than an hour. The other five kits were equally quick and easy.

Here are a few tips that will will assist the beginning woodworker in putting together these and other kits.

First, it always is best to preassemble the kit without glue, just to acquaint yourself with all the parts and how they should fit together.

Next, give every piece a light but thorough sanding. This will prepare the surfaces for painting and staining.

Use a clear-drying wood glue, but not an instant-drying glue. You want the wood to remain workable until all the pieces have been glued into place.

When you glue wood together remember that less is better. Use only two or three drops in each hole. If any excess glue is forced out of the hole during assembly, wipe off immediately with a damp paper towel. Globby glue will look unsightly and detract from the final result.

The endless possibilities for decorating these delightful pieces motivated us to try various techniques for painting, varnishing and staining. Here are a few suggestions before you begin putting on any finish.

First, check both the label and with a local shop owner as to the safety of the materials you are selecting and their use on children's toys. Paints that contain lead are toxic and not suitable for children's toys, nor are outdoor paints since they usually contain preservatives that could be harmful if chewed or swallowed.

Our first technique was to simply varnish the wood with a clear semigloss finish. Only two coats were necessary for a smooth surface. Be sure to sand with dry sandpaper between coats.

We spray-painted the little chairs red and after the second coat sanded and added heart stickers. The stickers were the children's contribution; it is so nice to be able to include them in projects like this.

The table also was spray-painted and sanded between coats with 0000 steel wool. Next, we stenciled bears using precut stencils from Stencil Ease™. They have several easy-to-master children's designs available at craft and hardware stores.

We decided to stain the high chair. Our choice was medium maple and we applied only one coat.

Whichever finish you select — or you may just leave the pieces unfinished — these sturdy doll accessories are sure to become treasures of childhood for generations to come.

Bakalar promoted in Bradford County

UNIVERSITY PARK — Cathy Bakalar, assistant extension agent in Bradford County, has been promoted to the rank of associate extension agent effective July 1.

Cathy's programs focus on nutrition. She directs the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) in several counties in the northern part of the state, including the training and supervising of nutrition aides. EFNEP is a federally funded program developed to help limited-resource families efficiently utilize their resources to feed themselves nutritiously. Cathy's work also includes preventive health care and weight control and 4-H youth nutrition programs.

Cathy developed a particularly innovative nutrition project for 4-H and other youths. She designed microcomputer software that uses words, graphics and sound to add a new dimension to learning about nutrition. The software program, called "Food For Someone Special: You," is designed to be used on an Apple II Computer by youth aged 8 to 12.

She also writes a newspaper column that appears in two local newspapers and in a multi-county publication, Farmer's Friend.

Cathy holds a bachelor's degree in nutrition from Albright College and has completed graduate studies for a master's degree in Extension education at Penn State. She is a member of the Pennsylvania and National Association of Extension Home Economists, and has been with the Cooperative Extension for six years.

Cumberland 4-H holds swine sale

CARLISLE — The 1985 Cumberland County 4-H Swine Roundup and Sale will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 20, at the Carlisle Livestock Market. The Show will start at 9:30 A.M. and the Sale at 6:30 P.M.

Members will be judged on fitting and showmanship, and a Champion will be selected in each age category. A Grand and Reserve Champion Market Hog will also be selected. The Hogs will be sold at auction that evening.

There are 47 members in the Central Penn 4-H Swine Club. These young 4-H'ers are "Learning by Doing". They gain practical experience in animal husbandry, business and economics, and also develop socially.

Anyone can buy an animal. This is an excellent opportunity to fill your freezer with quality pork.

Crafts and cookery debut at Pa. Sheep Field Day and Craft Show

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — They came to the Penn State Ag Arena in a slow but steady stream for two days. They were first-time visitors to the annual Pennsylvania Sheep Field Day. And they came because this year for the first time, the field day included a Craft Show.

Several hundred visitors came to the arena Aug. 2 and 3 and were treated to a gathering of 20 commercial exhibitors whose booths displayed wool crafts and sheep products. There were serious weavers from eastern and western parts of the state, and housewives and teens who enjoy sewing and knitting and were looking for sheep-related items. Although some were sheep growers, the majority who came for the crafts portion of the program were not. But by the day's end, they learned a lot about sheep growing.

"This is the first year we've tried incorporating the crafts," explained David Albert of the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association, which sponsored the event along with Penn State and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. "We've moved the field day around so much it was getting to be more of a regional thing instead of a state event. It was a good idea to move it here (to the Ag Arena for the first time)."

Albert surveyed the crowd, noting a stream of people visiting the crafts booths and a hundred or more seated to watch a cooking demonstration, while others were outside visiting fence exhibits or learning more about working sheep dogs.

"I think this is really going to go," he said. "We need to keep it here and to keep expanding. The craft people bring in a different group that helps us tell people more about sheep and lambs. We'd like to encourage more craft people to come in the future."

The craft people themselves seemed to be enjoying the crowd and its surprises. Jane Peterson of Peterson Projects, Winfield, Pa., looked ruefully over the large display board of grey yarns spun from her sheep. "At the last minute before I left the house I grabbed some bags of fleece, thinking maybe someone would want one. That's what everyone wanted. I sold out of those right away, but I'm not doing so well with the yarn. I'll know better next year."

Carol Alexander, of Avella, Pa., echoed many of the craftspeople as she noted, "This is a crowd of lookers. They came to see, to learn. They're not buying much."

But it was the looking that made the day so enjoyable. In one corner there was Marianne Horchler of New York talking with a woman from southwestern Pennsylvania about carding wool. Across the arena, Jean Ware of State College Spinners found herself interrupted frequently at the loom by friendly strangers.

In the grandstand during the craft auction there was as much activity among the spectators getting acquainted as there was for bidding. "Gee that smells good. What is it?" a man said, nodding toward a sandwich a woman nearby was holding. "Lambassi. I never had it before," the woman admitted. "It's great." When the bidding slowed, the man disappeared from the gallery, only to return a few minutes later with a sandwich of his own. He'd scarcely taken his seat when another stranger asked, "What is that. It smells great."

"We're really pleased with the show," acknowledged Dr. Clair Engle of Penn State. "By bringing in the craft component, we're adding a new dimension to our program. The growers are getting to know some of the people their products are marketed to. It's good to see them come together."

Craftsmen filled the Ag Arena at Penn State last weekend, displaying their sheep and wool products.

Here's what you missed...

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — Baa, baa black sheep, have you any wool? Yessir, yessir... and a whole lot more besides. If you're a wool crafter or someone who's interested in "sheepish" products, you'd better start planning to attend the Pennsylvania Sheep Field Day and Craft Show in 1986. Here's some of what you missed in this year's program:

Wool yarn in every imaginable weight and length. Wool by the bag, wool by the skein. And what skeins they were, dyed by Mother Nature's best colorings in vibrant blues and sunset hues or tones as muted as a newborn lamb's bleat. For those willing to do or dye, there were extracts and mordants. For the more adventuresome, there was even a workshop on how to dye wool with Kool-Aid.

Spinning's your game? There were wheels and wheels and more wheels. Try a Charkha, a book-sized wheel from India for under $50. If you're more traditionally inclined, the craft show offered plenty of familiar floor model spinning wheels priced to $200 and higher.

If you hankered for the more exotic there were drum carders, yarnblockers, bobbins, shuttles, and even niddy noddies for winding skeins. One highlight for the high-tech cottage weaver was Tim Horchler's redesigned picker that makes separating and fluffing the fleece simpler and safer than other models.

If sewing is your knack, you would have found yards of sheep-printed fabric and racks and racks of sheepy buttons. There were cross-stitch sheep, knitted sheep, sheep made of stuffed and sewn lambskin, and sheep that were pipecleaners stuck onto balls of fleece.

You say you prefer the finished product? Then this show had enough to outfit you from head to toe. Try thick woolen socks, handknit of course, or lambswool slippers for Mom, Dad, or Baby. There were shawls as light as the day's breeze and as colorful as the fields around the arena. There were skirts and sweaters and vests in a dizzying whirl of stripes, plaids, and of course cavorting sheep.

If you'd rather not wear your wool, there was still plenty to take home. Try a lambswool bicycle seat. Or a fleece steering wheel cover. You could have picked from a rainbow of pelts, including the fragile skins from newborn lambs.

If you prefer your sheep almost alive, there were wooly pets aplenty. There were lambs tiny enough to hang on the Christmas tree and stuffed sheep almost big enough for riding. If you sought a more unusual pet, there were squirrels, skunks, and even a nameless wooly "thing" that fit on a finger or two and made puppets.

And if this wasn't enough, you missed sheep atop pencil erasers, sheep buttons, sheep pins, sheep books, sheep purses, even sheep gamboling across yards of wrapping paper.

Ah, but for a true sheep lover, there's never a saturation point. As the two-day event closed, several people in the crowd drifted outside to admire one of the growers' license plates. They clustered around the nondescript pickup truck as if memorizing a new mantra, both teasing and jealous as they read, "BA-BAA."

Lamb - a wise choice for consumers

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — Lamb made a debut on Aug. 2 and 3 at the Pennsylvania Sheep Field Day and Craft Show. In addition to a healthy schedule of programs for sheep growers and wool crafters, the event featured a strong program on the edible lamb.

"Lamb is the most underrated meat in the United States," said Rick Harbaugh, regional manager of marketing for the American Sheep Producer's Council. Harbaugh used the arena stage to tell the public a little more about lamb as he demonstrated cuts of the meat.

"Lamb is marketed young," he noted. "It has very little fat. That's becoming important as we become more health conscious in America."

He pointed out that Americans are producing excellent market lambs and have outstanding knowhow when it comes to lamb as a meat. For example, it was Lamb Wyoming, an American entry, that won an international cooking competition in Germany recently. "But too many Americans don't know enough about lamb and don't know how to cook it right," he lamented.

According to the National Livestock and Meat Board, lamb is high in vitamin B12 and other B-complex vitamins that help the body make good use of the nutrients in food. Lamb is also rich in iron and zinc. And it's low in calories. A three-ounce serving of cooked lean lamb contains 221 calories and provides 40 percent of the protein, 17 percent of the iron, 79 percent of the vitamin B12, 36 percent of the niacin, and 31 percent of the zinc recommended as dietery allowances for an adult male.

Lamb meat should appear pinkish-red and have a velvety texture. It will have little marbling and only a thin layer of fat outside the meat, since lamb is a young animal.

Lamb purchased fresh should be placed in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Lamb that has been prepackaged can be stored in its original wrapping, either plastic or market wrapping paper. Cooked lamb should be covered and placed in a refrigerator within an hour after cooking.

Most lamb cuts can be stored three to five days if not frozen; however, ground lamb should be stored no more than one or two days. Cooked lamb can be stored four or five days in a refrigerator or can be frozen for later use.

Fresh lamb can be frozen for six to nine months while frozen ground and cooked lamb should be used within three to four months.

Lamb is a naturally tender meat and can be cooked and served rare, medium, or well-done. "Most Americans prefer their lamb medium," Harbaugh said. "But too often they cook it to death." He explained that lamb should be cooked at lower temperatures for longer times, never higher than 325 degrees.

As Harbaugh talked about the versatility of lamb, he emphasized his point by creating unusual cuts of the meat for his audience. With a few careful slices, he turned a rack into an elegant standing rib roast. The breast, often seen as a throw-away item in supermarkets, Harbaugh sliced easily into riblets and suggested a rack of spare ribs or a rolled breast to roast.

Perhaps the best underlining to Harbaugh's demonstration was the scrumptious odor of lambassi, a spicy lamb sausage that was cooked and served to the crowd throughout the day. As the day went by, more and more people, many of them visitors who had come to the show to see the crafts component, joined the line at the lambassi tent. In a most delicious way they learned that there's more than one way to skin a lamb.

Cloudy egg whites mean fresher product

ITHACA, NY – You crack open an egg as you have dozens, even thousands of times before. This time, though, something's different: the egg white is all cloudy.

Is it spoiled? Contaminated? Old?

"It's nothing of the sort! In fact, when the egg white is milky in color, it means that the egg is fresher than ever," says Robert Baker, professor of poultry and avian sciences at Cornell University.

In the past, when egg farms were smaller and pic-ups for market occurred less often, eggs didn't reach consumers until they were about ten days old. Today, farms are tremendous in size and eggs are delivered to market almost daily.

"It's often possible for eggs to reach the supermarket when they're only one day old," Baker explains.

As a result, the egg white, or albumen, still has a large amount of free carbon dioxide in it, as it did when the egg was laid. This harmless gas causes the albumen to appear cloudy or milky in color. Other than looking a little different and being a little harder to peel if hard-boiled, the eggs with cloudy whites are in no other way different.

The difference in color, however, has been alarming consumers who are not used to seeing a thicker, milky-colored egg white because they're not used to having such fresh eggs, Baker says.

An egg breathes once it is laid, giving off carbon dioxide just as animals give off carbon dioxide as a by-product of respiration. As the gas leaves the egg, the albumen eventually becomes clear and thinner in consistency. If eggs are refrigerated, respiration is slowed and the cloudiness may remain for several days, Baker points out. If left out at room temperature, the eggs will respire more quickly and the egg white will become clear within hours.

Baker evaluated 23 different strains of laying hens to determine if there were any differences in the carbon dioxide content or the appearance of their egg whites. Comparing the color of fresh egg whites to the color of diluted skim milk, he rated the cloudiness of different kinds of eggs.

"We found that the degree of cloudiness of albumen differs by strain and by individual birds. Some strains of layers produce eggs with more carbon dioxide and therefore their egg whites appear more milky than other strains. "Some hens of the same strain, however, produce eggs with more carbon dioxide than others," Baker found.

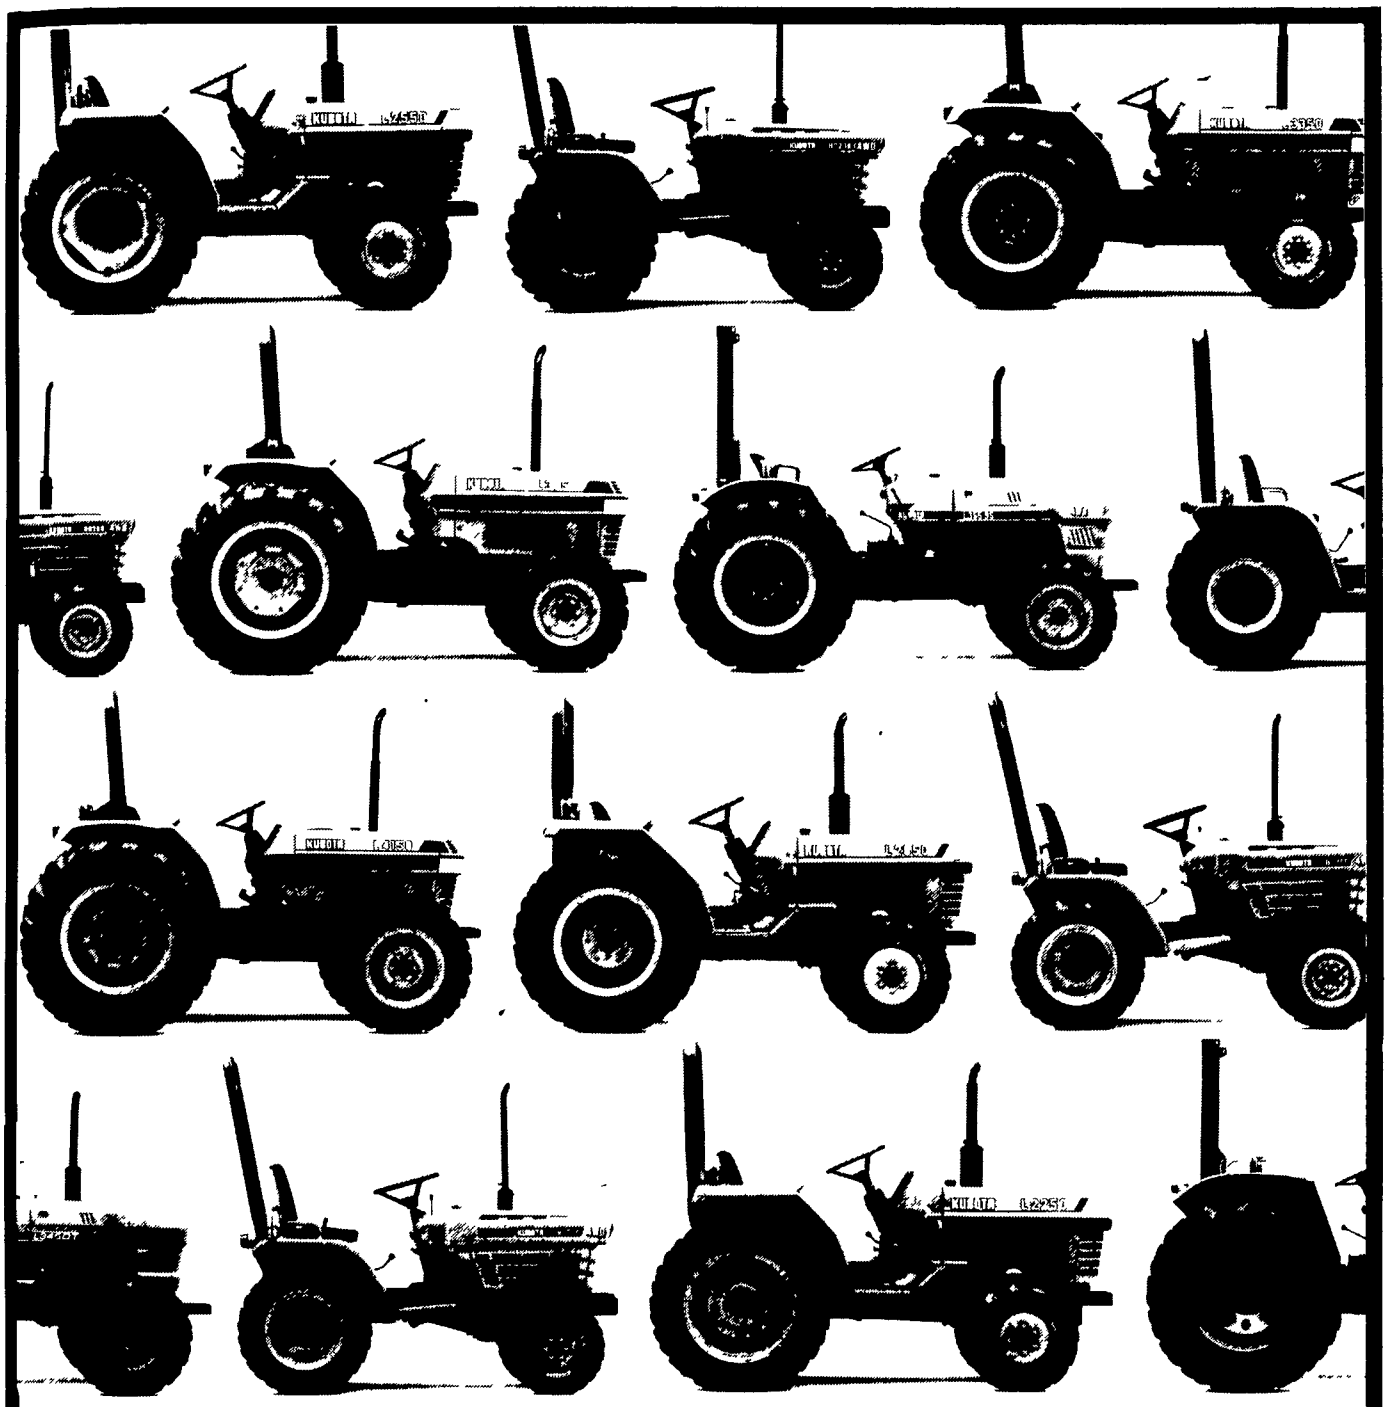
By trapping the egg's carbon dioxide inside the eggshell, the respiration of an egg can be slowed down and its freshness maintained, Baker points out. In fact, many producers use the harlmess procedure of spraying their eggs with a colorless, odorless, tasteless mineral oil to plug the pores, thereby preventing the gas from escaping.

Almost all American consumers refrigerate their eggs, thereby maintaining the fresh quality of eggs for a long time. When eggs are shipped overseas to countries where refrigeration is scarce, however, they are sometims put in non-breathing cartons to keep the carbon dioxide in to help preserve the eggs at room temperature for several months.

Sometimes, egg whites may stay cloudy or even become cloudy in the refrigerator because they may absorb carbon dioxide that is being released by other fresh foods as they respire. There is no harm if this occurs. In fact, the absorption of carbon dioxide will help maintain the quality of eggs.

So the next time you crack an egg and you see that the albumen is milky or cloudy, don't be concerned. "It's just an indication of a really fresh egg," Baker says.

What if you want to hard-boil such a fresh egg? "Let it remain at room temperature for several hours or overnight and the carbon dioxide will escape, leaving you with an easy-to-peel egg," says the Cornell expert.



NOBODY HAS MORE HORSEPOWER UNDER FORTY.

Under forty horses, nobody sells more tractors than we do. One reason is simple. We give you more choices.

There are sixteen compact sizes, each a different model. One of them should fit you perfectly. And once you settle on the horsepower, there are still more choices.

Pick special options like 4-wheel drive, power steering or a hydraulic shuttle transmission. Or choose a Kubota-made implement, the best match for any of our Kubota tractors.

There are, however, a couple of decisions we've made for you.

For example, Kubota's own liquid-cooled diesel engine comes standard in every model. An advanced design, it's built for efficient operation. So a little horsepower works like more.

We've also chosen the color.

Lancaster Society 24

Lancaster Society 24 met recently at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Mellinger.

Vice president Carolyn Groff presided over the business meeting. Dr. Earl H. Hess spoke on legislation. He encouraged farm women to get involved.

Berks Society 11

Members of Berks Society 11 and their children recently held a program at the Myerstown ECC Retirement Home. The program included singing, piano music and poem recitations.

Wendy Lingle, president, conducted a business meeting after the program at the home of Rose Hibshman. The yard sale/bake sale was a success and the group plans to hold another one later in the year. Clothing left over from the sale was donated to the Appalachia Fund.

Members and their families were treated to homemade ice cream.

The next meetıng will be on nutrition and will be held at the home of Cathy Olesh on Aug. 19.

Wilmington Watermelon Day

WILMINGTON — The 1985 National Watermelon Queen will be joining MarDel watermelon queen Dianna Lynn Savage of Salisbury, MD, on Tuesday, Aug. 13 for "Wilmington Watermelon Day".

The queens, along with the watermelon ındustries ambassador of goodwill, Walter Melon, a 6-foot tall stuffed watermelon, will be handing out free slices of chilled, Delaware-grown watermelons in front of Leo & Jimmy's Deli at 8th & Market Street in Wilmington from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Free recipe books and watermelon stickers will be distributed and participants will be able to take part in a Seed Spitting Contest with the winner receiving a free watermelon. The contest will get underway around noon.

Chester 4-H goat clubs hold annual round-up

WEST CHESTER — The Chester County 4-H goat clubs met at Kimberton Fair Grounds recently for their annual roundup. Animals from all five common breeds of dairy goats were exhibited.

Junior champion honors went to Noel Scheib, of Phoenixville, with her junior doe kid. Reserve junior champion honors went to Janet Hepp with her yearling doe.

A showing and fitting contest was also a part of the afternoon's activities. Grand champion fitter honors went to Maria Seber of the Che-Del-Be Club. Reserve grand champion fitter honors went to Alric Von Gerbic of the New London Club

The grand champion showmanship honors went to Susan Miller and reserve grand champion showmanship honors went to Mamie Rose; both Miller and Rose belong to the Che-Del-Be 4-H Goat Club.

Anyone interested in raising and caring for a goat through 4-H should contact the Chester County Cooperative Extension Service 4-H Program by calling 696-3500.

Stoudt promoted in Berks Co.

UNIVERSITY PARK — Judith Stoudt was recently promoted to Extension agent in Berks County.

Stoudt works extensively in home horticulture, including community gardens, 4-H urban gardens, turfgrass management and landscape design and maintenance.

County Extension director Herbert Wetzel said Stoudt's home horticulture programs and her work with Extension clientele involved with commercial nurseries and greenhouses has been highly effective.

Stoudt developed a successful Master Gardening program to train volunteers to help others interested in home gardening. She also works with handicapped youth at the Easter Seal Society in plant culture and crafts and with the 4-H club at the Hamburg State Hospital.

Stoudt holds two degrees from Penn State, a bachelor's degree in agricultural education and horticulture and a master's of education in agricultural education.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

COOKING CORN ON THE COB, THE MICRO WAY

You know the old saying, " Put the water on to boil before your go pick the corn for dinner." Well, with your microwave, you don't have to wait for that big pot to boil. Go pick you corn and pop it in the microwave. You'll have the best corn you've ever eaten!

Even if you don't try anything else I tell you about in The Micro Way, you've just got to try cooking corn on the cob in your microwave! It's so fast, simple and delicious that it's almost a sin to haul out that big corn pot if there's a microwave in your kitchen.

We like to eat our corn last, so I cook it just before we sit down to eat. It has its standing time right in the oven, stays hot there, and I don't have to jump up and fish it out of the pot during dinner. I don't have to guess how many ears everyone is going to eat either, because it's easy to cook a few more ears when someone wants seconds or thirds...

The best way to cook the corn is right in its husks. Peel the husks back to remove the silk, then pull the husks up around the corn again. The corn steams in the husk, and develops a wonderful sweet flavor. Some cookbooks suggest cooking corn with the silk still on, but trying to get the silk off a steaming hot ear of corn is not an easy job!

Serving the corn with the husks on isn't a problem. They come off easily since they have been pulled back and the silk is gone. Put a basket or bowl on the table for everyone to put the husks in, if you don't want them all over the plates. The husks keep the heat in, so the corn is really steaming hot when served.

If you prefer, you can remove the silk and husks before cooking. Wrap each ear in wax paper, twisting the paper at both ends of the ear to keep it closed. Or, put a few husked ears in a covered casserole with 1-2 tablespoons water for cooking.

Melt butter in a small bowl and serve it with a small kitchen paint brush.

Painting the butter on your corn is much easier (and more fun!) than trying to get hard butter on your corn with a knife.

Corn On The Cob

1. Remove the outer layers of husks, leaving two or three inner layers. Gently peel these back almost to the bottom, but don't tear them off. Remove the cornsilk and rinse the corn. Right away, pull the husks back up over the ear so all the corn kernels are covered. (The husks curl up if you don't pull them back up the right way.) If the husks come off, or don't stay closed put a small rubber band around the end to keep them there. The husks must be closed to trap the steam around the corn.

2. Put up to 8 ears of corn in the microwave, like the spokes on a wheel, with the tender tip ends in the middle. Cook the corn on high for a little over half the cooking time given below. For instance, for 4 ears, cook for 4 minutes with the tips in.

3. Flip each ear, so the tip is out and the side that was down is now facing up. Cook on high for the remaining time. Very large ears may take a little longer; small tender ears may take a little less. For more than 8 ears, cook in separate batches.

4. Let the corn stand in the microwave or covered with towel for 5 minutes before serving.

Times for cooking Corn on the cob on High power*

1 ear	2-3 minutes
2 ears	4-6 minutes
4 ears	7-8 minutes
6 ears	9-10 minutes
8 ears	11-12 minutes

*NOTE: These times are for microwaves with 600-700 watts of power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

MOPRO THE PROFIT MAKER

LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

A revolutionary new concept in improving silages. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

Take Care Of Yourself

Do you spend more time and money keeping up your car than you do keeping up your body? Just for a minute, think of your body as a car. Cadillac, Rolls-Royce, or whatever model you like. If you take good care of it and keep it repaired, it will give you good service and performance.

What happens when you put the wrong kind of gas into it? It will give you problems. If you continue to do this your problems may become more serious. Your body works the same way. A continuously poor diet leads to poor health. A poor diet may have a lot of junk foods in it and a lack of nourishing foods which your body needs in order to keep running well.

Do you eat a lot of your meals in fast food restaurants?

Do you eat sweets for snacks?

Do you omit vegetables from your meals?

Research studies have shown that many people eat too few fruits and vegetables. People are eating out more than ever, which may result in diets high in fat, sugar and salt. Fruits and vegetables, often ommitted in restaurant menus, are essential to our diets. They supply us with many vitamins, minerals and fiber we need to perform necessary body functions.

This summer at picnics, barbeques and parties include raw vegetables instead of chips or crackers to nibble on or dip into your dips. Try raw turnips, carrots, celery, cauliflower, broccoli, zucchini, green pepper, cucumber and tomatoes. This will help cut down on your salt intake. For sweet munchies, replace pies, cakes, cookies and candy with fresh fruit.

Removing Spilled Milk From Car

Place containers of milk in your car where they will not spill or break. Where possible you should use a rack or box for protection. If a spill does occur, immediate cleanup is mandatory. If you wait a few days until it smells, it is almost hopeless. The upholstery and carpet contain bacteria which cause spoilage. The odor is the result of bacterial growth, because of the nutrients provided by the milk.

Remove spilled milk immediately. Wipe it up with a sponge, then use water to remove more of it. Get it as dry as possible using a vacuum cleaner designed for moisture.

Sanitizers such as chlorine or iodine cannot be used to kill bacteria, because they bleach colors from carpet and upholstery. You can purchase a quaternary ammonium sanitizer at some dairy supply stores. Dilute it by 50 percent and sponge the surface. When it dries, sprinkle baking soda on the carpet. Vacuum within 24 hours.

As a last resort you may have to remove the carpet to dry the padding and floor underneath If you waited days before acting, carpet replacement may be necessary The odor of spoiled milk is almost impossible to remove from a padded carpet Therefore, take immediate steps to wipe it up and all precautions to prevent spills.

Hamburg FFA'ers attend conference

HAMBURG — Six Hamburg Area FFA members attended a leadership conference at Robin Hill campsite Aug. 1 and 2. They were accompanied by officers and advisors from four other Berks County chapters along with guests and state secretary Ann Lansbury.

The conference was designed to give officers an opportunity to exchange ideas on chapter functions and to learn about officers' responsibilities and options.

All members attended workshops for their individual positions. Special sessions included banquet planning, effective committies, preparing a chapter meeting and creating programs of work. Each member shared his ideas about FFA and their own chapter's activities.

Members from the Hamburg chapter who participated were Henry Seidel, president; Tracey Schlappich, secretary; Tammy Balthaser, reporter; Greg Stricker, Jr. vice president; Steve Rohrbach, chaplain; Carol Dreisbach, past secretary; and Lyn VanTassel, advisor.

Bavarian Festival to host first state pork recipe contest

ADAMSTOWN, Pa. — Pork and The Lancaster County Bavarian Summer Festival in Adamstown, Lancaster County, go hand-in-hand. Crowds can sample old and new recipes, entertainment and culinary competition.

The festival hosts the first statewide Pork Fest Recipe Contest on Saturday, Aug. 17. Entries from participants throughout the state are scheduled for judging between 3 and 4 p.m. in the Gemutlichkeit Garten of the Black Angus, when cooking professionals and pork connoisseurs sample the top ten finalists' pork creations.

Over $350 in cash and prizes will be awarded. The competition is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council and the Pennsylvania Meat Marketing Program of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Modeled on Munich's legendary Oktoberfest, the Lancaster County festival celebrates the region's German-American heritage with nationally-known German-American bands, an international array of dance troupes, and an abundance of Old World foods.

Roast pig is most popular according to festival organizers. Each Saturday and Sunday, a young, 90-pound pig is rubbed with oil, pepper and salt, and inserted with cloves and garlic. It's fitted on a rotisserie then slowly turned for eight hours, cooking at 300 degrees. The temperature is carefully monitored to ensure the tenderness of the skin and the thoroughness of cooking.

In addition to the roast pig German specialties are prepared and served festival-style at four restaurant booths in the Gemutlichkeit Garten. The Schnellimbiss Snack Bar features knockwurst, bratwurst and baked ham; the Funnel Cake Stand cooks that Pennsylvania Dutch treat: a German Deli offers German hoagies, roast beef on a kaiser roll and German-style Bologna; the Bakery has freshly baked croissants, a variety of homemade tortes and salads; and the Schwein und Schnitzel Stand serves a weiner schnitzel sandwich, Munich weisswurst and that famous roast pig.

Festival hours each weekend are 6 to 11 p.m. on Fridays; 2 p.m. to midnight on Saturdays; 3 to 8 p.m. on Sundays.

The Lancaster County Bavarian Summer Festival is on Route 272 between Lancaster and Reading, 3 miles north of Exit 21 on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. For more information, contact: Lancaster County Bavarian Summer Festival, Box 277, Rt. 272, Adamstown, PA. Telephone 215-484-4385, or contact the Pennsylvania Meat Marketing Program at 717-787-4210.

Clyde Myers earns Extension promotion

UNIVERSITY PARK — Clyde A.B. Myers, Berks County associate agent for the Pennsylvania State University's Cooperative Extension Service, has been promoted to the rank of extension agent. Dr. W. Wayne Hinish, acting Dean of the College of Agriculture and Director of Penn State's Extension Service, announced the promotion, effective July 1.

Myers' responsibilities include dairy and livestock programs and water and manure management education. He organized several in-depth schools on dairy herd health, swine nutrition, milking and dairy nutrition. According to Herbert Wetzel, Berks County extension director, these schools were particularly effective because Myers used individual farm visits as a follow-up to the programs.

In addition, Myers' work with Farm-City Week in Berks County drew praise from Wetzel, "As a result of his efforts and enthusiasm at the 1985 Pennsylvania Farm Show." His Farm-City Week activities have included Ag Day in Penn Square, Farmer for a Day, and Farm-Business Exchange.

A Penn State graduate, Myers earned a bachelor of science degree in animal husbandry in 1972 from Delaware Valley College, and a master in agricultural education in 1982 from Penn State. Hi is a member of the Pennsylvania and National Associations of County Agricultural Agents; the Pennsylvania and National Associations of Extension 4-H Agents and the Stockmen's Club.

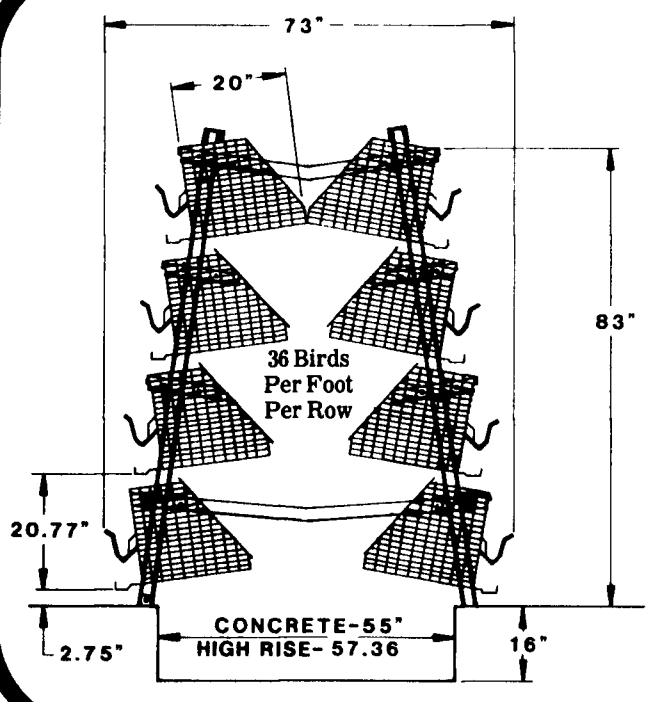
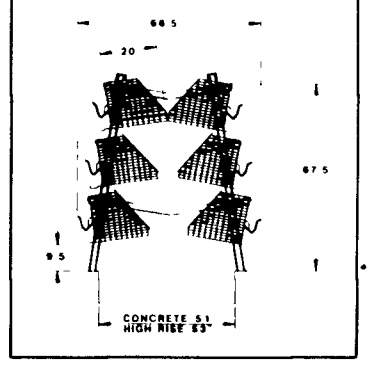
NEW from CHORE-TIME

20" deep SSS curtain back cage layer system



- Ideal for new construction or modernizing older cage houses
- Boosts density of old stair step houses by up to 125% or more
- Boosts density of old 3-high houses by up to 33% or more
- Famous Galv-A-Weld cage construction with 10-year pro-rated warranty

3-high model available



Get The Only New Technology Available For Cage Systems

Chore-Time's new 20" deep SSS 4-high system puts 33% more birds into the same row lengths as old style 3-high systems - without dropping boards and without a need for greater building width. That means at 6 birds per 16"x20" cage (53.3 square inches) a 52'x536' building can house over 108,000 birds.

But, just as important, with this Chore-Time system you also don't have to sacrifice the features and benefits you've come to expect from Chore-Time: single file egg belt, our all galvanized, SOFT TOUCH® II egg collection, a gentle cage floor slope to prevent checks and cracks...rugged A-frame cage support and legs every 4 feet to protect against cage sag and trough wear and Galv-A-Weld (welded black then galvanized) cage construction for long, trouble-free life... a choice of feeding systems to help you take control of feed costs: Meal Master Feedkar (traveling feed hopper), M.T. (rotating Flex Auger), and NEW Ultraflex (80 ft. per minute circulating Flex Auger).

And, with Chore-Time feeding systems you can take full advantage of the new production-boosting, feed-saving MEAL-TIME® feeding method developed by Chore-Time. Our feeding systems are designed to minimize waste and provide each bird with fresh, Un-Picked-Over feed.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Starting a joint venture

Last week we discussed working contracts as a way to begin farming. One natural step up from them would be one or another of the many types of joint ventures in use. A Joint Venture is where each party owns his or her own business or share of the business independent of the other party or parties.

Example: Two people agree that "A" who owns a farm with facilities plus field equipment and "B" who owns some sows will enter into an agreement whereby "A" will furnish all feed for the operation and pay all building repairs and maintenance and "B" will pay all other costs involved in the pigs such as medicine, barn supplies and utilities. They agree to split the income from the sale of pigs 50-50.

Joint ventures can be a good way for a young operator to get into business with a relatively low capital outlay. Storages, buildings and possibly land would be furnished. In the case of a livestock venture the farmer would probably have the major peices of field equipment. However the young person getting into this type of farming should realize that he or she is giving up some management control. Both parties may feel pressured by the lack of income especially if the income potential of the operation is too small for two.

One of the most common joint ventures in this area is one involving dairy and crops. "A" owns a farm with dairy facilities, but is tired of milking cows. "B" owns or would like to own cows, but has no farm and no money to buy a farm. The two parties get together and form a loose alliance whereby "A" agrees to furnish certain things such as forage and grain and buildings and "B" agrees to furnish the cows. Each one is responsible for his own management and expenses. They split the income fromt he sale of milk and any other item that they were jointly involved in producing or marketing. Expenses that are the responsibility of each party should be spelled out at the start of the agreement. They can be changed at a later date if both parties agree. One suggestion that people entering this type of contract may want to consider.

Concerning the sale of cows and fresh heifers – this has often been a bone of contention between the two parties – it may be wise for the animal owner to pay the farmer a fee for any animal that freshens on the place then the owner or dairyman owns the animal outright. Thus there is no argument whether the animal is sold as a beef animal (cull cow) or as a breeding animal for considerably more money. There is also no argument when the dairyman moves off the farm whether he sells out or not.

Some of the areas of dispute that I have seen in this type of arrangement stem from one or the other of the two parties thinking that the other party is making too much money from them. The farm owner may feel that the tenant is raising too many animals for the facilities or the available land. One solution is to put restrictions on the number of animals that could be raised at the start of the agreement. Sometimes the tenant (or dairyman) thinks the farmer does not put enough time and effort into making the forage which results in lower quality forage. A solution is to put a clause into the agreement that requires the farmer to reimburse the dairyman for additional protein he would have to buy if the hay forage protein was below a certain percentage.

As with any agreement, there is no way to foresee all possible problems. The agreement will be no better than the two parties want it to be. It should be made for one year with the option to automatically renew it each year unless one of the parties desires to discontinue it for one reason or another. Provisions should be made to make minor changes without scrapping the whole agreement. There also should be a provision for arbitration if the two parties can not solve a dispute.

PFU head hits PUC action

ERIE – M. James Brown, President of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, testified Wednesday at a hearing on Public Utilities Commission reform.

Representing Farmers Union policy against unjustified rate increases, Brown said, "For farm and rural communities, staying in business depends on affordable gas, electric and telephone service. The PUC has not protected our interests. Instead, it has targeted rural Pennsylvania with pilot projects and allowed utility rates to skyrocket statewide."

The farm leader criticized the PUC decision allowing Bell Telephone to implement local measured service in Bradford and Venango Counties. "Rural people depend on their telephones for business and social reasons," Brown said. "Local measured service is a major step backwards from universal phone service, which provided all consumers the right to affordable local service at a flat rate."

Brown also commented on the West Penn Power Company's proposed purchase of the Bath County pumped storage project in Virginia. "West Penn's customers, who are being asked to pay for the purchase of a facility in Virginia are spread throughout western Pennsylvania in mostly rural areas. These people are not consolidated enough to organize a fight against the West Penn 'bail out'. Clearly, rural Pennsylvania needs the protection of an aggressive PUC.

Aleks Cerne to carry ASA cause to Europe

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – With his burly square-shoulderedness, Aleks Cerne reminds you of a bear. His voice blends traces of Yugoslavia–where he was born 55 years ago–with a accent peculiar to Minnesota, where Cerne has lived for eight years.

A man for all seasons, Cerne speaks five or six different languages: English, Serbo-Croation, Russian, Polish and one or two more.

Cerne is one of the people who makes the American Soybean Association and its programs succeed for soybean farmers. For the past eight years, Cerne served as executive director of the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association and the Minnesota Soybean Research and Promotion Council. Before that, he helped open the Soybean Association's sixth overseas office in Vienna, Austria. And now, he is returning to that office as associate director for East Europe.

Cerne works for soybean farmers with the aggressive tenacity of a bear, yet always with a warm, personable style: in Minnesota to build involvement in the Soybean Association; overseas to build market demand for U.S. soybeans.

Cerne says, "In Minnesota, the challenge was to bring the organization back to the farmers, to increase their involvement in the Soybean Association at the county level. That I did.

"After my years in Minnesota, I feel well-rounded," says Cerne. "I developed a feeling for the farmers. I can better communicate the ideas they have on important issues."

In his new position in Vienna, Cerne has his eyes set on the Soviet Union. The Soybean Association estimates that the Soviet Union could need as much as 231 million bushels of soybeans to meet minimum requirements for livestock feed.

"We need to make the extra effort to develop markets," says Cerne. "Russia has the potential. It has a large population, and the ability to produce more meat, milk, and eggs. It is to our mutual benefit to accomplish these objectives."

Cerne adds, "But this market won't develop overnight. We have to emphasize the quality and uniformity of our soybeans. We need direct contact and communication with the Soviet Union."

How does Cerne feel about his hopscotch back across the Atlantic Ocean? "The Artic Winds that sweep through Minnesota and the Siberian winds are much the same," says Cerne.

To illustrate how he plans on carrying out his work in Eastern Europe, Cerne tells a tale of two groups of people traveling from a town called Mountainburg to settle in the town of Littleton. Each group meets a man along the road. The first group asks, "What are people like in Littleton?" The man asks, "How were the people in Mountainburg?" "Friendly," they answer. He says, "It will be the same in Littleton."

"Life is like that," says Cerne. He adds, "The farmers in Minnesota told me to 'keep on!' I feel very proud of my new role and believe the farmers have confidence in my approach."

House ag leaders in USSR

WASHINGTON – At the invitation of Soviet officials, Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., of the House Agriculture Committee and several other Members of the Committee have gone to the USSR for talks with ranking Russian agriculture and trade officials and visits to agricultural areas.

De la Garza said the trip, which is scheduled to end Aug. 17, "will give us a chance for a first-hand look at Soviet agricultural conditions and prospects, and a chance to talk to some of the people who help decide the outlook for Soviet-American trade."

"Agricultural trade is a matter of vital concern for the American farmer, and the Soviet Union has been – and I hope will continue to be – a major customer for our producers. I understand this is the first time that any Congressional agriculture committee has been officially invited to the Soviet Union for a first-hand look at the situation and face-to-face talks with some of the key decision makers. I am glad that Soviet officials have invited our Agriculture Committee to send a delegation for these purposes, and I believe the trip can produce valuable information for Congress," de la Garza added.

The trip, in addition to meetings in Moscow and visits to farms in the area, will include visits to Tashkent (where cotton, rice and grains are among major crops), and Kiev, which is in a corn, truck farming and sugarbeet area. The Committee delegation is expected to meet with Soviet spokesmen including officials of the trade and agriculture ministries.

Agriculture Committee Members scheduled to accompny de la Garza include Reps. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., Charles Whitley, D-N.C., Charles Hatcher, D-Ga., Robin Tallon, D-S.C., and Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn.

Dow publishes LINKTUF brochure

MIDLAND, Mi. – Multiple benefits of the exclusive "diamond mesh" design in "LINKTUF" agricultural films are detailed in an eight-page color brochure recently published by The Dow Chemical Company.

The brochure explains how the combination of greater toughness and tear strength plus lighter weight translates into more cost effective laying and removal.

Accident rescue

ITHACA, NY. – With seasonal increases in field activities, rural and suburban fire and rescue squads can expect calls for farm accident assistance.

Cornell Cooperative Extension has an instruction text to support the specialized training required for farm accident rescue work. The 36-page, illustrated manual offers suggestions for handling accidents involving machinery, farm structure, and farm chemicals.

"Farm Accident Rescue" (NRAE-10, $3) cautions that standard hydraulic rescue tools and metal-cutting saws commonly used at auto accidents may not work when applied to more solidly-built farm machinery. Furthermore, off-road and muddy field conditions may preclude the use of vehicle-mounted lights, power tools, or air systems.

Written by agricultural engineers familiar with farm accident problems, this publication discusses general characteristics of several types of farm accident situations, along with recommended equipment and procedures for handling them. Effective leadership and crew training is essential to plan, organize, and carry out farm accident rescues.

Along with machinery accidents, fire and rescue teams may be called on to handle grain bin or silo accidents, or fires involving toxic agricultural chemicals.

Fire and rescue training officers, farm managers, implement dealers, Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) leaders, public safety officers, and others may order copies of the manual at $3 each from the Cornell Distribution Center, 7-FA Research Park, Ithaca, NY 14850. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Cornell University in U.S. funds only.

Fees revised for grain inspection

WASHINGTON – The U.S Department of Agriculture is revising its rules for approving fees charged by state agencies and private firms authorized to provide official grain inspection and weighing services.

USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service approves fees charged by official agencies performing grain inspection and weighing. FGIS requires the agencies to provide information showing how fees are developed. The revised rules reflect more clearly FGIS' policy for approving fee schedules and gives definitions of "reasonable fees."

In addition, FGIS has determined not to reduce the 60-day advance notice required before federally-supervised agencies change their fees for performing weighing and inspection services. In October, 1984, FGIS proposed that official agencies notify it 30 days instead of 60 days in advance of a fee change. Official agencies, although not required to do so, are also expected to notify customers of a pending fee change. Most public comments received on this proposal, however, indicated that 30 days advance notice of a fee change was not sufficient.

Stephanie Carpenter earns Potter FFA beef honors

MILLPORT — Fifteen beef animals and 43 dairy cattle were shown in the 1985 4-H and FFA junior beef and dairy show, last week, at the Potter County fair at Millport.

Stephanie Carpenter, Shinglehouse, showed the Grand Champion female beef, Patches, a 7/8 Simmental. Stephanie's animal also won a blue first place ribbon in the Simmental class. Reserve grand champion, a senior yearling Angus, Trudy, was shown by Louise Crossley, Coudersport. Louise also took a first place in the senior yearling Angus class. Both girls raised their animals as 4-H projects.

Other first place female beef winners were Judy Erway, Genesee, an FFA member who took the summer yearling heifer class for Black Angus with Christi; Gina Spees, Shinglehouse, showed the first place and champion female Charolais-Holstein, Cinnamon.

Joel Kosa earned a first place in the medium weight class with Bubba Beefer, a Hereford. First place lightweight went to Nedra Matthews, Shinglehouse. The reserve grand champion steer was shown by Janet Matthews and was a Polled Hereford named Parmalee.

Beef showmanship awards in the senior division (15 and over) went to Janet Matthews, first; Judy Erway, second; and Jody Spees,third. In the intermediate division (ages 12-14), Louise Crossley was first; Stephanie Carpenter, second; and Joel Kosa, third. In the junior division Allen Cornell was first and Nedra Matthews, second. Janet Matthews was named master showman.

Beef fitting awards in the senior division were earned by Judy Erway, first; Janet Matthews, second; and Jody Spees, third. Intermediate awards went to Louise Crossley, Stephanie Carpenter and Gina Spees, while junior awards went to Alan Cornell and Nedra Matthews. Louise Crossley was named master fitter.

The two animals also earned Georgia a first place blue in the dam and daughter class. Karmen Tomb, Ulysses, took first place for a 5-year-old Ayrshire with Ash Avenue Roman's Julia.

Grand champion female Brown Swiss was Conover Hill Dona Gertrudis which also was the first place winner for a dry cow 3 years and over and senior champion female. It was shown by 4-H member Diane Prince, Shinglehouse. Diane also earned a first place blue ribbon in the dam and daughter class and showed the first place senior heifer calf. Her brother, Patrick, took a first place in intermediate yearling heifer.

Grand champion female Jersey was a senior 2-year-old shown by Kevin Kosa, Ulysses, Laureldon Minister Coleen. Kevin's FFA animal was also senior champion female and he also took a first place blue in the dam and daughter class.

Reserve grand champion female and junior champion was Jeremiah Kosa's 4-H animal, a senior heifer calf, EDKO Missy Yolanda Nippersink. Luke Crossley, Coudersport, took a blue ribbon in the junior heifer calf class with Paradise Aaron Anna April who was named reserve junior champion. Kevin Kosa's Minister Noble Maureen took first place in the intermediate heifer calf class. Luke Crossley also took a first place in the 3-year-old class with Laureldon Min Irene.

Showmanship awards in the senior division went to Don Thompson, first; Ken Smoker, second; and Dean Erway, third. In the intermediate division, Jeff Pirrung was first; John Angood, second; and Diane Prince, third, while the top three juniors were Jeremiah Kosa, Brandi Smoker and Diane Thompson.

Senior division fitting awards went to Don Gilliland, first; Ken Smoker, second and Don Thompson, third; intermediate division: Diane Prince, first; John Angood, second; and Gina Spees, third; and junior division: Jeremiah Kosa, first; Brandi Smoker, second; and Diane Thompson, third.

Jack Thomas was announcer and Roland Duperron was ringmaster, showing and fitting and Phil Torrey judged dairy type.

Winner of the calf awarded annually was Jack Thomas, Ulysses RD. The calf was donated by Allegen farms.

Clydesdales return to York Fair Sept. 10-14

YORK — The famous Budweiser Clydesdales will be returning to York this summer for parades and demonstrations Sept. 10-14 at the York Intrstate Fair.

Crowds of people, including hundreds of children, lined the streets of downtown York in late May to watch the team of eight draft horses make their way through town pulling the famous red Budweiser wagon.

The draft horses will begin their schedule at the York Fair on Tuesday, Sept. 10, when the stable opens at 10 a.m. The horses will be on display until dark.

On Wednesday, Sept. 11, the team will be hitched up at the stables beginning at 1 p.m., followed by a parade through the fairgrounds at 1:45 p.m.

The team will appear in front of the grandstand at the fairground's track beginning at 3 p.m. The performances will be repeated at 5:15 p.m., and on Saturday, Sept. 14 beginning at 10:30 a.m.

The Clydesdale breed of horses was originally bred for size, strength, and stamina along the banks of the River Clyde in Lanarkshire, Scotland.

The first Clydesdales were brought to America in the mid 1800s by Canadians of Scottish descent. Their popularity as a work horse peaked during the Civil War era and the years that followed, and today, these "gentle giants" are used primarily for breeding and for show.

To qualify for the world famous eight-horse hitch, a Clydesdale must stand at least six feet high at the shoulder, be a reddish brown gelding with a black mane and tail, and have a white blaze on the face and four white stockings. And because the team works before millions of adults and excited children each year, each horse must have a gentle temperament.

Each horse weighs about 2,000 pounds, and is fitted with horseshoes that are 20 inches long from end to end and weigh about five pounds each–about twice as long as the shoe worn by a riding horse. (A horse's hoof is made of a nerveless, hornlike substance similar to a fingernail. Shoeing a Clydesdale is no more painful to a horse than a manicure is to a person.)

On an average day, each hitch horse will consume 30 gallons of water, 25 to 30 quarts of feed, and 50 to 60 pounds of hay.

The Budweiser Clydesdales first appeared in 1933, when August A. Busch Jr. bought a team of draft horses for his father to celebrate the end of prohibition. The brewers immediately put the team to work pulling their beer wagons, and today, the Clydesdales are synonymous with Anheuser Busch and Budweiser.

Black and white Dalmations have been constant companions to the horses since the 1950s, originally serving as watchdogs over the horses and wagons along the delivery routes. Now, the dogs ride along in parades atop the red wagons.

The Clydesdale appearances are sponsored by Brewery Products Co. of York. The York Interstate Fair runs Sept. 6-14.

Signups begin for Elizabethtown Fair

ELIZABETHTOWN – There is still time to sign up for two of the most popular events at the Elizabethtown Fair–the garden tractor pulls and the arm wrestling contest.

The six-day Elizabethtown Fair–the first fair of the season in Lancaster County–opens Monday, Aug. 26 and continues through Saturday, Aug. 31 at the East High Street fairgrounds.

On Friday, Aug. 30, at 7 p.m. the Elizabethtown Area High School track will come alive for the garden tractor pulls, an annual event which usually packs the stands with spectators.

Contestants must register starting at 5:30 p.m. the day of the event. The entry fee is $5 per class per tractor. See the 1985 fair books for details and rules.

The fifth annual arm wrestling championships, conducted by the Elizabethtown Area Recreational Commission, will take place on Saturday, Aug. 31, at East High Elementary School (adjacent to the fairgrounds). Weigh-ins are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. that day, with the competition beginning at 2 p.m.

Referee Rick Levine will run the single elimination tournament with a consolation bracket. Levine holds over 30 arm wrestling honors, including the 1984 World Professional Light Heavyweight Arm Wrestling Champion title. He continues to referee as well as compete in many arm wrestling contests.

The championships are open to everyone, regardless of residency, sex or age. Any participant under 18 years of age, however, must have a parent's consent.

Five men's and two women's weight classes are planned for right-handers and two men's weight classes for lefties. One trophy will be awarded in each division. The entry fee is $5 per weight class if registered before August 29, and $6 if received August 30 and 31.

Registration forms may be obtained from the EARC and Elizabethtown Sporting Goods or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to EARC, 600 E. High St., Elizabethtown, PA, 17022. For more information, call 367-0355.

More contests than ever before await fairgoers. The Star Search Contest on Wednesday, Aug. 28, starting at 7 p.m. will judge performers in the junior division (6th-12th grade) and senior division (post-high school on). Top prizes of $125 (junior) and $200 (senior) are at stake.

A baby photo contest on Tuesday, Aug. 27, at 5 p.m.; children's showcase (for fifth grade and under) on Saturday, Aug. 31, at 1:30 p.m., and pet show on Saturday, Aug. 31, at 12:30 p.m. round out the entertainment.

To enter the talent contests, baby photo contest or pet show, send your name, address, phone number the contest you are entering (and which division), the pet's name and type of pet (if applicable), and any special equipment needed to: Michael Masters, Entertainment Director, 343 S. Market St., Elizabethtown, PA, 17022. Deadline is August 15.

(Star Search contestants must keep acts under 3½ minutes in length and no performer may be part of more than two separate acts.)

As usual, the fair also will feature all the traditional attractions: a lively midway, food and game stands, domestic exhibits, livestock shows, a baked goods sale, and arts and crafts auction.

The deadline for livestock entries is August 15. That's also the last day that organizations and businesses may reserve space for stands and exhibits. Commercial exhibits are being housed this year in a brand-new 40-by-80-foot building.

Fair books are now available at Brandt's Farm Supply, White Oak Mills (formerly Grubb Supply Co.), The General Store (formerly Moose's 5 & 10) and Messick Farm Equipment, all in the Elizabethtown area, and the Penn State Extension Office in Lancaster.

Montgomery County, MD plans fair events

GAITHERSBURG, MD – If you've never seen an antique Threshing Machine you've got to come to our demonstration this year at the 1985 Montgomery County Fair. At 4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 20 on the ballfield, George Smith will demonstrate his 1930's Threshing Machine.

To see Smith pitch the shocks of wheat onto the conveyer belt where three steel arms greedily grab the bundles pulling them inside where the shaft is separated from the wheat is really a fascinating sight.

The wheat tumbles out into a wagon while the straw is blown high into the sky. This is a demonstration for the senses; the sight, sound and smell fill the air in quite a spectacular show.

This machine is the ancestor to our modern-day combine. Before the threshing machine was invented by Cyrus McCormick at the turn of the century this process was done by hand.

Horse Pulling

Strength, training and handling are the winning factors at Montgomery County Fair's Horse Pulling Contest at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 20th on the ballfield.

One of the Fair's most popular events draws huge crowds year after year to cheer on these horses as they flex their powerful muscles to pull a pre-determined weight a distance of 27½ feet. Each team is given 3 trials to move the load the full distance.

Two classes will be entered for the Horse Pulling Contest: Light Weight pairs of horses must weigh under 3200 pounds; Heavy weight pairs of horses must weigh 3200 pounds or over.

Prize monies range from $175.00 for first place to $50.00 for 10th place. Competition, as always is expected to be heated.

Planning a farm shop

ITHACA, NY – All farmers need a shop for maintenance, repair, and constuction. But the extent of need varies with the size of the operation, the farmer's inclination to do mechanical work, timeliness of service work and maintenance, economics of one's own time versus hiring someone to do the job, and similar considerations.

An adequately equipped shop with space enough to do required jobs is safer and more efficient than cramped and cluttered facilities, according to Cornell University agricultural engineers.

Easy access to the main raod and to farm fields is a primary consideration, along with power, and parking and maneuvering space, say the authors of "Planning Farm Shops" (NRAE-16, $3), a recently published handbook available from Cornell Cooperative Extension

The publication covers building design for new constuction, as well as the desirable features of an existing shop building, and utilities such as heating, lighting, plumbing, and ventilation.

The 32-page, fully illustrated handbook shows how to figure space requirements for power tools and machinery, offering handy tips for hand tools and parts storage, and safety recommendations to avoid personal injury, fires, and similar accidents.

The handbook strongly recommends a little "homework" before deciding the location of major power tools and work space. The use of templates and grid paper helps group tools likely to be used on the same project, providing adequate space for them, and for finding ways to conserve space in limited facilities.

Copies of this publication are available by mail at $3 each from the Cornell Distribution Center, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, NY 14850. Make checks or money orders payable to Cornell University in U S funds only

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

Flemington Fair to open Aug. 27

FLEMINGTON, NJ — Preparations are underway in all quarters of the county for the 1985 Flemington Agricultural Fair, set to open Tuesday, Aug. 27 and run seven days, ending Labor Day.

4-H kids are fitting their animals for the many county and state 4-H competitions. Others, not in dairy, livestock, poultry clubs, are readying their project entries and club displays.

Dairy, sheep, beef and goat clubs have had their prep event...the county 4-H Achievement Show...on the fairgrounds last week. County competitions precede the state contests, yes, as a warm-up, but also as a qualifying event.

Among the state 4-H contests held annually at the Flemington Fair are the NJ State Baby Beef Show and Sale, the State Dairy Show, 4-H Blue Ribbon Lamb Show and Sale, the State Sheep Show, 4-H Youth Horse Shows, and the state 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Demonstration.

In addition there are a number of open livestock shows, notably an open Sheep Show and Polled Hereford and Angus Shows. These are open to exhibitors of any age, not just 4-H.

FARMERS' DAY

Farmers' Day activities are fair highlights each year. They include the NJ Farm Tractor Pull, the Modified Tractor Pull, and the Garden Tractor competition. These are events scheduled by the Farmers' Day Committee of the Hunterdon County Board of Agriculture. Bob Manners, East Amwell farmer, heads up the activities.

The farm tractor competition is an all-day event, set for Wednesday of fair week. About 80-90 tractors compete. They are all farmer-owned, farm-used tractors. Preparation begins early as farmers ready their best tractors, tune-ups and a variety of adjustments are made. The competition among farmers is keen. This is a good show to watch.

On the evening of Farmers' Day, the big modified tractors compete. There may be a few local entries, like Dave Daku and Greg Manners, but most come from out-of-state.

This is a spectator sport! It's loud and exciting.

GRANGERS READYING

Our grangers are preparing for the fair. They are out in the pumpkin patch and vegetable garden...eyeing developing specimens for use in the grange displays. Again, competition is keen among participating granges. There's a tremendous amount of work involved, and grangers go after the blue ribbons and prizes with determination.

In the Agricultural Building, along with the grange exhibits, are many other contests, field crops, vegetables, fruits, canned and baked goods, honey, and more.

The home-work is being done, preparations underway, for another great fair. Those involved in 4-H youth programs, the granges, the many farmers participating, invite you to join them at the fair.

Farm Credit had fewer loans, and more loans in trouble

McLEAN, VA. — Final year-end 1984 financial summaries of the banks and associations of the Farm Credit System (FCS) released this month show a drop in loan activity and an increase in credit risk.

Loans volume that is performing satisfactorily continues to dominate the loan portfolios of System institutions: 92.4 percent of the Federal Land Bank (FLB) loans, 85.8 percent of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank (FICB) loans, 88.6 percent of Production Credit Association (PCA) loans, and 94.0 percent of the Banks for Cooperatives (BC) loans.

However, the volume of nonperforming loans in both the FLB and FICB/PCA systems is large enough to create major financial pressures. Nonperforming loans include nonaccrual loans, restructured loans, and other high risk accounts such as those 90-days past due and loans requiring more than normal servicing.

These and other data are contained in a consolidated report of yearend 1984 reports of condition and performance provided by all of the Farm Credit Banks and associations under new reporting requirements of the Farm Credit Administration.

A copy of the entire report containing financial data on the Farm Credit Banks and associations in each of the 12 Farm Credit Districts and the Central Bank for Cooperatives is available by writing the Farm Credit Administration at the following address: Congressional & Public Affairs, Farm Credit Administration, 1501 Farm Credit Drive, McLean, VA 22102-5090.

Ag scholarships to be awarded

ALLENTOWN — The Lehigh County Agricultural Society will again award three $100-memorial scholarships to three persons selected from the 4-H and FFA.

The presentations, made by Richard E. Miller, secretary of the society, will take place at 7 p.m., Wednesday, August 28 prior to the Allentown Fair's Pennsylvania Dutch Night show at the Farmerama Theater on the fairgrounds.

The scholarships are again in the names of deceased fair directors Frank H. Krause, Rowellien P. Mohr and Charles J. Rutz. The scholarships were first awarded last year and fair officials said it would be an annual program.

"Members of the families of the three honorees were on hand last year and seemed very moved by the presentations," Miller reported.

PARIS, TX — Agpro, Inc. announces development of a Manure Flush Cleanup System designed specifically for existing operations.

A company spokesman states "Our biggest problems placing manure flush cleanup systems in existing facilities are where to locate storage reservoirs and how to run the water piping to all the necessary points without breaking up extensive amounts of concrete. Both of these problems are solved with a unique overhead piping system with inverted flush valves developed by the company. With this system, storage reservoirs are conveniently located outside the building complex. In some cases, it is even possible to use existing vertical silos that are no longer in use as water flush reservoirs for the system. With these new concepts and components, you may be able to incorporate flush cleaning in all or part of your existing facilities after all."

Agpro also manufactures slurry pumps, field distribution sprinklers, solids separators, slurry collection ditch covers, and other components needed for complete waste management systems.

Farm Talk

by

Jerry Webb

Perils of Earnest Effort

He's a typical American farmer and he's in financial trouble. We'll call him Earnest Effort because that describes what he's been doing for a lot of years with relatively good success. Up until about 1980 he was the role model for a lot of young farmers. But now he's in trouble and there is some question whether he'll be able to save the family farm.

Stories about Earnest and his troubled counterparts scattered about agricultural America fill the pages of farm magazines. These aren't young shoestring farmers trying to grab the next rung of the ladder. They are mature, conservative, solid farmers. At least they were solid. Now many of them are facing the prospect of bankruptcy or serious curtailment in their farming operations.

Like Earnest these farmers were doing pretty well. They owned some land, rented some more, owned good equipment, sent their children to college and were considered pillars of the community. And then something happened. Earnest is still trying to figure it out. One year he could buy anything he wanted. The bank would literally stuff his pockets with money when he stopped by. He was an important guy in a rural community that depended on farming for its existence. And a year or two later, he was persona non grata to almost everyone in town - a farmer who couldn't pay his bills. He was in danger of losing the family farm, land that had been in the Effort family for many generations.

What went wrong? What happened to turn agriculture around in such a short period of time? What could Earnest Effort have done differently and what should the banker, the machinery dealer, the county agent, even the minister have told him that would have avoided this crisis?

A recent issue of Farm Journal looks at one of these failing farmer situations and does about the best job I have seen of putting a finger on the pulse. John Marten, the magazine's economics writer looked at one of these situations in considerable detail and did an outstanding job of pinpointing the problem and perhaps even offering some hope.

In Marten's example, the farmer owned 220 acres of land and purchased an additional 80 in 1979 to make room for a son due back from college. At that point, his net worth was about half a million dollars with a debt of only $150 thousand. A debt to asset ratio of about 30 percent. In 1979 that was a solid farmer - tilling 300 acres of his own land, renting another 300. A father-son team with enough equipment, a moderate livestock operation and a cash flow that fitted the situation.

But then over the next 4 or 5 years, things changed. Things the farmer was powerless to do much about. Land and machinery values fell 25 to 40 percent. Interest charges rose 30 percent and other farm costs rose 22 percent. The farmer in the Farm Journal example did all that he could to adjust. He cut family living expenses, put off buying machinery, took advantage of government programs that were available, but still he lost ground.

According to Marten this recently successful farmer needs a big miracle to stay in business. And since there are no big miracles in agriculture, Marten has suggested that this farmer sell the 80 acres that he bought in 1979 with lease-back arrangements so he can keep on farming that land. Maybe there could also be some minor miracles–for instance, 2 percent lower interest rates would save the farmer a substantial amount. Two percent higher yields would do a lot for sagging revenues. Even a little better commodity prices would help.

Marten suggests that every farmer who has any thought of staying in business over the next few years sit down with paper and pencil and take a hard look at the numbers. He's developed a combination of balance sheet, income statement and cash flow that condenses into 20 lines some really vital information. Any farmer can use it to chart progress or lack it.

Marten also has some suggestions for farmers like Earnest Effort who are working hard doing all the right things and still losing money. First off he says farmers have got to recognize the situation. The good old days of the 1970s are gone. And in his words "You can't borrow yourself rich. Debt is the problem not the solution." He also says a farmer's in trouble if his debts exceed 40 percent of his assets. And he thinks there is still some belt tightening that can and must be done. Take a hard look at the equipment inventory to see if it's paying its way. He wonders if a combine is worth the annual cost of approximately $10,000. And what about a grain truck that's worth $30,000 and is used only a few weeks a year. He also suggests selling assets that are least productive and in most cases that means land.

Those suggestions remind me of a farmer I know who sold out recently. From a large inventory of farm equipment, he held back one decent, fairly old tractor. It probably wouldn't have brought a $1,000 at the auction. And then as the warm winds of Spring blew gently across Delmarva and the urge to farm strengthened he bought a no-till planter, rented some ground and started farming again. No doubt, he's planning on custom combining and hauling and custom fertilizer and chemical applications. It won't surprise me if he has a better year in 1985 than he had last year when he owned a couple of hundred thousand dollars worth of farm machinery.

These are strange times in agriculture and they call for drastic action. The stereotyped good farmers of the 1970s could well be out of agriculture during this decade unless they're willing to change.

Case adds features for fruit, vegetable growers

RACINE, WI – Several improvements have been made to the Case International general purpose tractor line, including addition of features designed to meet specific neèds of vegetable and fruit growers.

The general purpose line includes 85 Series tractor Models 385, 485, 585, 885 and 94 Series tractor Models 1394, 1494, and 1594.

The 94 Series general purpose line now consists of models 1394, 1494 and 1594, rated at 65, 75 and 85 manufacturer's rated PTO horsepower respectively (48, 55 and 63kW). All are equipped with hard working four-cylinder diesel engines.

These durable tractors are available with two-wheel-drive or optional mechanical front drive (MFD) with on-the-go engagement and limited slip differentials that increase traction and pulling power. The new MFD axle is adjustable between 60 and 88 inches for row crop applications. The turning radius is improved from earlier 94 Series models.

The 1394 and 1494 feature an optional synchromesh 15-speed creeper transmission designed for operations where steady, slow speeds are required, such as in vegetables, orchards and vineyards. The standard transmission is a 12-speed with on-the-go synchronized shifting between second and third gears in each of four ranges. Another transmission option is a 12-speed power shift version allowing four on-the-go smooth shifts in each of three ranges. The 12-speed transmissions have four reverse speeds.

New features are also incorporated in the Model 1394 Four-Wheel-Drive Special. The new standard 15-speed creeper transmission has a bottom planting speed of seven feet per minute at 700 engine RPM. A new front axle provides for greater load capacity and requires less steering effort. The axle also yields better tracking of front and back wheels, an important feature for accurate operation in rows or beds. An air conditioned cab is optional. Models 1394, 1494 and 1594 feature new MFD axle designs providing heavier axle capacity, improved turning radius and less steerng effort.

All three 94 Series general purpose models will be available with an optional fold-over ROPS (roll over protection system) that is mounted on the rear axle. A simple pin disengagement allows an opeator fold the ROPS for maneuvering near low hanging branches or in low clearance buildings.

The Model 1394 Low Profile Special, adapted for orchards, groves and vineyards, has a downswept horizontal muffler system, an under-hood air cleaner, adjustable fenders and a rduced height orchard front axle.

A tandem pump hydraulic system provides maximum capacity at all remote outlets.

The 94 series tractors feature superior drawbar and hitch power performance. Heavy-duty box-section main frames and heavy rear axles with outboard reductions distribute weight where needed to maximize traction. Independent 540/1000 rpm PTO is standard.

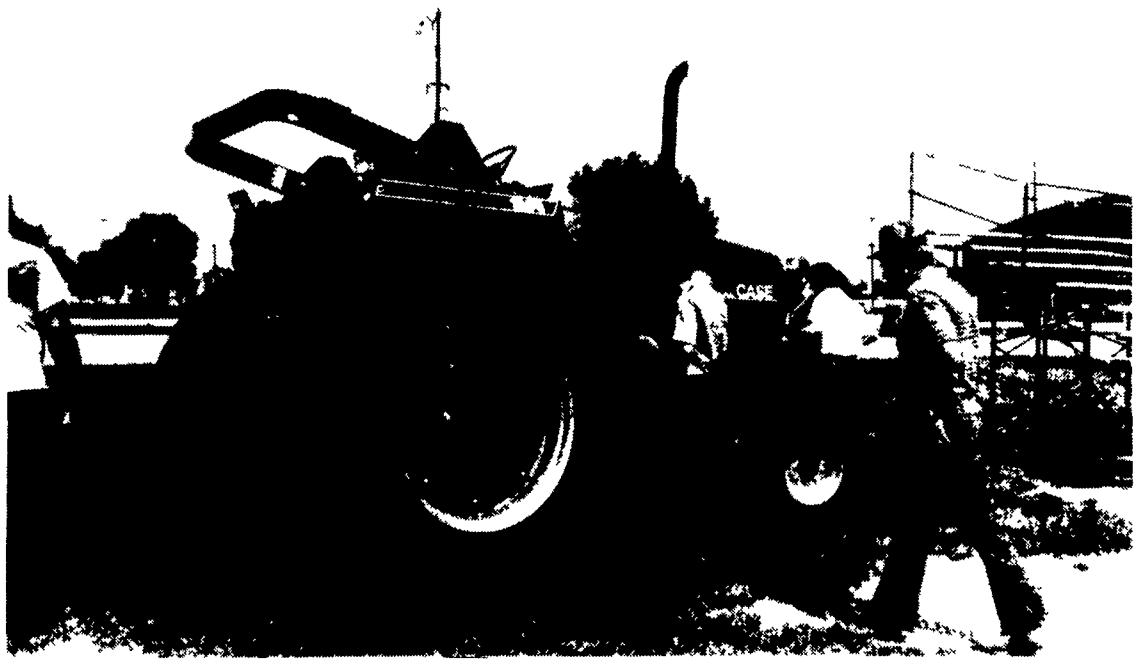
Beginning this fall, the former International Harvester 85 Series general purpose line incorporates the new Case International look, including the Case-design front grille. This line includes Models 385, 485, 585, 685 and 885, which range from 35 to 72 PTO horsepower (26 to 54kW).

A variety of configurations are available, including models designed for row crops, low profile oprations and general farming work. Models 885, 685 and 585 are available with MFD options.

The series features an independent PT, smooth shifting synchronized 8-speed transmissions, planetary final drives for smooth power delivery and excellent reliability, large capacity hydraulics and easy-to-use three-lever hitch control. Two power shift 16-speed transmissions are available on Models 885 and 685.

The most comprehensive extended warranty coverage in the industry is available on all ne Case International tractors. The Tailored Owner Protection System (TOPS) is optional coverage that supplements the basic warranty with 16 different coverage plans that can be tailored to meet the customer's specific needs. TOPS is designed to supplement the basic Case 12-month or 1500-hour (whichever comes first) warranty.

Dennis Hann explains the basics of the new 1600 Series combines as a meeting of Case's dealers last week at the York Fairgrounds. Dealers from throughout the Northeast attended the conference.



Several dealers get a closer look at a new Case tractor.

How to stop white mold in beans

RAHWAY, NJ — White mold may be a smaller problem for dry bean growers this year, at least for growers who take advantage of a new control option. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has registered the use of MERTECT® 340-F for control of white mold. This is one of several new label claims for MERTECT, a product of MSD AGVET, a division of Merck & Co., Inc.

According to plant pathologists, white mold can cause severe yield and quality losses to dry beans each year. Reduced seed size and discoloration of beans resulting from white mold can lower the quality and grade of beans.

"This can translate into as much as $3 per hundredweight dockage for growers, in addition to yield losses," reports Greg Varner, research director of the Michigan Dry Bean Research Board.

The first sign of white mold is water-soaked spots on infected leaves, stems, branches and pods. These spots enlarge into rotten masses of tissue covered with a white fungal growth. Infected stems appear bleached and dry. Areas above the infection point wilt and die. Hard, black, irregularly-shaped structures (sclerotia) form in the infected part. These structures fall to the soil during harvest and germinate the next season, re-infesting the field.

Because a white mold epidemic cannot be stopped once it has developed, the key to successful disease management is prevention. A timely fungicide application can help provide this protection when white mold disease is threatening.

The following guidelines can be used to determine whether a fungicide should be applied. Varner recommends that a grower apply a fungicide if one or more of the following conditions exists: a) there is a field history of white mold disease (sclerotia can survive for over 10 years); b) the field has been wet two weeks prior to bloom; c) lush, growthy beans have developed a full canopy over the rows; d) wet weather is forecast.

Under the new label, MERTECT may be applied at 10 percent bloom and once again at peak bloom approximately 10 to 15 days later, at a rate of 16 to 32 ounces per acre, per application. Because white mold affects the plant at blossom, adherence to these guidelines will maximize effectiveness of the treatment. Good coverage of the plant is important.

"Ground application using three nozzles per row is the most effective way to provide good coverage," Varner states. This method helps distribute the fungicide on the bottom third of the bean plants. Since the highest yield reductions result from an infestation in this area, it is critical that this part of the plant be protected.

In addition to fungicide applications, growers may take other steps to minimize losses to white mold. Planting certified seed of recommended bush or upright varieties in field that have a history of white mold problems, can help prevent white mold. White mold infestation in a field may be reduced by rotating to non-host crops such as sugarbeets, corn sorghum, barley or other small grains, for at least three years. Excessive moisture is one of the major contributors to development of white mold. Therefore, efforts should be made to minimize excess moisture in the field.

Observe recommended plant populations and row widths to help keep plant and soil surfaces dry after irrigation. Irrigation schedules should be closely regulated to prevent the soil surface from remaining moist for long periods. Avoid using excess nitrogen to help prevent lush growth.

Given the proper conditions, white mold could strike severely this season. However, growers who closely manage their crop and take appropriate preventive measures can reduce losses to this disease.

Scouts to replant elms nationwide

HARRISVILLE, N.H. – Remember "Johnny Appleseed"? Following the same tradition, "Johnny Elmseeds" in Boy Scout uniforms will soon be planting American Liberty Elms around the country in a program to replace the stately giants felled by Dutch elm disease.

Elm Research Institute has been growing thousands of American elms resistant to the disease, which has killed millions of elms that once offered shade and beauty to countless communities.

The non-profit organization has joined hands with Boy Scouts of America to help in its "Johnny Elmseed" program to protect mature elms and spread the new strain of trees, much as the legendary "Johnny Appleseed" carried apple trees around the country.

National scouting officials decided the elm program is an excellent opportunity for scouts working toward the Eagle rank to fulfill their service project requirement.

Scouts who choose the project will survey their communities to find elms that need to be replaced or mature elms which can be treated with an elm fungicide that's 98 percent effective in warding off the disease in healthy trees.

Scouts will ask town officials, corporations and private elm owners to buy a new tree or the fungicide at a cost of $25, said John P. Hansel, Director at the Institute's Harrisville, NH headquarters.

When you purchase a new tree or fungicide to treat an older elm, another tree is donated in your name to the scout's troop nursery. As those trees reach a height of eigh to 10 feet, after two to three years, they will be replanted in a public place with the donor tag still affixed to it.

When you buy a tree from your local scout, two are being planted in your town. In addition, for every 10 trees sent to the scout nursery, the institute plans to donate a six-foot elm for immediate street planting.

To reserve your American Liberty Elm, contact your local Boy Scout Council. The name and telephone number is listed in the white pages of your book, under "Community Services," or call, toll-free, 1-800-FOR-ELMS.

Penn Ag taps Rep. Wright

EPHRATA – Rep. David R. Wright, Majority Policy Chairman in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives will be speaking at the PennAg Industries Association's 107th annual convention.

Wright represents the 63rd Legislative District that includes all of Clarion County and part of Armstrong County. Until the recent reapportionment his was the only District in the state to include parts of four counties.

He was the first Democrat in more than fifty years to be elected from his District and the first Democrat in history to be elected to four terms. He is also the first person to be elected to a leadership position from Clarion County since 1844.

Prior to being elected to House leadership, Wright was an active member of several standing committees including appropriations, education, agriculture, and rural affairs. He continues to serve on the Executive Board of the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency and as Treasurer of the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee, the joint House-Senate "watchdog" committee.

Wright, widely known as a speaker to business, professional, and educational groups, earned a Ph.D. in Communication from Ohio University, and M.A. in Speech and a Bachelor of Journalism from the University of Missouri, and an A.A. from Southwest Baptist College. He has taught at the University of Missouri, Belmont College, Ohio University, and Clarion State College. He writes a weekly column, "A WRIGHT WORD" and produces a weekly radio program.

Crawford Holstein Club holds annual picnic

MEADVILLE – The Crawford County Holstein Club held its annual picnic recently at Black Pine Farm, home of Richard Black and family, Saegertown. More than 130 Holstein breeders and their families attended the event.

Jeff Raney, club president, introduced the host family and county commissioner Ivan Rose. Linda Field, from the Crawford County Dairy Princess Committee, introduced Wendy Proper, Crawford County alternate dairy princess.

In a judging contest following the meal, Richard Curtis acted as official judge.

Junior Holstein club activities were coordinated by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dickey. Members of the planning committee for the annual picnic were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Black, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black, Mr. and Mrs. William Black, and Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Mitchell.

Ag engineers to meet

BALTIMORE – The North Atlantic Region of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers will hold its annual meeting Aug. 11-14, at the Baltimore campus of the University of Maryland.

The theme of the meeting is "Production, Stewardship, and Society." It will feature presentations by prominent spokespersons from American agriculture on such topics as the future of agriculture and our society, production agriculture, stewardship and profitability in agriculture, and the social interest in agricultural land.

The four-day meeting will also include a number of technical sessions for agricultural engineers.

* Dr. Frank L. Bentz Jr., retired vice president for agricultural affairs, The University of Maryland;
* Ben J. Lamp, business planning manager for Ford Tractor Operations, Ford Motor Company;
* Norman Berg, former chief of the Soil Conservation Service;
* Pierre Crosson, senior fellow with Resources For The Future.

Another invited guest speaker included John Block, U.S. secretary of agriculture. Officials for the meeting were still waiting for confirmation of Secretary Block's attendance on Friday, July 26.

Technical sessions for the engineers will focus on:

* Soil and Water--Non-Point Pollution and the Chesapeake Bay;
* Structures and Environment–Improving Greenhouse Facilities;
* Food Engineering;
* Power and Machinery; and,
* Microcomputer Software.

EPA approves MERTECT for glume blotch control

RAHWAY, N.J. — Wheat growers who find themselves in a match against Septoria glume blotch now have another option to help ensure that they minimize losses to this fungal disease.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved the use of MERTECT® 350-F to reduce the severity of glume blotch. The new label lengthens the list of fungal diseases controlled by MERTECT, a product of MSD AGVET, a division of Merck & Co., Inc.

According to plant pathologists, the use of fungicides and other disease management techniques has become increasingly important, due to the recent trend toward high-yield production practices. Higher fertilization rates, reduced tillage and the use of higher-yielding varieties have increased the likelihood of glume blotch and other diseases.

Glume blotch steals profits from growers by reducing wheat yields, test weight and quality. Experts estimate that although yield losses vary from region to region, losses can run up to 25 percent of potential yield per year. In addition, "Glume blotch can cost the grower about 20 to 30 cents a bushel by reducing test weight even by as little as five percent," states Barry Cunfer, plant pathologist at the University of Georgia.

"Whether wheat is intended to be used for feed grain or for baking, maintaining a high test weight is critical for the grower," Cunfer stresses. A grower has a marketing advantage if test weight is high because this indicates a higher quality grain, he points out. Glume blotch dimishes the opportunity to achieve that marketing advantage.

The glume blotch fungus thrives during warm, wet springs and is most likely to develop when the temperature is between 70°F and the low eighties. Splashing rain and wind spread the fungus spores in the field (dry weather limites infection).

The fungus initially infects the lower leaves of a plant and appears as lesions that are light yellow with black spots. As the wheat plant grows, the fungus moves to the higher leaves and the head of the plant appearing as small, irregular gray-brown spots which enlarge and turn chocolate-brown. The disease usually affects the top third of the glumes. Many young tillers die and those that survive produce small heads with shrivelled kernels. The shrivelled grain is lost with the chaff at harvest.

A grower may take several steps to help reduce the threat of glume blotch, according to Cunfer and Barry Jacobsen, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois in Urbana. Crop rotation and certified disease-free seed will reduce the risk of glume blotch.

The timely application of a tungicide such as MERTECT can also help protect the crop. Under the new label, MERTECT may be applied at 8 to 12 fluid ounces per acre per application. Applications must be timed in order to protect the head during the early growth stages. The first application should be made at growth stage eight, when the flag leaf first emerges. The second application should be made at growth stage 10.1 (10 to 14 days later) when the first spikelets are just beginning to emerge. No more than two foliar applications should be make in any one season.

MERTECT can also be applied in combination with another product such as Bayleton, to control rust or powdery mildew.

Glume blotch often attacks in conjunction with a host of other diseases, such as leaf blotch, leaf rust, powdery mildew or tan spot. Wherever proper conditions exist glume blotch can strike and severely reduce yields.

Because each situation is unique, growers should make a careful evaluation of the level of disease threat and the yield potential of their crop when determining the need to treat with a fungicide. In general, the following factors may indicate the need for fungicide treatment for glume blotch: yield potential greater than 40 bushels per acre; higher than normal nitrogen fertilization rates; rain prior to the flag leaf stage; a history of glume blotch or the planting of highly susceptible varieties (high yielding and dwarf). Jacobsen and Cunfer advise growers to contact an extension specialist or crop consultant to help evaluate disease levels.

Pennwalt Corp. promotes fuller

Philadelphia, PA — Pennwalt Corporation has promoted Fred D. Fuller to vice president of its Agrichemicals Division. The division manufactures and markets worldwide a broad line of pre- and post-harvest pesticides and computerized electronic sizing and sorting equipment for fresh fruit and vegetable packng houses.

Fuller began his career with Pennwalt in 1975 as a Hospital Sales Representative for the Pharmaceutical Division. He then served as coordinator of sales development and was promoted to district manager, Rx Division.

Fuller joined the International branch of the Pharmaceutical Division in 1979 where he held positions as managing director of Pennwalt Ireland as well as general manager of Pennwalt's pharmaceutical operations in Mexico City.

In 1982 Fuller served briefly as marketing director of the International Division and then joined the Agchem Division as national sales manager.

He was promoted to assistant general manager and most recently, general manager of the Agchem Division.

In his new capacity as vice president of the Agrichemicals Division, he will be responsible for the operations of Agchem-U.S.A. and Latin America and Decco-Tiltbelt. Fuller will continue to manage these divisions from his office in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Controlling off-types in sorghum fields

DEKALB, IL — Tall off-type sorghums may soon start appearing in grain sorghum field, especially where rainfall has been abundant. These volunteers and outcrosses can create plant competition and cause harvest losses. With proper identification and control, however, these undesirable plants do not need to get out of hand.

Traditionally, sorghum off-types in the field have been blamed on the sorghum seed industry. Grain sorghum seed is one source of off-types, but the frequency is very low. The seed industry conducts growouts in winter growing areas, allowing an exact count of off-types in every seed lot. Lots found to exceed company standards are discarded.

Many precautions are taken by the seed industy these outcrosses from occurring. Companies develop large isolation blocks of land that are completely cleared of unwanted sorghum types. Seed is produced within these isolation blocks. Male rows are often split-planted to provide adequate pollen at the right time for female rows. Extra male pollinator rows are used within production fields and on borders in an effort to provide more than enough of the pollen the production field needs. adjoining fields of any crop are constantly rogued of unwanted sorghum types. All this is done in an effort to produce hybrid grain sorghum seed that is as pure as possible.

Most fields that display heavy infestations of sorghum off-types are the result of contamination from sources other than the seed. Wildlife, particularly migratory birds, often cause "sudden" infestations of volunteer sorghum types.

Domestic livestock or farm machinery may transport unwanted seed from field to field. Flood waters are probably the most common mode of transport, resulting in some very heavy infestations springing up in low-lying fields.

It is important to initiate control on infestations as soon as they are detected. There are several forms of sorghum off-types and all are very closely related to grain sorghum, making herbicide control difficult. One important key to control is recognizing the different off-types in fields and utilizing management practices that will best control them.

Mutants represent the least problem. These are tall sorghums with the same head type as the grain sorghum growing in the field. Mutants are unattractive but are of little concern since they do not offer any abnormal volunteer problem.

Forage types often have wide leaves and tall seed heads that shatter easily once mature. Shattercane and shattercane outcrosses fit in this category, which may reinfest from seed each year. Growers should rogue any fields infested with these types, carrying seed heads from the field.

Roundup® in a wipe applicator or recirculating sprayer will help control these types if application is thorough and is made before heads appear. Growers should not deep plow after infestations, keeping seeds on top where soil-applied herbicides can work on volunteers.

Grassy types develop tillers, thin leaves and open heads. This classification includes sudangrasses and johnsongrasses as well as outcrosses from either. Rogueing for these plants will rid the field of the seed. However, established johnsongrasses has a rhizome system which will generate plants each year. Wiping or spraying Roundup® on johnsongrass when it is actively growing has offered the best control of this weed and its rhizomes.

Johnsongrass crossed with grain sorghum is easier to control than johnsongrass itself. The hybridization that occurs when these two types cross creates a plant that looks like johnsongrass but produces very little viable seed. The rhizomes are also short and weak. A light disking in the fall will normally cause these rhizome systems to winter kill.

USDA to end market order for domestic hops

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced it will terminate Marketing Order No. 991 on Dec. 31, thus ending the regulations governing the marketing of domestically produced hops on that date. The marketing order has been in effect since 1966.

James C. Handley, Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the order has failed to implement and even has obstructed the purposes of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended.

The decision to terminate the order was reached after analysis of the industry's problems and review of the record of a public hearing held to consider amendments to the order.

The industry is currently operating under regulatory provisions of the marketing order that were approved in May 1984, and are effective through July 31, 1985.

To avoid undue disruption in the marketing of hops through the end of the 1985 calendar year, Handley said that regulations recommended by the Hop Administrative Committee will be effective for the period from Aug. 13 through Dec 1.

THE HIGHEST CAPACITY SQUARE BALERS IN THE WORLD.

No matter how many fields you have to bale Vicon's new square balers offer a wide selection of the highest capacity square balers in the world.

A combination auger feeder fork moves the crop evenly into the full width of the bale chamber. So you get consistent bales of even density, time after time.

And because Vicon engineers have reduced moving parts and chain drives to a minimum, you get reliable, trouble free performance from your square baler.

Join the Vicon revolution

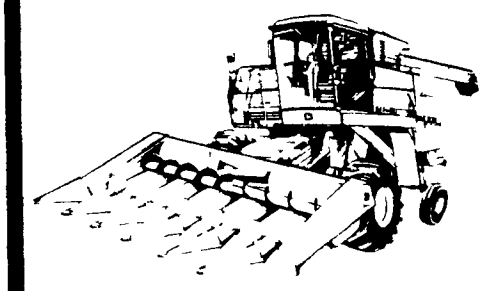
AUTOMATIC LEVELING



You don't need to slow down to prevent crop loss with a SideHill 6620 Titan II

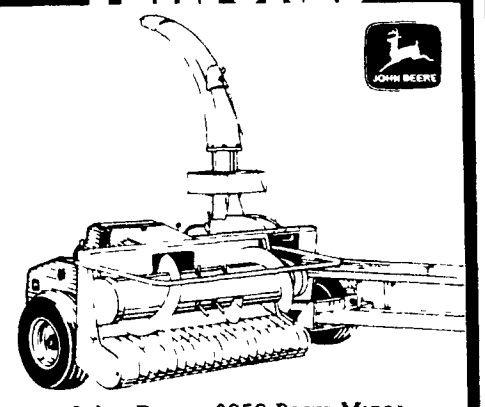
Maintain speed. Maintain efficient crop gathering. Maintain efficient separation as possible with the unique Titan II, the most productive sidehill combine that John Deere has ever made. Leveling is automatic or speed up to harden the body separator operates on the level.

The Harvest Flo cleaning system incorporates a longer faster shatter and sieve for more aggressive crop movement and a larger cleaning shoe area. And an engine powered reverser let you back out plugs in the feeder house or header with engine power.

Stop by and see us today. We'll give you a the facts on the SideHill 6620 Titan II Combine. And we'll give it to you on the level.

JOHN DEERE

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES



John Deere 3950 Powr-Mizer Forage Harvester lets you get all the yield from your field

The John Deere 3950 Powr-Mizer forage harvester has the exclusive features you need to get more of your crop into the wagon and silo.

The Iron Gard metal detector helps protect your cutterhead and livestock from ingesting harmful metal. And the famous segmented knife Duro Drum cutterhead provides clean, uniform cut. Short, sod, or heavy

FEEDING SYSTEMS

The main gathering auger is heavy duty 16" diameter, with 5/16" flighting mounted on a 4" tube. The auger has adjustable front and rear 14 gau. galvanized shields, for maximum capacity. The auger is powered by a 60 lb. gearbox which brings forage to the center for the delivery chain.
To deliver the high volume of forage from the sweep auger to the inside chute, a heavy duty hook chain with hardened cutters is used to convey the forage. The stainless steel top shield is easily removed to adjust the chain if needed. The plate and V pipe keep the delivery chain positioned over the inside chute in the forage.

MacCauleys trade places in Chester Co. 4-H Lamb Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEWTOWN SQUARE — Since 1979 the Chester County Market Lamb Show has been a MacCauley affair. This year, though, there was a new twist.

After five straight years of exhibiting the the show's grand champion lamb, Donna MacCauley was unseated by big sister Nancy.

Showing a 108-pound purebred Suffolk wether named Spot, Nancy MacCauley took top honors in the show held in conjunction with the Goshen Country Fair at the Goshen Fairgrounds.

A 10-year veteran of the 4-H program, the Octoraro High School graduate notes that 1985 may well be her last year of 4-H competition. Though she has one more year of eligibility, entry into the nursing program at Lancaster General Hospital later this month may put an end to her 4-H showring career.

Younger sister Donna will probably have to look for competition elsewhere when she attempts to add to her long string of grand champion honors in next year's show.

Donna and Nancy are the daughters of Joan and Bill MacCauley of Atglen, a family noted for turning out blue-ribbon Suffolk sheep on their Breezeview Farm.

Ira Hicks of Goshenview Farms, Paoli, offered a bid of $1.95 for Donna MacCauley's reserve champion.

Auctioneer Ken Brubaker of Brubaker Livestock Marketing, West Chester, was pleased to announce a sale average of $1.62, with champions, and $1.47 not counting the show's top two animals. "This is probably the highest average of any county that I'm aware of," Brubaker said at the sale's conclusion.

Following are market lamb show results, as well as results from the 4-H steer and breeding cattle shows held Aug.3.

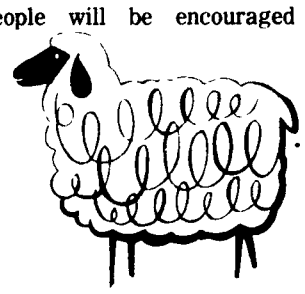
KILE's new carcass event

Recent marketings of beef cattle, particularly slaughter steers and heifers, have indicated that fat is definitely "out" and that lean beef is a most desirable product for today's consumer. Even when realizing that some fat, especially intramuscular, or marbling, is desirable and needed to score a higher quality grade, we must be aware that excessive fat is costly to the producer, packer, and retailer under today's market conditions.

Many of our local cattle feeders were caught up in the declining beef market and held cattle even longer, hoping for a better selling price, but compounding the overfed beef supply. Feeding cattle is a complex, competitive business for both the farmer/feeder and the 4-H/FFA member. We would like to produce a choice steer with a minimum amount of finish in a short number of days to realize maximum profits, but the market price at our feeding endpoint is not always favorable.

Perhaps we can learn more about our feedlot cattle in a competitive event that allows us to make carcass estimates of live feedlot steers before slaughter and then to measure the actual carcass traits on the rail. This comparison can help us in determining a more ideal time to send cattle to the marketplace.

The 1985 Keystone at Harrisburg will include such an event for all interested feeders. Pens of three steers will be on exhibit from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10. Exhibitors and other interested people will be encouraged to submit live animal evaluations on each pen of steers. Steers will not be fitted but fresh out of the feedlot.



Carcass placing will be determined by carcass quality and yield grade with meat values current at the time of the show. The only requirement is that each carcass must have a minimum weight of 625 lbs.

This event will enable cattle feeders, breeders and others a chance to "eyeball" live cattle and have their estimates checked at slaughter. Each person who completes and turns in an evaluation card will be sent the complete slaughter results. I'm hoping many of you will give this serious consideration.

The Extension Service is an affirmative action equal opportunity educational institution.

Oklahoma youth leads Polled Hereford juniors

INDIANAPOLIS, IN — Honors for outstanding achievements in the Polled Hereford industry were passed out to youth from more than 35 states and Canada at the week-long 12th Junior National Polled Hereford Heifer Show and Forum here. The highlight of the week's events was a two-day heifer show, but activities for the entire family included educational sessions, entertainment and tours.

Placed at the top of the roster for the heifer show was 14-year-old Matt Sims of Elgin, Okla. Sims earned the reserve champion title last year at the Des Moines' Junior National and this year he moved up with Sara 12P 474S. She marched to the victory circle from the Division III championship. Sims continued his winnings by collecting the premier breeder and exhibitor awards. This was the first time a junior received both awards at the Junior National.

Capturing the champion bred-and-owned heifer title was Matt King of Fort Payne, Ala. Timberline Vindy 27S also collected the Division II championship for King. The purple banner in the bred-and-owned cow-calf competition went to to last year's reserve champion cow-calf breeder Jason Kuhlmann, North Platte, Neb. Silver Belle and her bull calf by sterling nabbed the top title.

The inidividual and team showmanship contests were stiff with 14 states entered in the team competition and more than 100 individuals vying for the peewee, junior and senior awards. Charlie Boyd II, Mays Lick, Ky., earned the champion senior showman title. Champion honors in the junior division went to Fred Wingert, Ottawa,Kan., and in the peewee category Ben Hadden of Gibson, Ga., earned the champion title. Matt Sims claimed the reserve senior division championship.

Active in the planning and carrying out of the week's activities was the National Junior Polled Hereford Council. The Council is composed of 12 representatives of the 37 state junior Polled Hereford associations. Their new officers elected during the week are Chairman Tim Roberts, Arcadia, Okla.; Vice Chairman Sam McGill Jr., Washington, Ga.; Secretary Melanne Taft, Springfield, Ill.; and Reporter Suzanne Boyd, Mays Lick, Ky.

The 12th Junior National marked the fifth year for the Beef Bowl contest where youth exhibit their knowledge of the cattle and Polled Hereford industries. The final round between the Wisconsin and Missouri teams was a close race to the final buzzer with the Wisconsin team winning the bout by one point

In the senior division of the National speech contest, Jeanie Sorrells of Bell Buckle, Tenn., was named champion. The reserve senior winner was Richard Poss of Harlem, Ga. Matt Sims collected the champion junior award with the reserve junior champion honors going to Cindy Sorrells of Bell Buckle, Tenn.

The Tennessee Junior Polled Hereford Association exhibited the winning scrapbook in this year's competition. Missouri juniors claimed the overall Sweepstakes Award for the third consecutive year. The Sweepstakes Award goes to the state junior association with the best overall performance during the week's competitions.

The keynote speaker at the mid-week Youth Forum was Sam Washburn of Fowler, Ind. The past president of the National Cattlemen's Association encouraged the youth to take a more active role in the future of the beef cattle industry.

Mini-workshops addressed topics of beef nutrition by Dr. Ron Lemenager of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., and performance testing and the American Polled Hereford Association Guide Lines Program by Dr. Jim Gibb, APHA director of education of research. A fun rodeo and junior dance rounded out the week's events.

Follifoot Farm heifer wins Polled Hereford honors

WEEDSPORT, NY – The top honors were divided at the recent Eighth Snnual Empire Classic Show at the Cayuga County Fairgrounds.

Twenty-eight Polled Hereford breeders exhibited 65 head in the 1985 breed show which is annually sponsored by the Empire Polled Hereford Association. Carl McCullough, manager of Rosebank Angus Farm of Germantown judged the show and commented favorably on the quality of the animals exhibited, especially those in the large junior yearling heifer classes.

A highlight of the Classis Show was the second annual Futurity competition. A Follifoot Farm heifer, FFF Justa Sucess U81SS, owned by Dr. Robert Jacobson of Dryden won the Futurity and the first prize of $239.40.

Four yearling heifers made this final class of the 1985 Futurity out of the 37 nominations made in the fall of 1983. Up to sixty points were awarded each final entry for height, weight, girth, backfat measurement, etc. and up to 40 points for the showring placing.

McCullough in selecting the Futurity winner cited her "complete balance and style." Elm Farm of Richmondville placed second; Vonda Hayne of Groton, third; and Bob Card of McGraw, fourth. Second place paid $205.20; third, $153.90; and fourth, $85.50.

The grand champion bull was also the junior champion, SCF Rustler 107, an Enforcer 107H son owned by Raymond and Winifred Clark of Clinton. The reserve grand champion bull was the senior champion, West Wind Excel 445M16R, a BTCL Domino 445M son, owned by Elm Farm and T.M. & K.E. Livingston of Central Bridge. The bull calf champion was a Sterling son, FFF Top Dollar T1 owned by Follifoot Farm.

Brian Birdsall exhibited the reserve champion bull calf. BBA Chad Line 1 C35; Mill Creek Farm of Ontario exhibited the reserve champion junior bull, Radar Sungod 46S; and R.C. Card of McGraw and Ron Birdsall of Homer exhibited the reserve champion senior bull, Dunwalke Line One 352.

J-Square Farm of Stillwater exhibited the grand champion and heifer who was also the junior champion, BRHL Trivia, a daughter of Briar Hills Tornado, High Meadows Emma, a daughter of HMF Inforcer 47, owned by High Meadows Farm of LaFayette and Marshall Farms of Port Byron.

Stephen Card of McGraw exhibited the senior champion heifer, Dunwalke Mystic 74R, a BTCL Domino 445M daughter. Lisa Adams of Ontario exhibited the reserve champion senior heifer, ACE Miss Marathon 219R, a TCF Marathon Man daughter. Sayre Farms of Phelps exhibited the heifer calf champion and Brian Birdsall the reserve champion heifer calf.

The cow/calf classes were very competitive also with John and Patricia Porter of Phelps exhibiting the champion cow/calf pair and Elm Farm and Mark Veeder exhibiting the reserve grand champion cow/calf pair.

Follifoot Farm won the Empire Special for best two head bred and owned by exhibitor and Elm Farm placed second Follifoot Farm was named Premier Exhibitor and Elm Farm was named Premier Exhibitor. Brian Birdsall and Marshall Farms were runners-up for the two titles.

Henry Bono of Richmondville was show chairman. William Greene, livestock extension associate at Cornell, and Peter Comerford, marketing specialist for the Department of Ag & Markets weighed and scored the cattle before the show. Mike Holden of Whitney Point acted as ring man.

Birdsall wins at Empire Jr. Show

WEEDSPORT, NY – Junior Polled Hereford breeders not only competed in special classes at the recent Eighth Annual Empire Classic Show at the Cayuga County Fairgrounds but also took part successfully in the open show.

Twelve-year-old Brian Birdsall of Homer, NY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Birdsall, "took on all comers" and was a close runner-up for the overall title of Premier Exhibitor at the Classic Show.

The Junior Grand Champion heifer was exhibited by Melinda Marshall of Port Byron and the Junior Reserve Grand Champion heifer was exhibited by her younger brother Peter.

Scott Baker of Palmyra won the senior showmanship class and his brother Tommy won the junior showmanship class for those 14 years of age and under. Kerry Pasquale of Stillwater placed second in the junior class.

Carl McCullough, manager of Rosebank Angus Farm at Germantown, who judged the Classic Show cited all the juniors for their showmanship. He called Scott Baker, Holly Mitchell who placed second in the senior class and Darrell Card who placed third, "outstanding young showmen." This class for those 15 to 18 years of age was highly competitive. Laura Thomson of Akron placed fourth; Stephen Card of McGraw, fifth; and Chris Adams of Ontario, sixth.

The overall championship title and trophy went to Scott Baker and Holly Mitchell of Skaneateles was named reserve champion.

Laura Thomson exhibited the first and second place steers in the steer competition.

Polled Hereford Assn. picks top junior breeder

Honored as the nation's most outstanding junior Polled Hereford breeder, he is the son of Kenneth and Betty Bacon. Jon Espenscheid of Argyle, WI, claimed the runner-up slot. He is the 20-year-old son of Marvin and Ruth Espenscheid. Kurtis Jennings of Rogers, AR, the 21-year-old son of Eldon and Evelyn Jennings, earned the third place honors.

Bacon received a $750 APHA Foundation scholarship plus a week-long trip to the Polled Hereford operation of his choice sponsored by Harding and Harding Livestock Insurance. Espenscheid won a $500 scholarship while Jennings was awarded $250. Recognition the three received was based on each applicants' outstanding achievements in the beef cattle industry, citizenship activities and personal development. Each candidate for the national award was first named a winner in his or her home state.

Bacon purchased his first Polled Herefords in 1978 and has worked to improve his herd through the past several years. He will enter his second year at the University of Missouri-Columbia this fall majoring in animal science. He hopes to attend veterinary school upon graduation.

Active in 4-H and FFA along with the Missouri Junior Polled Hereford Association, Bacon has served in all levels of leadership. He was president of the Missouri Junior PHA during 1983-84. He graduated valedictorian of his high school class and was honored on the dean's list last year at the University of Missouri.

Strict culling and attention to herd health help Bacon assure the quality of his cattle and have led to a five-fold increase in his herd's value since its beginning. The use of artificial insemination and performance data has aided Bacon in improving his herd and has helped in the eventual marketing of his product.

As a junior at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, Espenscheid plans a career in the agriculture communications or teaching fields. He has been active in the Wisconsin Junior Polled Hereford Association for 10 years and holds a number of distinctions in 4-H and FFA from the local to national levels. Espenscheid received a Polled Hereford heifer from his parents in 1974 for his start in the cattle business. Since then he has increased the value of his herd greatly and learned the important elements to guarantee the success of his cattle herd. Last year, he achieved an 85 percent conception rate on his A.I. cows and has increased frame size and quality of his cattle through the use of A.I. Weighing and measuring all young stock monthly has allowed Espenscheid to see the areas in which his cattle need improvement and to plan accordingly.

Jennings has a goal of owning and operating his own Polled Hereford ranch. Experience through 4-H, FFA and the Arkansas Junior Polled Hereford Association have put him in many leadership positions. He will be a senior this fall at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, majoring in animal science and business. Jennings received his first Polled Hereford heifer as a gift on his eighth birthday and has steadily increased his farm value over the past 11 years. Factors helping Jennings improve his herd range from herd health programs and pasture management to using A.I. and performance data. He has organized many judging workshops and contests in his county and the last two years has organized a junior stock show in Rogers. He is a director on the National Junior Polled Hereford Council representing Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

New Gehl 1260 and 1060 forage harvesters with exclusive Auto-Max system

AUTOMATIC load management.
MAXIMUM capacity design.

Gehl forage harvesters have been at the leading edge of engineering design for years With innovations that speed material flow and reduce downtime, for top capacity harvesting Now with Gehl's exclusive Auto-Max system, the new 1260 and 1060 forage harvesters are truly state-of-the art

The Auto-Max system features automatic load sensors—one on the upper feedroll and one on the attachment drive—that eliminate the need for shear pins and let you manage overloads without leaving your tractor By operating automatic electric controls you can smooth out an overload and start it feeding again in just seconds Without fear of prolonged downtime due to overloading you can operate your harvester and tractor at near their top capacity

Results 15 to 20 percent more capacity valuable time saved!

Just as the load sensing system protects the harvester from overloads a new speed monitoring system protects the unit from plugging the blower and deflector because of drops in tractor rpm

The Auto Max system is standard on the 1260, optional on the 1060 Both machines can be equipped with a Metal-Stop metal detector to protect against ferrous metal entering the harvester And a 30-gallon water tank can be added to prevent the problem of haylage gumming

Standard features on the 1260 and 1060 are impressive For example, Gehl's exclusive patented spinner delivery system keeps material on the move all the time No dead spots No cross augers Just continuous flow of material from the cylinder into the offset blower

An overrunning clutch on the drive line eliminates the stopping load on the tractor pto brake and allows the harvester to free-wheel when power is cut A simple in-head hydraulic knife snarpener allows the cylinder knives to be sharpened quickly right in the field using tractor hydraulics The cutterbar can be pulled out and finely refaced using the same system And a patented single-station cutterbar adjustment system allows you to reset the cutterbar from just one point on the harvester

There's more—lots more But why not see for yourself? Ask your Gehl dealer to demonstrate one of the new 60 Series the 1260, for tractors up to 300 hp, the 1060, for tractors up to 200 hp, or the economy 760, for tractors up to 150 hp And move into a world of worry-free harvesting!

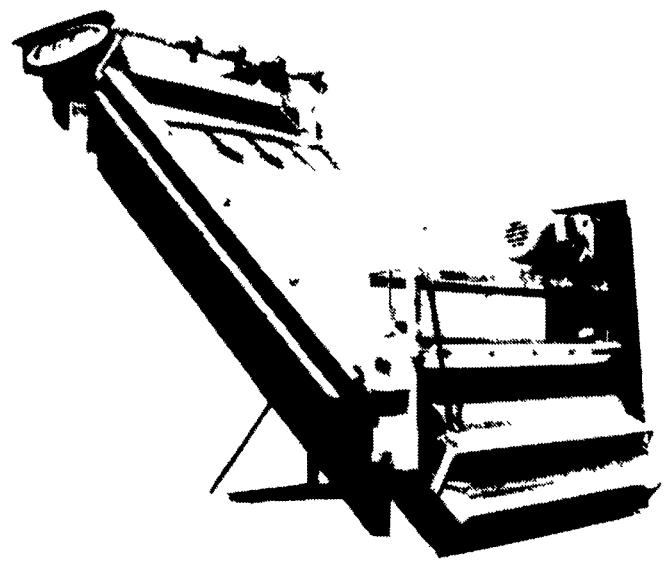
BUSINESS NEWS...



The new manure separator from Butler Livestock Systems.

Butler's manure separator provides more options

FORT ATKINSON, WI – Butler Livestock Systems' new Manure Separator provides farmers with more options for utilizing their liquid manure. By separating solids from liquids, the Manure Separator yields liquid manure that's easy to store, agitate and apply to fields–plus manure "cake" that can be used as bedding, fertilizer, mulch, or for refeeding to non-milking livestock. A side benefit is the reduction of pollution and odors.

The Manure Separator works like this: Liquid manure, pumped into a weir box at the top of the system, flows over the top and down a stainless steel screen. Manure liquids filter through the screen and are delivered to storage in a basin or above-ground tank; ready for spreading or injecting. A roll press at the base removes additional liquid, leaving the resulting manure cake approximately 80% moisture, 20% solids. The manure cake can then be stacked and allowed to compost for use as the farmer chooses. During composting, even more moisture is removed.

The drive unit for the roll press operates with a ½ h.p. motor. The roll press is composed of a vulcanized rubber upper roller and a stainless steel screen lower roller. The separator is mounted on a steel frame, and both the screen and drive chain ar made of stainless steel. Two models - one with a 250 GPM (gallons per minute) capacity, and one with a 400 GPM capacity - are available.

Young's sponsors Feedlot Seminar

Young's 1985 Feedlot Seminar was held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center on Thursday, Aug. 1. Four speakers addressed those attending the seminar. Harold Harpster from Penn State's animal science department spoke on heavy grain feeding versus heavy silage feeding, and Young's swine and beef cattle specialist Jim Hogue talked on total mixed rations for beef cattle. Paul Espy, a Juniata County cattle feeder, spoke on feedlot management, and Bob Schlighter talked on marketing beef cattle.

ELK RIVER, MN – The Nutrena Feed Division of Cargill will soon begin constructing a $400,000 dairy research facility here. The 80-cow facility is scheduled for completion this year.

In the past, Nutrena conducted the bulk of its dairy research at a leased facility near Elk River and with cooperating dairy research at a leased facility near Elk River and with cooperating dairy farmers in several states. The new facility will offer several advantages, according to Dr. Kent Ekstrom, research and product development manager.

"We will be able to do a more complete job and be more efficient in conducting a full spectrum of dairy research involving dairy calves, heifers, dry and lactating cows," said Ekstrom. "We have conducted dairy research with calves at Elk River since 1959, so this project will tie all of our dairy research together at one location. The project emphasizes our commitment to improve and expand our dairy feed business," he said.

Dr. James Quigley, dairy nutritionist at Elk River, said his work at the facility will concentrate on development of new products with emphasis on protein and amino-acid interactions in cow nutrition.

Research on alternative feed ingredients will be another important aspect of the research effort, Quigley said.

"There seems to be increased interest in these products as a method for dairy producers to cut costs and improve efficiency," Quigley said.

The project will include a 36-by-280-foot two-story dairy barn for lactating cows and a 30-by-140-foot building for dry cows and heifers. Two 20-by-70-foot silos will be constructed for feed storage. The dairy barn will have 80 tie stalls and a herringbone milking parlor where eight cows can be milked at one time.

New from John Deere:

'4-Runner' combine designed for four-row harvesting

New John Deere 4425 combine, the "4-Runner", has many Titan II features for high capacity, fast and efficient grain handling, easy service, reliability, and operator comfort and control.

MOLINE, IL – John Deere has introduced a new combine, the model 4425, called the "4-Runner" because it is tailored for 4-row harvesting.

The 4425 has a greater complement of productivity and convenience features than any other combine in its class. A replacement for the popular 4420, it has such Titan II features as feeder-house reverser and Posi-Torq™ cylinder drive as standard equipment. Dial-A-Matic™ header height control and Harves-Trak monitor are available as optional equipment.

The same spring-loaded locking pins used on Titan II combines permits Quik-Tatch header hookup on all 200 series platforms up to 18 ft. wide and all four-row narrow and wide corn heads and 50 series row-crop heads. A two-speed feeder house drive sprocket enables the feeder conveyor system to readily adapt for harvesting corn, soybeans, or small grains.

An optional swing-away straw chopper is available for factory or field installation. A pivot mounting allows one man to easily swing the chopper into or out of position without the use of tools. When in the operating position, this chopper can distribute finely chopped material over a wide area behind the combine.

Threshing and separating capacity is increased on the 4425 with a large 24-inch diameter and 41-inch wide threshing cylinder and 23.2-inch long concave.

The 4425 has the largest cleaning area of any combine in its class, 5,271 square inches. This provides maximum grain cleaning and reduced losses in shoe limited crop and field conditions. Both chaffer and sieve are fully adjustable and reciprocate in opposite directions to shear off straw which otherwise could hairpin between the chaffer and sieve.

A 125-bushel grain tank which unloads in 83 seconds saves the operator precious unloading time. A fully enclosed hydraulic-swing unloading auger allows easy placement of the auger on-the-go

The 4425 is powered by a 117 h.p. 359 cubic inch engine, the same John Deere diesel engine which is used on the company's 2950 tractor, to provide plenty of power under power intensive field and crop conditions.

The 4425 combines will be available from John Deere dealers for the 1986 harvest season.

Red Wing names Pedelty vice president of sales

RED WING, MN — Red Wing Business Systems has named Holmes Pedelty, Vice President of Sales. Pedelty will have responsibilities with both Red Wing's dealer organization and Red Wing's large corporate accounts. Red Wing Business Systems is the nation's leading producer of computer software serving the financial and production management needs of agriculture.

In making the announcement, Lyle Warrington, President of the Minnesota-based agricultural software firm, said "Holmes Pedelty will provide the experience, knowledge and ability to effectively serve the present farm market. With all of his experience and his excellent reputation throughout the ag community, he will be able to help us develop a stronger, more effective marketing organization."

Red Wing Business Systems is a respected leader in the agricultural software industry, serving farmers and rural businesses in virtually every state of the union. They have an extensive dealer network across the country, with full service dealers providing complete local support for all Red Wing products. In addition, they have international distributors marketing their products.

Holmes owns and manages his own farms. In addition, he is a much sought-after speaker on financial management to both farming and banking groups. Pedelty was associated with North Iowa Livestock and Farmer's Livestock Markets.

He is a former member of the Grade Standards and Labeling Committee of the National Cattleman's Association, past Chairman of the Iowa Beef Industries Council Marketing Committee, Advisor of Beef Grading to the United States Department of Agriculture, Board member of Norwest Bank (Mason City, IA), co-author of a procedural manual for ag credit administration and quality control for financial institutions. Holmes did daily market broadcasts for a network of 15 Iowa radio stations and a TV station.

Farm Credit can solve its problems according to top federal regulator

MANHATTAN, KN — The Farm Credit System has the financial and human resources to handle its own problems without Federal assistance if it makes proper use of those resources, according to Donald E. Wilkinson, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. Of allegations that the system is on the verge of collapse and needs an immediate infusion of Government capital, Wilkinson said "it isn't and it doesn't."

Speaking at the National Institute of Cooperative Education here, Wilkinson freely admitted the system has credit problems resulting from low farm income, but said they are manageable if the agricultural economy does not deteriorate beyond present expectations. Even though there is stress in the credit area, he said, the system's capital and reserve position remains strong.

To back up his claim, Wilkinson cited year-end figures showing the system's 37 banks and $5.1 billion in capital stock and its Production Credit Associations had $1.9 billion. Earned net worth totaled $4.1 billion for the banks and $2.5 billion for Federal Land Bank Associations and PCAs. Overall reserves for possible loan losses totaled $1.3 billion.

Wilkinson said the difficulty was that capital and capital management are disbursed among the system's 37 regional banks and nearly 800 local associations.

"To help correct that situation," he said, "capital should be consolidated in those districts where Production Credit Associations are having severe financial troubles and must be consolidated in those districts that face the prospect of requiring financial assistance from other parts of the system. Merging into a single PCA will permit individual districts to maximize earnings and capital management."

Commenting on the importance of approving national financial assistance programs, Wilkinson expressed concern about the risk of an adverse decision by a minority of the district boards of directors.

If these assistance plans aren't approved or the conditions of plans that are approved aren't accepted by the district involved, the options are liquidation of troubled associations or even the liquidation of financially stressed banks, he said.

Liquidations of associations could cause problems for borrowers, Wilkinson said, and the liquidation of a Farm Credit Bank would have serious repercussions in the bond markets.

And in the event that Federal financial assistance became necessary, it would be inappropriate to ask for it unless and until the system had done everything in its power to solve its own problems, he said.

Turning to credit conditions in the system, Wilkinson stated that on Mar. 31, the 37 banks reported $8.3 billion in nonperforming loans and the PCAs $2.7 billion. Of these totals, $1.5 billion of the bank loans and $663 million of the PCA loans were in nonaccrual status.

During the first quarter of 1985, system institutions charged off $61.1 million in loans, he said.

"Despite these problems, the 37 Farm Credit Banks reported net earnings of $90.5 million for the quarter. Earnings are essential to maintain investor confidence and to av[illegible]ng a 'risk penalty' on securities, wh[illegible] would undoubtedly cost borrower[illegible] over the long run.

He suggested that differential interest rate programs would help alleviate the flight of good borrowers.

Penn State given $11,500 for tobacco research

LANDISVILLE – R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. today presented the Pennsylvania State University with grants totaling $11,500 for use in tobacco research and extension and the discretionary use of the dean of the College of Agriculture.

The discretionary grant will be used by the dean for the enhancement of agricultural programs at the university. The research grant is to be used to help support variety development, quality improvement, and curing of Pennsylvania tobacco under the direction of Dr. John Yocum. The extension grant will be used for general support of extension projects.

J. D. Rogers of the R&D Agricultural Programs Division at Reynolds presented the check for the grants to Dr. John O. Yocum, senior research associate and superintendent of the Southeastern Field Research Laboratory.

Reynolds had earlier funded a $1,000 scholarship for Excellence in Agriculture for Timothy J. Fritz of Lancaster.

R. J. Reynolds contributions to tobacco research, extension, and education programs at Pennsylvania State University have totaled more than $81,000 since 1979. Since 1962, Reynolds contributions to similar programs at land-grant universities in tobacco producing states have totaled more than $6.9 million.

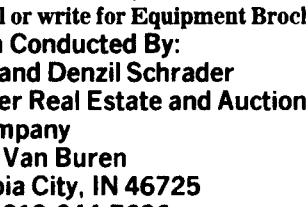
IMPORTANT LAND AUCTION
CORYDON, INDIANA



1990 ACRES
90% TILLABLE

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1985
at 12:30 EST; 1:30 EDT

1990 ACRES – 18 PARCELS – 25 MILES FROM LOUISVILLE: Farms from 473 acres to 17 acres. AT LEAST 10 FARMS WILL SELL REGARDLESS OF PRICE! The majority of these farms will probably sell for $500-$1,000 per acre. The silt loam texture and the granular structure of the soils on these farms provide a mellow-easily worked soil with no crusting problems, little if any compaction problems, & good water holding capacity which all adds up to an excellent seed bed with reduced tillage costs. This property has received excellent management practices over the year to make it one of the better managed farms in Indiana. The fertility level on the farm is high to very high in both P (Phosphorus) and K (Potash-Potassium) according to recent soil tests which indicated that some fields would not require any fertilizer for next year's crop (not including nitrogen). In addition to the high fertility level, the farm has been under a crop rotation program of corn and wheat which has helped to increase the fertility level and tilth factor of the soil while at the same time decreasing the insecticide and herbicide management. This farm has the potential of increased cash flow by growing popcorn (will net a premium over commercial corn) plus wheat with double crop soybeans thus offering an excellent rate of return based on today's market conditions and land prices. Don't miss this opportunity for an excellent investment in quality southern Indiana farmland.

OPEN HOUSE DATES: Thursday, August 15 from 1:00 to 5:00 PM; Saturday, August 24 from 10:00 AM to 2:00 PM at Corydon Best Western.

Kleen Leen.™

We breed success.

Our customized breeding programs and your hog operation. A successful match.

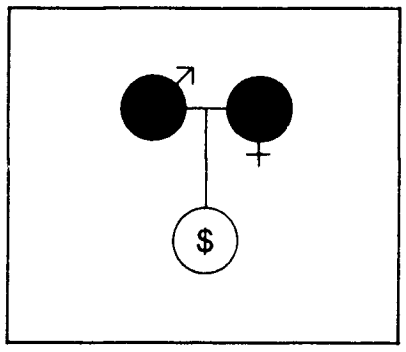
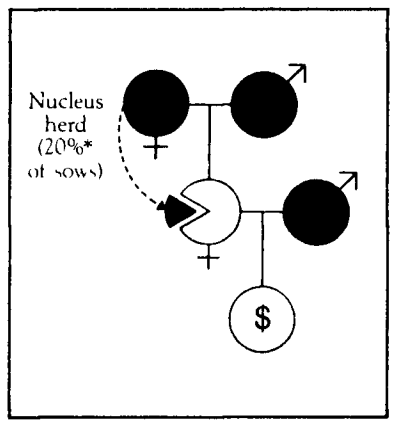
Purchasing all replacement gilts and boars.

Kleen Leen's proven terminal breeding programs offer you these advantages: simplicity, more uniform market hogs, maximum maternal and offspring heterosis, and less management time and expense spent on raising replacement gilts.



Purchasing selected nucleus herd gilts and all boars.

The nucleus herd concept lets you purchase 20% of your sow herd inventory to produce your own replacement gilts. You save on your initial expenditure by buying fewer replacement gilts while still benefiting from maternal heterosis and taking advantage of maternal breed traits. This unique gilt makes up the other 80% of your sow herd and, when crossed with Blackline boars, produces terminal cross market hogs.



*Percentage varies according to replacement gilt needs

In these programs, you select 20% of your own sows in each group to mate with selected boars to produce a specific kind of replacement gilt. You must maintain the proper rotation of boars to maintain high levels of heterosis and get the proper breed mix for replacement gilts.
